Secretary allegedly led economic retaliation

Kissinger directly tied to holdup of Chile funds

By SEYMOUR M. HERSH
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON—Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger personally directed a far-reaching Nixon administration program designed to curtail economic aid and credits to Chile after the election of President Salvador Allende in 1970, well-informed government sources said Saturday.

These sources said that after the election of Allende, Kissinger, who was then serving as President Richard M. Nixon's adviser on national security, took charge of a series of weekly interagency meetings in which administration officials worked out a policy of economic sanctions—or "retaliation," as one source put it—against Chile.

The Nixon administration repeatedly denied there was any overt program of economic sanctions against Chile, publicly stating that the Chilean government's inability to get loans and credits after Allende's election was a reflection of its heightened credit risk.

There was no immediate comment from Kissinger.

The secretary of state has been under increasing criticism from Congress since it was revealed last week that the United States had authorized more than $8 million for clandestine activities by the Central Intelligence Agency against the Allende government from 1970 to 1973. The funds were approved by the 40 Committee, a high-level panel headed by Kissinger that is in charge of overseeing the CIA's covert activities.

Although he is secretary of state, Kissinger remains as President Ford's national security adviser and thus still heads the 40 Committee.

The New York Times' sources include former Nixon administration officials who were involved in the decision-making on Chile after the election of Allende. Other information was supplied by congressional officials who have had access to all the sworn testimony on Chile.

The sources emphasized that Kissinger's economic activities against the Allende government were distinct from his involvement in clandestine CIA operations, although both programs were controlled by him with great secrecy.

Kissinger's decision to become personally involved in the economic reprisals against the Chilean government angered a number of high-level State Department officials who considered his action to be a sign of mistrust toward the department, the sources said.

"The whole purpose of the meetings in the first couple of months after the election was to insure that the various aid agencies and lending agencies were rejiggered to make sure that Allende wasn't to get a penny," said one well-informed source.

Over the next two years, the Chilean government was denied dozens of loans by the World Bank, a multinational loan agency over whose activity the United States has virtual veto power, and by the Export-Import Bank, a U.S. government agency. In addition, Chile's short-term line of credit with private banks fell from $220 million in 1971 to less than $40 million a year later.

In a speech on Dec. 4, 1972, to the United Nations, Allende complained of "large-scale external pressure to cut us off from the world, to strangle our economy and paralyze our trade in our principal export, copper, and to deprive us of access to sources of international financing." The Allende government was overthrown in a bloody coup d'etat 10 months later in which the Chilean leader died.

The most explicit administration denial of such economic pressure came during hearings last

FPC said negligent on price hikes

GAO cites conflict in officials' holdings

By MICHAEL C. JENSEN
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON—The General Accounting Office, following a 10-month investigation, has accused the Federal Power Commission (FPC) of acting improperly in allowing a number of the nation's natural gas producers to raise prices to millions of their customers.

It also alleged that a number of FPC officials had owned securities of the companies they regulate and had failed to comply with the commission's rules designed to avoid conflicts of interest. Nineteen officials of the FPC were directed by the commission to sell some of their securities as a result of the GAO investigation, the agency said.

The GAO did not identify the companies that were allowed to raise prices or the individuals who sold securities. It did say, however, that seven of the individuals were administrative law judges at the FPC.

In an appendix to the report, the FPC denied that the commission had acted improperly and said most of the noncompliance with conflict-of-interest regulations had resulted from inadequate record-keeping procedures. It said all of the potential conflict-of-interest situations had been cleared up.

Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., who requested the GAO investigation last October, described the report as "one of the most powerful indictments of a federal regulatory agency within memory."

He called for oversight hearings by Congress, an investigation by

Guilty verdict in Popeil case

By MOLLY BURRELL
Staff Writer

Mrs. Eloise Popeil and her boyfriend, Dan Ayers, were found guilty of soliciting the murder of her multimillionaire husband Saturday but acquitted of felony charges of murder conspiracy.

A Los Angeles Superior Court jury reached its verdict at 4:10 p.m. after 40 hours of deliberation and a temporary deadlock on one solicitation count against Mrs. Popeil.

The panel of seven men and five women found Ayers, 37, guilty of two counts of solicitation and convicted Mrs. Popeil, 49, of one count.

Mrs. Popeil and Ayers, who had shown little emotion since their arrival in court at 11:30 a.m. to await the verdict, reacted quietly.

Mrs. Popeil, on hearing the "not guilty of conspiracy" for Ayers, dropped her head in her hands on the counsel table and silently wept while she heard the same verdict for herself.

Ayers looked at his codefendant, smiled slightly, then looked back as the court clerk read the guilty verdicts, and the smile left his face.

THE SOLICITATION charges, added by a Long Beach municipal judge after the pair's preliminary hearing here last January, evolved from testimony of two alleged "hit" men who said the defendants offered them between $50,000 and $100,000 to kill Chicago kitchen gadget king, Samuel J. Popeil, 59. Solicitation can be either a felony or misdemeanor, depending on the ruling of the judge.

That ruling, by Judge Mark Brandler, is due Oct. 7, the day set for sentencing and probation report. Brandler will also rule then on a possible contempt citation against Ayers' counsel, Dep. Public Defender Joseph Acton. Acton refused to give one of his investigator's reports to the prosecution as ordered by the judge, and the ruling has been delayed because Acton is out of the country on vacation until the end of the month.

The jury was ready with five of the six verdicts at 1:10 p.m. but deadlocked on whether or not Mrs. Popeil was guilty of soliciting Don Reed, Ayers' former coworker, to kill her husband. (Reed and Robert Peeler, another of Ayers former aircraft plant acquaintances, were key prosecution witnesses and assisted Long Beach police in closing the net around the pair by taping their conversations with them.)

Brandler polled the jury on whether they thought they could reach a verdict on the one unsettled count, and finding that three thought it possible, ordered them back into deliberations at 2 p.m. Two hours later they returned their verdict.

WITHIN minutes the petite blonde Mrs. Popeil and tall, muscular Ayers were manacled and hustled out of court and toward county jails where they must remain until sentencing. Oct. 7 is the earliest date their appeals can be filed and an appeal court bond requested.

The pair was arrested at Mrs. Popeil's Newport Beach home Jan. 8 after a five-day investigation by Long Beach police, which was triggered indirectly by a call from the intended victim. Reed phoned Popeil Jan. 3 to tell him about the alleged "contract" plot and Popeil called his Los Angeles lawyer who called a Long Beach judge who called police.

The conspiracy acquittals came as no surprise to either side. A key jury instruction was in line with a 1953 State Supreme Court decision in the Buffum case which said that

Flash flood slams resort; two killed

NELSON LANDING, Nev. (UPI) — At least two people were killed Saturday when a raging flash flood cut through a canyon on Lake Mojave, a popular weekend fishing resort.

Officials said an additional 10 to 15 persons were missing.

The flood swept buildings and vehicles aside. Officials said at least two bodies, one of them a woman, were recovered.

Ron Roberts, 21, said he saw four mobile homes washed into the lake by the wall of water carrying at least 20 feet of mud into the lake. He said 50 to 60 automobiles and pickup trucks were pushed into the lake as well as a restaurant, bar and a small store located at Nelson Landing.

Roberts said he and three other persons attempted to leave the area in a truck.

"But the mud started sliding the truck around and we had to jump out," he said. "We ran to the top of a mountain. It wasn't our time to die.

"The wave that hit was about 20 feet high when I saw it. It first started to rain lightly and then it started to hail."

A Las Vegas man, who said he was at Nelson Landing for the weekend, said there were only five seconds of warning.

"I saw the wife and the two children of one of the park rangers washed away," said the man, who asked not to be identified.

Gary Bunny, assistant superintendent of the National Parks Service for the Lake Mead recreational area, said, "We are still estimating from 10 to 15 people missing.

"We say missing because some who were apparently unaccounted for were pulled out of the lake by fishermen who were in boats when the flash flood hit and they took these people to other areas along the lake."

NELSON Landing, located on the Lake Mojave, is about 35 miles south of here.

Lake Mohave, 24 miles south of Hoover Dam and a popular weekend fishing resort for Southern California and southern Nevada fishermen, is formed by the water on the Colorado River backed up by the Davis Dam.

Eldorado Canyon is 600 to 800 feet wide and 1,000 feet from the lake. But it narrows to about 150 feet with steep canyon walls at the point where Nelson Landing is located on the lake.

The terrain would act as a natural funnel for flood waters moving through the canyon and would continue to the speed and the depth as it reached this small community.

Skyjacker blasts Viet jet; 70 die

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — A South Vietnamese airliner with 70 persons aboard exploded in flames while landing after an attempted hijacking Sunday. Government officials said there were no survivors.

The plane was blown apart by two grenades detonated by the hijacker at an altitude of 1,000 feet, the officials said.

Military officials reported earlier that the hijacker was shot dead during his attempt to order the plane to fly to Hanoi.

The death toll of 62 passengers and eight crewmen was believed to be the highest resulting from an attempted hijacking.

All the passengers on the Air Vietnam flight were Vietnamese except for five identified as Americans and Koreans, the government officials said.

However, a spokesman for the U.S. Embassy in Saigon said "so far as we can determine there are no American passengers on board."

He said: "According to the passenger manifest two non-Vietnamese were on board, but we do not think there are Americans."

$2,000 reward offered in L.B. trunk murder

On Sunday, Sept. 1, Long Beach police investigated a car that had been parked in the Los Altos Shopping Center parking lot at 2270 Bellflower Blvd. for about six weeks.

When detectives opened the trunk of the car, they found the fully clothed body of a woman who had been shot to death.

The badly decomposed body remained "Jane Doe" on police records until last Sunday, when the victim was identified through dental records as Shirley Claire Isselhardt, 47, last known address in Huntington Beach. Investigators have been unable to determine a motive for her slaying.

Secret Witness will pay $2,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of her murderer.

Terrorists boost ransom — refused

THE HAGUE, Netherlands, Sunday (AP) — Three terrorists of the Japanese Red Army held nine hostages in the French Embassy early today, after 30 hours of tense negotiations. French and Dutch officials said the bandits' escalating demands were "unacceptable."

Police and Dutch Marines in battle gear ringed the embassy. Dutch Premier Joop den Uyl said the police would have to decide whether to use force.

Cannery workers to strike over relocation

By GLENN LEIBOWITZ
Staff Writer

Approximately 1,500 tuna cannery workers disgruntled over the Terminal Island Van Camp Sea Food Co.'s plan to relocate in San Diego, unanimously voted to strike Saturday.

The strike, schedule to begin at 6 a.m. Tuesday, is a protest over Van Camp's refusal to assure the plant's employes jobs when its new San Diego facility opens in mid-1976, according to a union spokesman.

STEVE EDNEY, district president of the United Cannery and Industrial Workers of the Pacific, AFL-CIO, said the cannery failed during negotiations "to show good faith in solving problems arising out of costs, seniority rights in the new plant and severance pay for those who can't relocate."

He said a strike became imminent when talks between union and Van Camp negotiators broke down Friday.

Edney said that Saturday's voice vote proved the cannery's employes are "worried about a job (after the move)." He added that "a great number are willing to move; they've put much of their life in this industry."

Edney said workers told him they don't want to give their jobs to people in San Diego.

Edney said Van Camp has offered no relocation help to the Terminal Island canners. He said company officials have told the workers to "come down and we'll consider you like any other new hire."

"It's as though we never worked there before," he charged.

Edney said the old contract expired Aug. 31 but the union extended negotiations 10 days in good faith.

HE SAID union and company representatives have already reached accord over salary increases but relocation squabbles have been responsible for the failure to reach agreement on a new contract.

"We would have settled on wage, we would have recommended it to our membership, but the move is the focus of the strike," Edney said.

He said the union settled on new contracts with two other canneries last week. However he refused to name them until sometime next week, citing the Van Camp talks.

Van Camp officials could not be reached for comment.

Edney said negotiations will resume Wednesday.

Girls get VIP care by Ford

Combined News Services

A giggling Patti Albers, age 9, was clocked in Saturday as the year's millionth visitor to the White House and wound up chuming around with President Ford.

Ford gave Patti and two sisters "a little extra dividend" — a personal tour of his Oval Office — and planned to surprise their parents, spending the weekend at Ocean City, Md., with a phone call. But it turned out they had no phone at their seaside retreat.

Patti, a fifth grader, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Albers of the Baltimore suburb of Phoenix, Md.

With the elder Albers away, 19-year-old Teri Albers, a nursing school junior at the University of Maryland, agreed to take Patti and her seven-year-old sister, Kelly, to any Washington tourist attraction of their choice. They chose the White House. Asked why, Patti just giggled.

Ford escorted the young women into the Rose Garden outside his office to meet with reporters and photographers. But when the President and reporters asked them how they liked the special treatment, the girls ducked shyly and giggled.

When Ford asked if reporters had any more questions, one suggested an impromptu news conference.

"We'll see you later," said Ford, heading back to his office with the visitors in tow.

Unauthorized

Miami boatbuilder Ramon Donestevez and six other persons were taken into custody by customs officials in Key West Saturday, six days after they set off on an unauthorized trip to Cuba to negotiate the fate of political prisoners.

Donestevez, along with three unidentified men and three women, were towed into port aboard Donestevez's 28-foot powerboat, "Hicacos." The Coast Guard cutter Cape York was dispatched to assist the vessel late Friday after the 39-year-old Cuban exile radioed that he was taking on water about 30 miles southeast of Key West.

"Hicacos" was also the name as the 25-foot powerboat used by Donestevez in a previous trip to Cuba in 1968. That boat was seized by authorities after he returned and Donestevez was placed on probation and ordered to stay within the physical boundaries of Dade County.

The exiled boatbuilder, who has lived in the United States with his family since 1962, claims he travels to Cuba to negotiate the release of political prisoners. He has made five trips to Cuba in the past several years and claims to have obtained the release of at least one prisoner.

Donestevez faces a possible jail term for violation of the government orders, and a deportation order effective when and if the United States resumes diplomatic relations with Cuba.

Easy life

The Retired Young Executives Club of Park Ridge, Ill., has no officers, dues, jobs, telephones or money.

"Our slogan is 'Loose as a Goose' and we pursue the fine art of doing nothing," says a founder, John Calef, 77, a retired chemist.

"An applicant must be retired and if he should start working regularly again he is out. And you really don't have to be an executive — we have 'em from carpenters and plumbers to bank presidents."

The 50 or so members of the all-male club, average age 73, meet for luncheon once a week. Calef said sometimes "we commensurate with members who have a lot of stock and are seeing the bottom falling out ... Or we exchange information that could be useful to each other about such things as Medicare or Social Security.

"Our deepest discussions, however, center these days on inflation," he said. "We can't find a solution but we agree on one thing: The government is spending too damn much money."

Nordic

A woman will sit for the first time in the five-member administrative and executive presidium of the Nordic Council, it was announced Saturday in Reykjavik, Iceland.

Mrs. Ragnhildur Helgadottir, an Independence Party member of the Althing, the Icelandic parliament, will replace Matthias A. Mathiesen who is now Iceland's finance minister.

Mrs. Helgadottir, a 44-year-old lawyer and wife f a law professor, was first elected to the Althing in 1858 and served as president of its lower house in 1961-1962.

In 1975, Iceland will get the chairmanship of the presidium, and Mrs. Helgadottir could become the body's first female head.

On the stump

First Lady Betty Ford told a black women's rights organization Saturday that she will keep stumping the country in support of the rights of women and blacks.

Mrs. Ford, who has remarked several times on the need for women's equality, added that if her husband does not hear about the issue during his working day, "he gets it at night right in the ribs."

Mrs. Ford spoke briefly at a luncheon meeting of the National Council of Negro Women, Inc. She received a standing ovation from the approximately 110 women, most of them black, who attended.

She pledged support for "you women who will lead the nation down the path of equality — not only racial and sexual, but for all equality."

She was asked later if she planned to keep stumping the country for racial and sexual equality. "I intend to do as much as I can, even if I have to build my own (stump)," she replied.

One woman asked Mrs. Ford if she had urged the President to name black women to high government posts, and the First Lady said she had.

'Two standards'

On the third anniversary of the Attica prison revolt, Angela Davis Saturday called on authorities to free the Attica defendants, saying there are two standards of justice in America — one for persons under the law and another for those above it.

"People are upset about Jeb Magruder, Herbert Kalmbach and John Dean doing time in their country club prisons while (former President Richard M.) Nixon doesn't serve any time," the black activist told a rally in Buffalo, N.Y. "I want to know what about the Attica brothers."

Miss Davis — accompanied by nine of the men facing charges stemming from the Sept. 9-13, 1971 takeover — led 2,000 demonstrators in a peaceful march through downtown Buffalo. Twenty-eight inmates and 11 corrections officers died three years ago Sunday when authorities stormed the prison-under-seige.

Chess masters

The Soviet Union's most prodigious young player meets one of its wily old guard veterans in the world chess challengers final starting today for the right to challenge America's Bobby Fischer for the world crown.

If Fischer shuns the challenge, which he has threatened to do in a dispute over rules, the winner of the match between Anatoly Karpov, 23, and Viktor Korchnoi, 43, will be automatically proclaimed world champion.

A Moscow computer, fed data about the contestants, predicted a 5-2 victory for Karpov. But chess has too many surprises for a machine, and the majority of chess masters are reserving judgement.

Korchnoi, of Leningrad, and Karpov, a Leningrad university economics student, have played each other in five previous matches. Each has won twice and they have drawn once.

Pedestrian

A professor who studied foot traffic on sidewalks reports sex-related differences in how people walk by each other.

Specifically, a man meeting a man is more aggressive than a woman meeting a woman, or even a man meeting a woman.

Dr. Dean C. Ing, assistant professor of speech and theater at Northwest Missouri State University, based his conclusions on the average distances between pedestrians passing each other.

When a male meets a female, Ing observed, the average distance between them was one foot as they passed. The distance was the same when a woman passed a woman, but when a man passed a man, the average distance was four to five inches.

"The suspicion is, and I base this on my readings, that the males show more aggression to other males—aggression judged by their closer passage—as a result of attitudes trained into them by our culture," Ing said.

Peace diplomacy

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger plans to visit Cairo and other Middle East capitals next month to make final preparations for a new phase of the search for a permanent Arab-Israeli peace settlement, diplomatic sources said Saturday in Washington.

That new phase is likely to center on negotiations between Israel and Egypt conducted through an American intermediary, sources said after the departure from Washington of Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

Sources speculated that the intermediary might be Joseph Sisco, No. 3 man in the State Department and a diplomat with long experience in Middle East affairs, but they felt certain Kissinger would also continue his own contacts with representatives of the two countries.

Helpful

Sen. J. William Fulbright, head of a congressional delegation returning from a 12-day tour of China, said Saturday in Washington the visit had strengthened relations between the Washington and Peking.

"We found our exchange of views was helpful in underlining the common ideas we have with the Chinese and in clarifying the very real differences that remain between us," Fulbright told newsmen.

He added: "It is a bit difficult to believe that only 16 hours ago we were in a country on the other side of the world with such profound cultural and political differences. That only serves to emphasize the need to find ways to overcome our differences."

Engagement

President Ford will address the 1974 United Press International Editors and Publishers Conference in San Francisco on Oct. 2, the White House said Saturday.

The Chief Executive will fly to the West Coast from Provo, Utah, where he will speak earlier in the day at Brigham Young University, a Mormon school.

Future uncertain for Haig

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alexander M. Haig said he plans to leave the White House staff soon but not necessarily to return to his Army career.

In an interview with The Associated Press, Haig said he would hope to return to active duty as a four-star general but that his future plans were not yet firm.

An aide to the White House staff chief said Haig had "several options under consideration," not all of them involving military service.

It is widely expected that Haig will be appointed by President Ford to be commander of U.S. military forces in Europe, which would also make him supreme commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, succeeding Gen. Andrew Goodpaster.

Haig was vice chief of staff of the Army when former President Richard Nixon appointed him in the summer of 1973 temporarily to replace H.R. Haldeman who resigned because of the Watergate scandal.

Haig said he "prematurely" had ended his Army career a few months later when he heeded an appeal from Nixon to remain as White House staff chief.

Top-level NATO meetings are scheduled in Rome and Brussels in November and Goodpaster, 59, could be expected to deliver his farewell then and step down in favor of Haig.

A key question in any such NATO appointment is whether Haig would have to undergo Senate confirmation hearings. Rumors of Haig's possible return to uniformed duty have brought protests from some members of Congress who contend that Haig's active involvement in politics is a bad example to military commanders.

The Army chief of staff's job also is vacant following the death of Gen. Creighton Abrams. However, sources say Haig probably would not get that post because it would represent such an obvious promotion and would place him in the center of national attention.

U.S. test-ban delay with Russia reported

BALTIMORE (AP) — The United States has advised the Soviet Union that it will not seek Senate ratification of the partial nuclear weapons test ban until supplemental agreements are reached, the Baltimore Sun said in its Sunday edition.

The newspaper quoted Moscow sources as saying Washington's intention is to pressure Russia to agree on strict controls for nonmilitary nuclear explosions, particularly on the highly sensitive issue of on-scene observers.

The Kremlin has been told the Ford administration expects to face difficulty in winning ratification of the underground test ban treaty without the additional agreements, according to the Sun's sources.

The additional agreements Washington is said to be pushing for are envisioned under the treaty and protocol signed by then-President Richard Nixon during last summer's Moscow summit conference.

Sanitation system work set

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

The sanitation system serving Laguna Hills Leisure World will be enlarged and upgraded to meet a threatened series of regulations by the Santa Ana Region Water Quality Control Board.

The board had cited the Rossmoor Sanitation, Inc., a privately operated sewage-handling setup serving Laguna Hills Leisure World, to a hearing before the board in Riverside, when control board directors considered issuing a "cease and desist" order.

Consulting Engineer James Roberts testified that he measured overflows in the San Diego Creek, which ultimately feeds into the Upper Newport Bay, and claimed that they were in violation of board orders.

The board, which had established operating standards for Rossmoor Sanitation, Inc., requires that no flow be permitted in San Diego Creek beyond the Laguna Freeway overpass.

ROSSMOOR Sanitation, handling an average of 1.78 million gallons of sewage daily, filters and reclaims most of its flow for irrigation and other uses, including filling the ponds at Lion Country Safari.

Roberts testified that an overflow of 200 gallons per minute at the Leisure World Ponderosa Reservoir, 50 gallons per minute at Veeh Reservoir downstream, and found flow passing Lion Country Safari and entering the creek below Laguna Freeway.

Under questioning by Rossmoor attorney Milford Dahl, Robert conceded that some of the measured flow could have been irrigation return water from the vast Irvine Ranch.

Larry Sturgeon, assistant manager of Rossmoor's sanitation setup, told control board directors that mechanical problems with pumps have been repaired, and that the system is seeking to enlarge its reservoirs to add holding capacity and get more lands to irrigate with recovered flow.

A 32-MILLION gallon reservoir is planned, it was revealed, along with other improvements.

Executive Officer James Anderson of the control board recommended continuing the cease and desist hearing until Nov. 8, to give engineers for Rossmoor time to complete the planned improvements.

If a cease and desist order is issued against Rossmoor, it will have the effect of halting all expansion, including residential and business, until more sewage handling capacity is provided.

In such a case, no building permits could be issued until the water quality board lifted the order; that could be done only on showing of compliance with its orders in the handling, treatment and recovery of sewage flows.

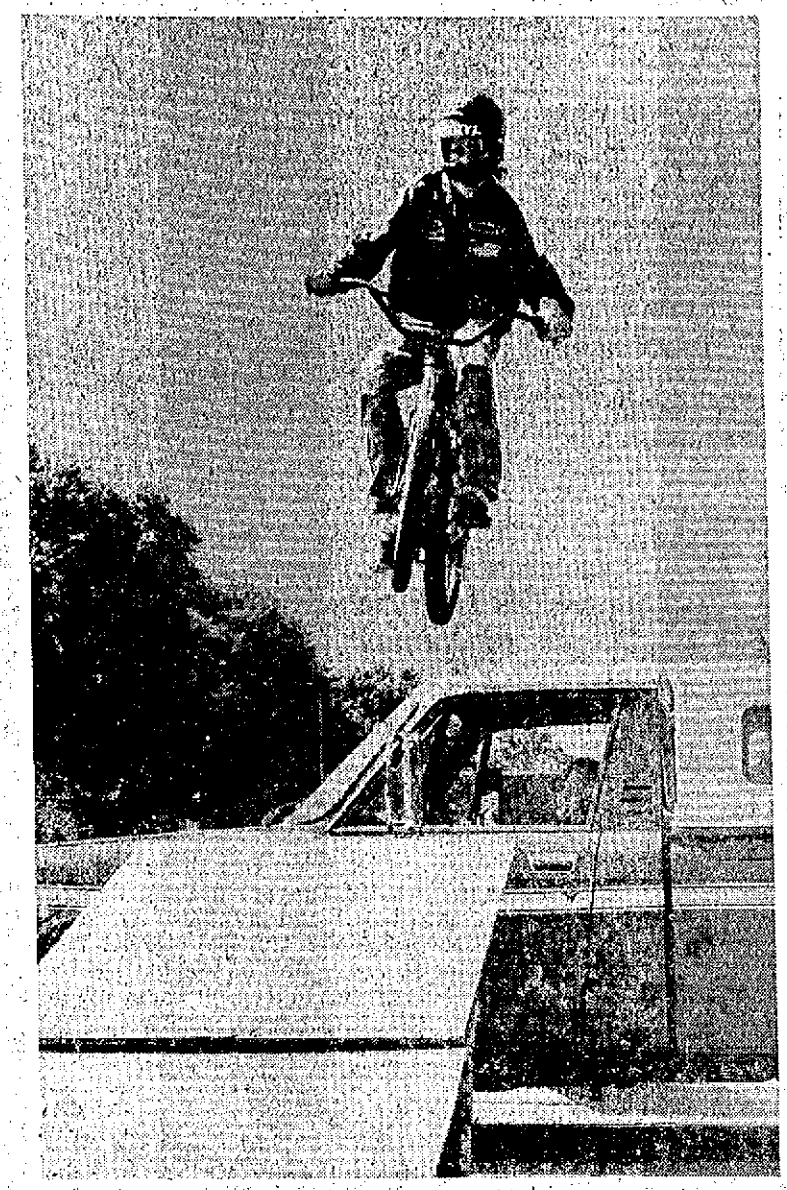

He has been named chairman of the Irvine division of the Academic Senate of the University of California.

Dr. Moyed named to new UC post

A third title has accrued to Dr. Harris S. Moyed of Newport Beach, who is associate dean for academic affairs at UC Irvine college of medicine, and professor of microbiology.

Another alternate-shift epidemic of the so-called "Blue Flu" struck the Long Beach Police Department Saturday when 49 of the 52 uniformed officers scheduled to work the afternoon shift called in sick.

Unofficial sources within the ranks of officers predicted the alternate-shift cycle would be completed this morning when patrolmen slated to work the Watch Two day shift are scheduled to report for duty.

It is expected that they, too, will call in sick.

Saturday's outbreak marked the fifth time this week the majority of patrolmen slated to work a shift developed a sudden illness hours before they were to report for duty.

THE TACTIC, which literally leaves management in a lurch and costs the city an estimated $3,700 a shift in overtime pay, has apparently been adopted by disgruntled officers as a way to dramatize their demands for more pay.

Some officials speculate it may also be an offhand way of officers gaining through overtime the extra money the city says it cannot afford to pay.

As has been the case with other outbreaks of the "Blue Flu," Capt. Forrest Smith said day shift officers were held over to work Watch Three —the late afternoon and night shift—while graveyard officers would be called in early. (A late check showed officers on the graveyard shift did report for duty Saturday.)

The latest "Blue Flu" outbreak began with the graveyard shift Friday night when only four officers of the 24 scheduled reported for work at 10:30 p.m.

The day shift officers then reported for duty as usual, paving the way for afternoon patrolmen to report in sick.

Of the 49 officers who said they were too ill to come to work, three had suffered minor injuries while on duty Friday, Capt. Smith said.

He said the "sick" policemen were replaced with 49 extra men, pulled from motorcycle duty, three-wheeler duty and held overtime.

The three-wheeler officers, who normally write parking tickets and direct traffic, were put in two-man patrol cars with an experienced patrolmen unless they had had recent prowl car experience, the captain said.

HE ADDED that motorcycle officers patrolled in one-man units, but handled only traffic accidents and other minor calls.

"Our main concern is to see that the city is covered," Capt. Smith said. "We're just doing our job here, trying to protect the citizens."

Though the captain admitted police officials had been in contact with representatives from the city manager's office, he said he did not know if the city planned any disciplinary action against the "sick" officers.

The "Blue Flu" first caught the city by surprise last Monday when only one of 54 patrolmen showed up for duty on the afternoon shift.

City Manager John R. Mansell said then that officers returning to work after an absence would be required to bring a doctor's note substantiating their illness. He said they would not receive sick pay without the note.

Following a lengthy discussion of the matter Tuesday, the City Council issued a statement proclaiming, "There is no justification for any police officer to...shirk his duties and responsibilities."

Nevertheless, the "Blue Flu" continued until officers on all three shifts had taken their turn at sick call. And with each episode of the "flu," officers on the previous shift were given the opportunity to work overtime at premimum pay.

The Long Beach Police Officers Association (POA), bargaining agent for approximately 700 department members, said it did not officially plan or sanction the "Blue Flu," but association president Harry L. Duple called the action "a show of strength and unity."

He charged the council has "refused to negotiate any further" with the POA and said the policemen have been put in the position of taking their case to the people.

Mansell said he believes the city "has gone as far as it will go" and does not expect any more negotiating sessions this year.

The POA is seeking a 10.8 per cent pay raise, retroactive to July 1 of this year, while the city has offered a 7 per cent raise retroactive to July 1 and an additional 2 per cent effective Jan. 1, 1975.

Duple said the POA also is seeking the addition "of at least 100" police officers to the department. He said statistics show the city has increased in size and that more citizens each year call the department for assistance.

Mansell, however, insists the city cannot afford more officers, adding that the number of policeman has increased in the last few years.

In addition to the episodic "Blue Flu," the department is still in the midst of a "slowdown" called by the POA June 14.

BASICALLY, the slowdown means officers on duty take their time answering calls, write fewer traffic tickets and are likely to overlook parking violations.

POA spokesmen, however, stress that the slowdown involves only nonfelony calls. Duple said officers "are doing their usual conscientious job" on felony calls and traffic accidents.

The POA claims the 3-month-old slowdown has so far cost the city half a million dollars in revenue lost from traffic tickets other violations requiring a fine. Mansell says the figure is well below that at about $250,000.

New grand jury member resigns

Joseph Gatlin, who became a member of the Orange County Grand Jury less than three months ago, resigned Thursday. He said he has changed employment and cannot find time to serve.

Santa Ana Superior Court Judge Everett Dickey, who impaneled the jury, said he will draw a successor from a panel of 11 to succeed Gatlin, a security guard.

Boat bilge regulations

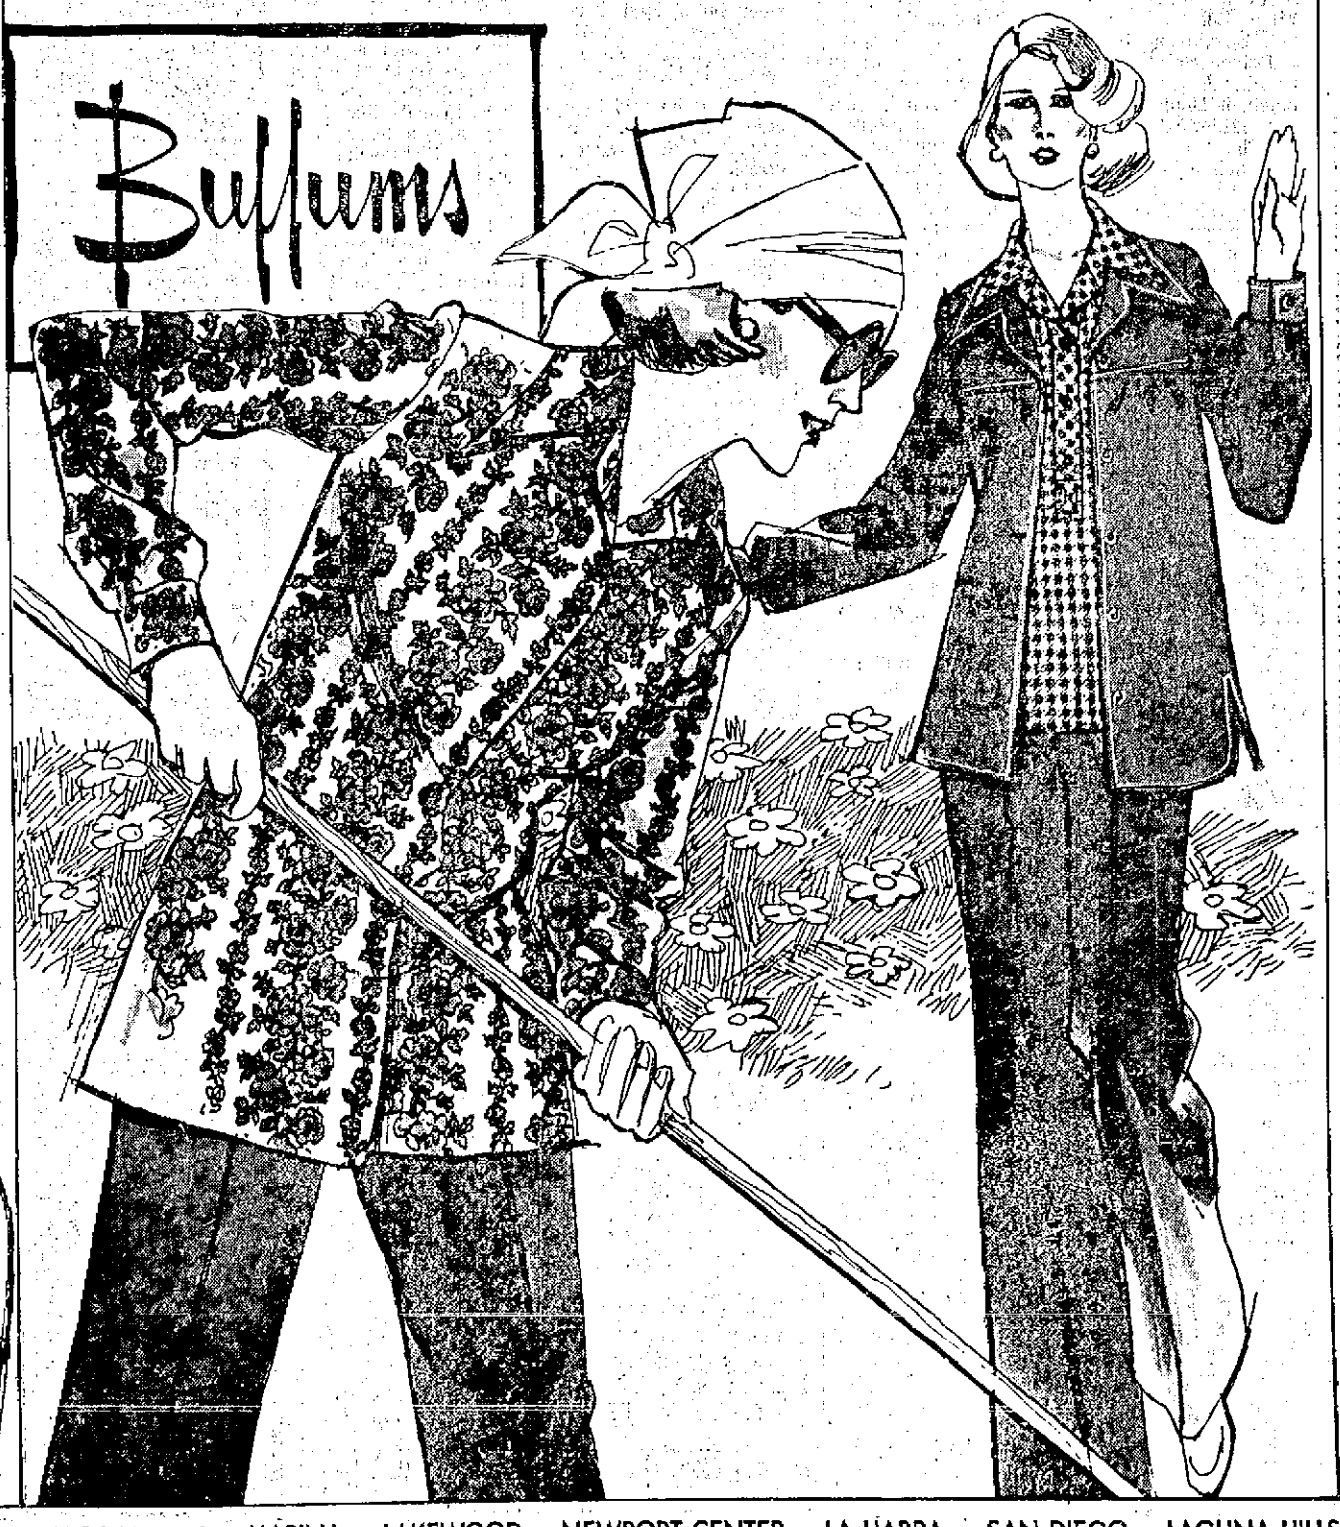

New Coast Guard regulations now require recreational boaters to have a fixed or portable means to discharge oily bilge into a pump-out station.

However, the 11th Coast Guard District's boating safety officer, said a bucket or bailer will fulfill the new regulations, which also require that a placard, available from some marine insurance companies, and marine hardware outlets must be displayed in the engine compartment warning that the discharge of oily waste is prohibited.

GOP 'truth squads' to watch Brown

Associated press

California Republican leaders said in Anaheim Saturday that they will revive their campaign "truth squads" to follow Edmund G. Brown Jr. around the state to point out contradictions in statements by the Democratic candidate for governor.

Assemblyman Robert Badham, R-Newport Beach, said he will head a team of at least 10 Republican state senators and assemblymen who will monitor Brown's speeches and then report alleged inconsistencies.

"We'll take down what 'Junior Brown' says in one part of the state...and point out the inconsistencies when he tells a different story in other parts," Badham said.

Asked if that would operate like the so-called "truth squads" that followed Brown's father during his gubernatorial campaigns of the 1960s, Badham said "It's similar."

He said that, begining next week, Republicans would monitor Brown and wherever possible hold their own news conferences in the same location the same day to "set the record straight."

"In order to force the real Jerry Brown to stand up, representatives of the task force will follow the Democratic nominee from platform to platform across the state in the next two months," Badham said.

He told a news conference at the Disneyland Hotel during the Republican State Central Committee Convention that his task force, named "Accountability '74," will be headed by Assemblyman Gordon Duffy, R-Hanford.

A second anti-Brown campaign by GOP state legislators was announced by Assemblyman Dixon Arnett, R-Redowod City. His campaign task force will visit California newspaper editors and publishers to promote editorial support for the gubernatorial campaign of Republican Houston I. Flournoy.

'Main '76 issue economy'—Ted

By BILL STALL
AP Politicial Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, edging closer to a decision on whether to seek the White House, said Saturday he believes the economy will be the "ultimate issue" in the 1976 presidential election.

The Massachusetts Democrat concluded a two-day California swing in San Francisco, where he helped raise funds for the state party for the current campaign.

The crowds generally were good and seemingly enthused about their chances this November. Kennedy addressed an estimated total of 1,600 persons at San Jose, Monterey and Concord.

He plugged for Democratic congressional candidates at fund-raising events — the tab ranging from $7.50 each to $50 each — in the three key districts.

IN MONTEREY, Kennedy acknowledged he had accelerated by several months the timing of his decision whether to seek the Democratic nomination in 1976. He will make a statement about his plans either late this year or early in 1975, he said.

Kennedy cautioned reporters not to try to interpret the decision as indicating he had decided or was leaning one way or the other. He said he did it because "I felt an obligation to the people of the state of Massachusetts" since his Senate seat will be up in 1976.

Kennedy campaigned for Democrats Norman Mineta in San Jose, Julian Camacho in Monterey and George Miller III in Concord. Then he came to San Francisco to address a private $250-a-couple dinner to raise funds for the state party.

All along the way, Kennedy hammered at the economics issue, challenging President Ford to produce bold programs to fight inflation and unemployment soon.

THE SENATOR, considered the Democrats' leading candidate if he runs in 1976, said the Ford administration so far has failed to reject the economic policies inherited from former President Richard Nixon.

They are, he said, "policies that didn't work for Herbert Hoover, that didn't work for Richard Nixon and they're not going to work for President Ford and we're going to have to change them."

Asked by reporters if he thought Ford's pardon of Nixon would reopen the whole Watergate question as a major issue in 1976, Kennedy said, "I think the real ultimate issue that will be the decisive issue will be the economic issue in 1976."

While he said the presidential pardon had met with overwhelming disapproval, Kennedy said, "I don't think there's any sense of vindictiveness or vengefulness among the people. They just want one system, one standard of law, for the high and the mighty, as well as the ordinary citizen."

Throughout his two-day trip to California, Kennedy has maintained that Ford's July 4, 1976, target date for having the economy under control is inadequate.

A CONCERN with a potential bearing on a Kennedy candidacy—the personal safety of the senator—was raised by entertainer Dinah Shore during a taped interview with Kennedy for the debut of her new television program Oct. 21.

Mindful of the assasssination of his two brothers, Miss Shore told Kennedy: "I lose a lot of sleep over you."

Kennedy said, "You can't be naive about those realities."

But he added, "If you live in that kind of atmosphere and let it control you, you just as well might not be a person. Life is a challenge constantly and it's difficult."

SEN. WILLIAM BROCK
'Pardon Timing bad'

Brock gives Ford benefit of the doubt

United Press International

Sen. William Brock, R-Tenn., said Saturday he believes most members of Congress are willing to give President Ford "a little bit of the benefit of the doubt" on his reasons for pardoning former President Richard M. Nixon.

But Brock, chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee, told a news conference that the timing of the pardon "was not the best in the world from a political sense."

Brock was the keynote speaker at a luncheon of the California Republican State Central Committee in Anaheim where he struck out at big government regulation of private enterprise.

Later, Brock said the President discussed the pardon with Republican congressional leaders this week, but steered clear of disclosing whether Nixon's health played a role in his decision.

Brock, who said he opposed the pardon at this time, said the GOP congressional leaders asked Ford whether the state of Nixon's health played a role in the surprise pardon.

"The President did not wish to discuss the matter," Brock said. "He declined to discuss it."

Mariner again nearing Mercury

PASADENA (UPI) — Mariner 10, still operating despite a half-dozen major problems, swings past Mercury for the second time next Saturday to take a more detailed television look at the planet's ancient surface.

In its first fly-by March 29, Mariner 10 passed 450 miles from Mercury's dark side in a search for an atmosphere and a magnetic field. Saturday's pass will be on the bright side and devoted almost entirely to picture taking.

SCIENTISTS at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, which controls Mariner 10, hope the second pass will add to their knowledge of the planet's surface.

The pictures from the first fly-by showed a surface remarkably like that of the moon — heavily pockmarked with craters ranging up to 860 miles in diameter.

G. Edward Danielson, one of the JPL television science experimenters, said that first close-up look at Mercury "advanced the state of knowledge of the planet to the equivalent of earth-telescope knowledge of the moon.

"The surface was very, very similar to that of the moon and it occurred to us we were looking at a very, very old surface," he said, adding that it could be as much as four billion years old.

The television pictures, combined with scientific readings from other instruments on the spacecraft, indicate that Mercury has a heavy iron core and that much of it is covered by a moon-like layer of silicate dust.

MARINER 10 will start taking pictures three days before its closest approach to Mercury at 30,000 miles. The first 600 pictures will be used for pointing, exposure and sensitivity. Another 300 pictures will be used for extensive calibration. During the actual fly-by mission, 900 pictures will be transmitted back to Earth, one every 42 seconds.

"This Mariner has had more problems than all the Mariners put together," Danielson said, "But we still have accomplished about 95 per cent of the mission."

Will 1975 'be worth it' to farmers

Inflation bigger threat than drought

By DON KENDALL

CHICAGO (AP) — It's too late to do anything about the corn crop or consumer food prices this year, so farmers are looking at 1975. And they wonder if they will get enough fertilizer, baling wire, fuel and other items to produce more food for Americans and much of the world.

Uppermost in their minds, as for most other Americans, is inflation. But they also have special worries — about the things farmers need to produce for national and world markets.

One question is: Will 1975 be worth another trip to the bank and another gamble with weather that proved so fickle this year? In short, will returns on farm commodities be sufficient to reimburse farmers for their swiftly rising expenses?

And today's economic problems have another side for farmers, according to Tony Dechant, president of the National Farmers Union — the unreliability or, at worst, the lack of supply of equipment and goods farmers need for production.

Dechant also says drought this year has masked yet another threat:

"If the drought had not intervened, creating a food shortage disaster for the nation and mankind, farmers would have been ruined in an economic disaster of collapsing grain and cotton prices to accompany the disastrously low livestock and dairy prices that already prevail," Dechant said.

Dechant was one of about 60 delegates to a farm and food conference here Friday. He said the supply problem for farm production items is continuing as a major handicap that will threaten full production next year.

Dechant's views and those of other delegates will be forwarded to President Ford for review at a White House summit on inflation Sept. 27-28.

Their recommendations include overhauling federal tax laws to give more incentive for capital development by business and industry.

Edward Wheeler, president of the Fertilizer Institute, a trade association, said such measures as easing of federal environmental rules are needed if his industry is to expand at the rate of $1 billion a year over the next five years.

"Without the inputs we cannot be expected to produce fertilizer," Wheeler said. "No phosphate rock mines — no phosphate fertilizers. No natural gas — no ammonia. We need bold action by Congress to give us our feedstock, natural gas, for the basic fertilizer, nitrogen."

One fear is that farmers will get shunted aside in a scramble for raw materials as they become more scarce.

For example, if a threatened coal strike materializes this autumn, government experts say its impact would far surpass the difficulties resulting from the Arab oil embargo last winter. Other forms of energy would have to be diverted to maintain the wheels of industry. And that could mean much less for fertilizer, farm fuel and for steel for farmers' equipment.

In another example, Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., says top priority should be given agriculture for natural gas used in producing nitrogen fertilizer and that the gas industry be freed from what Dole says are counterproductive federal regulations.

Dole, addressing the conference Friday, said the government also should encourage steel companies to set priorities for producing what the farmer needs to do his job.

Patrick B. Healy, secretary of the National Milk Producers Federation, said farmers are "almost totally dependent upon nonfarm sources" for production items.

"Forty years ago, a farmer could survive a short crop or low prices if he could scrape together a little hay, some oats, a few dollars for seed and some harness leather," Healey said.

"Today," he said, "all of agriculture looks to the nonfarm economy for its basic needs."

A way out of food cost bind

By WILLIAM ROBBINS
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The inflationary cost of food has disrupted many a family budget, leading Americans to wonder: Does food really have to cost that much? Now economic analysts have an answer for harassed consumers: Maybe not.

The food industry, they say, probably has more opportunities than any other major sector of the economy to eliminate waste and inefficiency — invisible items that add up at the supermarket check-out counter.

One promising area is productivity, where the food industry in general lost ground last year. Compared with the year before, it used just as much labor to move less food from farm to consumer. And food retailing in particular, which had a scant productivity gain of 1.5 per cent in the previous three years, apparently slipped last year.

HOW TO OVERCOME such problems was among the challenges tackled by economists and food experts at the Food Conference on Inflation held this week in Chicago.

One of the things they discussed was a proposal that emerged from the agriculture department on Tuesday:

A new grading plan that could lead Americans to eat leaner meat and thus save millions of bushels of costly feed grains. The plan could mean important savings for both the food industry and consumers.

The food industry as a whole took in $132 billion from U.S. consumers last year, and by year's end it was collecting money for food at an even faster annual pace. Since then, shoppers have noticed that more of their money is going to farmers, but they have failed to realize that an increasing proportion of it is going to the processors and marketers that come between them and the original producer.

The National Commission on Productivity discovered in 1973 that increases in productivity in the food sector were below the national average. Had it not been for farmers' enormous and steady improvements in productivity, the average would have fallen to a far lower scale. Over recent decades farmers have increased their productivity at an average annual rate of more than 5 per cent. Oddly, it was at the farm level that the first step came this week toward cost-saving.

The new meat-grading plan, by reducing the amount of feeding time to fatten cattle, could save as much as 5 cents a pound for beef at current grain prices, the American National Cattlemen's Association has estimated. Others say that by stretching out supplies the plan could reduce grain prices and lead to still further reductions in feeding costs.

As much as farming productivity has increased, however, it offers still further scope for improvement.

But the biggest opportunities for better food efficiency are in the farm-to-consumer sector, the so-called marketing margin.

Packaging, which next to labor accounts for the largest percentage of the consumer's dollar, offers perhaps the greatest chance for savings. Food-packaging costs totaled $10 billion last year. Aside from "convenience" foods (which many consumer studies have found offer little convenience and add substantially to labor costs), packaging is often quite wasteful, contributing to further waste in other operations.

American processed foods are packaged in more than 2,500 different sizes and shapes, according to several estimates, in addition to 1,400 different packages for fresh produce.

This multiplicity of packages aggravates the expenses involved in processing, storing and handling food. And it raises obstacles to automated warehouse systems that could be introduced with present technology.

The diversity of packages also contributes to waste in transportation, which already has inefficiencies of its own. Because of the wide variety of packages, it is nearly impossible to stack goods without wasting space. Often, movement of unevenly stacked pallets, with boxes bulging over edges, leads to damaging of goods.

Railway and truck transportation accounted for $6.1 billion of food costs last year, and a large part of that went for waste movement and idle time.

He 'exorcises' credit card devil

DALLAS (UPI) — One of the main tools Bob Bryan uses in his credit counseling business is scissors. He uses them to snip credit cards in half and toss them into the trash can.

"We take them and cut them in half," said Bryan, executive secretary for Consumer Credit Counseling Service (CCCS), who has helped wean 925 families from their credit cards.

"The couples wince when we do it and half jump from their chairs. It's like cutting off their arms. Their dependency is really pitiful."

BRYAN has been operating his free service since January, handling hundreds of persons with debts totaling $1,260,000.

His clients are usually young marrieds burdened down with thousands of dollars in bills and a list of a dozen creditors. They have tried to do too much too fast — home, furniture and car payments have overwhelmed them.

"It takes 15 minutes to warm them up and set them at ease," Bryan said. "Then we discuss their problems and when we're over that we get to the meat of the thing, that old evil, the credit card. It is usual to pick up 7 to 11 cards each from the husband and the wife."

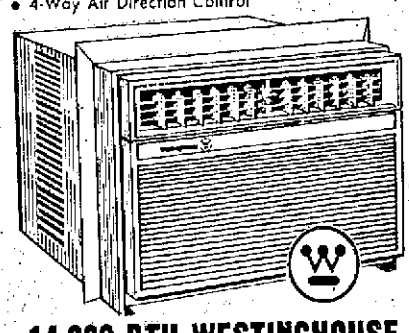

The CCCS is supported by a cross-section of the business community and Bryan said he gets excellent cooperation from creditors "because we operate on good, sound credit principles."

Bryan's solutions often go beyond destruction of credit cards. In severe cases, he suggests moonlighting, or enlisting the aid of non-contributing members of a family.

Criteria drafted for mass-transit grants

By ROBERT LINDSEY
New York Times Service

NEW YORK—The Ford administration has drafted the first national criteria for determining which cities across the country will receive federal aid to build modern, fixed rapid-transit systems and which will have to settle for buses.

The standards, expected to have a major impact on the development of many American cities, were approved this week by senior Department of Transportation officials and are scheduled to be sent to Secretary of Transportation Claude S. Brinegar on Monday for final approval.

The criteria are likely to disappoint many cities that expected Washington to pay 80 per cent of the cost of futuristic commuter lines such as the $1.6-billion San Francisco Bay Area transit system scheduled to open in its entirety Monday after two years of limited operation.

Administration officials say many communities, because of limits on the federal budget and the high cost of building subways and other fixed transit systems, will have to get by with buses—unless they provide large amounts of capital from local taxes.

The administration plan does not identify specific cities, among the more than 20 that are planning or considering major transit systems, that will qualify for federal aid. Nor does it set minimum standards that cities must meet in terms of population, residential density or projected demand on specific commuter corridors.

Instead, cities that want federal aid for so-called "fixed guideway" systems— such as subways, trolley lines, commuter railroads or elevated automatic "people movers"— would first have to provide the government with a detailed analysis of all possible alternative methods of meeting their transit needs.

Then the federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration would evaluate each alternate and decide which type of transit mode—or combination of modes—was most "cost effective" in terms of the community's population, density, terrain, volume of commuter travel and other factors.

Buses will have to do for many cities

The government, in effect, would commit itself to pay for up to 80 per cent of the "cost effective" system. If a city insisted on a fancier transit system, it is expected that the amount promised for the cost effective" system could be used, with local funds, to build it.

According to administration sources, the criteria are designed partly to discourage communities from expecting large amounts of federal aid when, in the judgment of the transportation department, there is too little potential payoff to justify the high cost of fixed transit systems.

However, they said the criteria should, for the first time, give assurances of long-term financial support to cities that have such a need and bring order to the current first-come, first-served approach of alloting transit funds.

Administration officials have often conceded that the system is haphazard, while many urban leaders contend that it has thrown their planning into confusion.

The hopes of many cities to build subways, monorails, conveyor-like "people movers" and other permanent transit lines blossomed in 1970 after Congress passed the nation's first major mass transportation aid program.

This fiscal year, $1.2 billion is available under the program to cities for up to 80 per cent of The capital costs of transit projects. The sum would climb to about $1.5 billion under legislation approved by the House of Representatives. Even with this increase—and before inflation slashed into budgets—administration officials have said it would not be enough for the appetites of all of the cities embarking on fixed transit networks. The cost of such facilities range from under $10 million a mile to more than $40 million.

City and transit industry lobbyists have argued in Washington that the solution is to increase the federal budget for transit capital grants. They have strongly opposed administration hints that it would establish criteria for making the grants.

Nevertheless, the administration has been increasingly discouraging many cities from anticipating vast amounts of aid, especially in cities of medium size or low population density, or where it feels cities want transit programs principally to upgrade their economic health or arrest urban decay.

In a policy speech reflecting the intent of the new criteria, President Ford told a conference of transit leaders in Pittsburgh on Sept. 9 that the "absolute" limit he would accept on spending this year is $1.5 billion, the figure in the House-approved bill.

Government sources said it was impossible to predict how many cities would qualify for grants under the criteria. Previous estimates by Brinegar and other officials have ranged from less than 6 to 15. The "cost effective" standards are expected to rely heavily on population density.

With more than 26,000 residents a square mile, New York City has by far the nation's highest urban population density. But some cities such as Los Angeles, where local leaders envisage construction of a transit network costing $7 billion or more, here are only 7,000 persons a square mile in the central city.

Federal officials speculate that Los Angeles, under the criteria, might qualify for one or two rail corridors several miles long, where there is heavy travel, but would probably have to rely mostly on buses elsewhere or raise billions locally.

Approval of the new criteria came after more than three years of indecision by the government and four months of internal debate.

One faction, including several senior Transportation Department officials and the White House Office of Management and Budget, insisted on firm, fixed criteria under which no fixed-guideway facilities would be financed unless minimum population density, high hourly commuter volume and other factors were met.

U.S. asks multifuel vehicles

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pentagon energy experts have urged the Defense Department to buy more vehicles able to run on several different types of fuel, saying this is the best way to counteract the potential of future petroleum shortages.

In an unclassified 35-page summary of its latest report on the military fuel situation, the Defense Energy Policy Council said the end of the Arab oil embargo last March "will not necessarily ease the shortage of petroleum in the long term."

"THE KEY to fuel availability in a time of changing relative shortages is the flexibility to use alternative fuels, rather than standardization on a single, widely available fuel," the report said.

The council said little of the military equipment was being developed with the ability to use a variety of fuels. It said the services — especially the Navy — were trying instead to standardize on a few fuels for all vehicles, eliminating the need for a wide variety of costly, highly specialized fuels.

"Long-term success in increasing the availability of fuel will depend upon the capability of equipment presently being developed to accept a wide variety of fuels," the report said.

THE REPORT, dated July 22 but only just released, also said the Defense Department was having trouble getting enough coal to heat its installations and might have to invoke the Defense Production Act to commandeer civilian supplies of coal if the situation continued.

The Defense Department is the nation's largest single user of energy. The report predicted that in the current fiscal year the military would account for 3.4 per cent of U.S. petroleum consumption and for 2.2 per cent of all types of energy use.

Nevertheless, it said, Defense Department petroleum consumption for the fiscal year that ended this past June 30 was the lowest it has been in 20 years.

THE REPORT said the military burned an average of 571,000 barrels of oil per day in the past fiscal year. It attributed most of the decrease to the withdrawal from Vietnam, but said conservation efforts attained energy savings "well in excess of the 15 per cent ... objective."

Higher oil prices forced the Pentagon to request a budget supplement of almost $1 billion in the past fiscal year and will push the military energy bill up to a total $4.4 billion this year, the report said.

ALICE MOORE, leader of the crusade against controversial textbooks, regrets that the protest has gotten "so hot and out of hand."

—AP Wirephoto

Textbook protest leader didn't expect violence

By WAYNE SLATER

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — The leader of an antitextbook crusade that has shut down schools, crippled industry and resulted in two shootings says she's afraid the protest has gotten out of hand.

"I'm very concerned that everything has gotten so hot and out of hand," said Alice Moore, a member of the Kanawha County Board of Education. Mrs. Moore started the protest over books that she considers anti-American and immoral.

"In the beginning I never expected that the boycott would really happen," she said. "The whole thing has surprised me."

Mrs. Moore's comments came amid signs Saturday that the protest might be near an end. Pickets who had marched 24 hours a day at bus depots, truck terminals and businesses were withdrawn overnight.

Late Friday night, the Rev. Martin Horan, a spokesman for the Concerned Citizens of Kanawha County, an antitextbook group, urged everyone to return to work and school.

It was not immediately clear whether the protesters, parents and other citizens, had accepted a compromise proposal calling for removal of the controversial texts for 30 days while a committee studied their merit. The demonstrators rejected the plan earlier.

Mrs. Moore's campaign against the books began during the summer and led to the removal of a few texts. The boycott itself started with the opening of school just after Labor Day. On Friday, the 44,500-pupil school system was shut own after days of sharply reduced attendance. Officials said they would decide during the weekend whether to resume classes on Monday.

TWO MEN were shot and one was beaten in connection with the controversy. Coal mines and other businesses were closed by pickets. Protesters at the Smith Transit Corp. tossed rocks and bottles, smashed windows and blocked highways on Thursday, and sheriff's deputies were sent to keep watch.

"I regret the things that have happened in the last few days," said Mrs. Moore, the wife of a fundamentalist Baptist preacher. "There is no justification for threats and violence. You can't lose everything you believe in order to fight. You've got to hold on to the principles you believe in.

"But how in the world could I not tell anybody what was wrong with these books," she asked. "How could I not tell parents the truth?"

At the heart of the dispute are a few dozen of hundreds of textbooks which were approved by the board in June. They include selections from D. C. Heath Co's "Communicating" Series, and supplementary texts for grades 7-12 from McDouglas-Littell & Co.'s "Man" series, Houghton Mifflin Co's "Interaction" series, and Scott, Foresman Co.'s "Man in Literature" and "Galaxy" programs.

Among pieces that have drawn the ire of protesters are those by Allen Ginsburg, Malcolm X, Dick Gregory and Eldridge Cleaver.

And they include, from the "Man" series, Gwendolyn Brooks' "The Preacher: Ruminates Behind the Sermon" which says, in part:

Picture Jehovah striding through the hall
Of His importance, creatures running out
From servant-corners to acclaim, to shout
Appreciation of His merit's glare.
But who walks with Him?
Dares to take His arm.
"To slap Him on the shoulder, tweak His ear,
Buy Him a Coca-Cola or a beer,
Pooh-pooh His politics, call Him a fool?

OPPONENTS say "Jump Rope Jingles and Other Useful Rhymes," a supplementary book for junior and senior high school readers, teaches disrespect for law and order in poems such as the following:

I was standing on the corner,
Not doing any harm.
Along came a policeman
And took me by the arm.
He took me around the corner,
And he rang a little bell.
Along came a police car
And took me to my cell.

Nellie Wood, chairman of the textbook selection committee, called the books excellent.

"This is a comprehensive program for a complex county in which we are dealing with all kinds of students," she said. "It takes care of the average, the below-average, the remedial and the exceptionally advanced student. They've criticized them for being anti-American, but I'd call them extremely patriotic because they represent all types of Americans."

Eva Knapp, an English teacher at George Washington High School, said that educators and administrators had been threatened repeatedly. "We are living again in the climate of a Nazi world," he said. "What we're talking about is the mob controlling everything, the football games, activities, telling everybody the direction of their lives."

THE FOCUS of the antitextbook drive is Upper Kanawha County, a largely rural, blue-collar expanse of coal camps and farmland.

The people are poor. Their heritage is fundamentalist religion, and their politics is the raw-boned unionism of their fathers.

BOSTON NAACP MAY ASK U.S. AID

By PETER A. BROWN

BOSTON (UPI) — Black leaders and city officials met separately Saturday to decide what steps they might take to make a reality of court-ordered school integration in Boston—frustrated for two days by rock-throwing and boycotts involving at first white students and then blacks as well.

The city was calm Saturday after two days of tension and scattered violence.

At least 23 persons were arrested and another 21 injured Thursday and Friday as the nation's oldest public school system began the federally ordered busing plan. Classes were scheduled to resume Monday.

As black leaders discussed the possibility of asking for federal marshals to quell the violence, Thomas I. Atkins, head of the Boston chapter of the NAACP, indicated he would take up the question at a news conference scheduled for today.

More than 54,000 students attended classes citywide Friday, although in South Boston, focus of most of the trouble, officials said that only 4 per cent showed up. South Boston High was previously all white.

Whites stoned busloads of blacks in three incidents in the Hyde Park and Roslindale sections of the city. Six youngsters sustained minor injuries.

Officials said blacks threw rocks at a bus in which 30 white students were riding home from the Martin Luther King Middle School in Dorchester.

The court-ordered busing involves more than 18,000 pupils, about half black and half white. The schools of about 40,000 of the city's 92,000 pupils were changed by the busing ruling.

Mayor Kevin White, in a statement Saturday, said he was more than satisfied that everything possible had been done by city officials to insure students' safety. White said he was "strongly opposed" to the introduction of federal marshals because he felt they were not needed.

Atkins said he would advise black parents on whether to send their children to school Monday and indicated the recommendation would be determined by whether city officials were able to provide adequate protection.

The NAACP filed a preliminary report Friday with U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity, who had ordered the busing plan June 21, advising him of incidents in which black youngsters had been injured despite police protection.

Meanwhile, in Portland, Maine, Clarence Mitchell, national director of the NAACP's legislative program said he was was "100 per cent" against a black boycott.

"I'm 100 per cent against the black parents keeping their children out of the newly integrated schools. That would be a grave and big mistake," he said. "This is no time to retreat from a program designed to provide equal educational opportunity. We must go on. You never get ahead by turning back."

'Egg on his face'

Ford concedes he's in trouble

By HELEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Whatever his motives, President Ford's grant of complete pardon to Richard M. Nixon may well cost a very dear price—his credibility with an American people hungry for a president they can trust.

One week after his bombshell pardon announcement, followed by a series of confusing White House statements intended to soften the blow, the new President has conceded he is in trouble.

Privately, he is reported to have told friends that he wound up with "egg on his face." Publicly, at his golf match at Pinehurst, N.C., with pros in their own game, Ford remarked wryly:

"I SPENT much of today in an unsuccessful attempt to get a hole in one. Tomorrow I'll be back in Washington trying to get out of one."

In one week, Ford has seen his old friend, J.F. terHorst, quit in protest as White House press secretary; has angered Watergate Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski, and has dismayed some of his strongest Republican supporters on Capitol Hill.

Publicly, he and the White House defend the pardon as an "act of mercy" and compassion for a man who already has suffered enough from the indignity of having been the first American president forced to resign.

The White House concedes Ford's decision was unpopular. A massive outpouring of telegrams, letters and telephone calls establish that. But to his political friends and foes, what hurt Ford most was not necessarily the pardon but its timing.

COMPOUNDING the President's problems was the subsequent attempt—eventually disavowed—to defuse the sudden surge of criticism by suggesting Ford seriously was considering a blanket pardon for all Watergate figures.

Senate Democratic Whip Robert Byrd of West Virginia characterized Ford's fall from grace this way: "His believability, which was his greatest asset, has been undermined." One of his party's shrewdest politicians, Byrd was not displeased.

During his confirmation hearings to be vice president, Ford had testified that "I do not think the public would stand for it" should he become president, then pardon Nixon.

EVEN AS late as Aug. 28, Ford told a news conference it would be "unwise and untimely" for him to commit himself to a Nixon pardon until the former President's case had run its course through the courts. It is known Ford intended to pardon Nixon eventually.

Yet two days after that news conference, Ford quietly asked his old friend and former Grand Rapids law partner, Philip W. Buchen, to make discreet inquiries about a pardon. One of the first things Buchen reported back—to Ford's apparent surprise—was that a president could grant a pardon even before an indictment.

No one in a position to know is willing or able to say what prompted Ford to flip-flop on the question of a pardon even before Jaworski had decided whether to seek an indictment against Nixon.

IN THE absence of a complete White House explanation of the train of events behind Ford's decision, there was almost overnight disenchantment among many Americans who had been enamored of the man who swam every morning for exercise and toasted his own English muffins for breakfast.

The same doubts, skepticism and ugly rumors that nearly paralyzed Washington in the depths of Watergate returned to haunt Ford, who said he had hoped the pardon would finally close the books on the scandal.

A special Gallup Poll commissioned by The New York Times indicated that Ford's public popularity fell from 71 per cent to 49 per cent in just three weeks.

THE DARK day that Ford visited Pittsburgh — the day after his fateful announcement — columnist Mary McGrory of the Washington Star-News reported that a machine-tool operator pressed against the airport fence and muttered: "Oh, it was all fixed. He said to Nixon, 'You give me the job, I give you the pardon'."

That charge, heard elsewhere, is denied emphatically by Ford's aides.

Still, rumors circulated that even if Ford never had let Nixon know, he always intended to grant a pardon ultimately. Nixon flew to San Clemente convinced he could expect a pardon.

Another popular explanation of Ford's hasty pardon is that "someone got to him" to change his mind.

WAS IT A personal plea from Nixon's own family, urging the steadfast loyalist Ford to consider the precarious physical and mental health of the lonely man secluded at San Clemente? If it was, both the White House and her husband denied that Julie Eisenhower — Nixon's outspoken and fiercely loyal daughter — was the one.

Spurring speculation that the full story has not yet been told are the seemingly conflicting reports from Washington and San Clemente about whether — and how hard — the White House pressed for a candid Nixon statement about his Watergate role in return for a pardon.

Nixon's son-in-law, David Eisenhower, said "the Ford people wanted some kind of confession from him, but he wasn't willing to concede anything on the legal issues." Nixon, said Eisenhower, "views himself as an innocent man and continues to say so privately."

THE WHITE HOUSE suggested it had hoped for more than Nixon's brief, post-pardon admission of "mistakes and misjudgments," but was content with the rationale that his mere acceptance of a pardon was tacit admission of guilt.

The full story of the Nixon pardon is yet to be told. Ford may shed some light at his second White House conference, tentatively set for next week. Until then, a major clue might be contained in the observation of some senior congressional Republicans that other, unstated "ramifications" had guided Ford's decision.

Late in the week, Ford and political counselor Dean Burch told a delegation of GOP gubernatorial candidates that, in the words of Gov. Winfield Dunn of Tennessee, the President "might be able to explain in the not-too-distant future a number of things about the pardon" not previously disclosed.

FORD'S GOP friends would not explain, but it might not be beyond the realm of possibility that the clincher for Ford was a simple matter of political timing.

Jaworski had informed the White House that it might be a year or more before Nixon—if indicted—could be brought to trial because of prejudicial publicity.

Ford, riding the crest of a new President's lofty public acceptance, might have figured it was best to sacrifice some of his abundant popularity and pardon Nixon now.

Rather now, according to this theory, than risk the certainly heavier political fallout from pardoning Nixon so much later—and closer to the 1976 presidential election.

Perhaps Ford spared some Republicans embarrassment by claiming the pardon decision was strictly his own, but perhaps he might also have fashioned a lasting public embarrassment for himself.

'Ford aides frustrated'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jerald F. terHorst says aides of President Ford, whom he served for a month as press secretary, find it frustrating and even demeaning to have to work through Nixon administration machinery.

Because of the sudden shift of presidential power, terHorst says, decisions of the new administration could be translated into reality only through the organization controlled by White House chief of staff Alexander M. Haig Jr.

"The Ford men naturally find that frustrating and even demeaning," terHorst writes. "And it is especially so whenever Ford moved to change a Nixon-Haig policy."

He made the comments in a new column copyrighted by the Detroit News and Universal Press Syndicate. The syndicate said that terHorst will write three columns a week for the News and that more than 40 newspapers subscribed to the column in the first 24 hours after it was offered.

JERALD F. terHORST
Has New Column

TerHorst resigned as Ford's press secretary a week ago after the President granted a full pardon to former President Richard M. Nixon.

In a separate interview with the Detroit News, terHorst said he was disturbed because he had not been consulted by Ford prior to the pardon decision, saying he could have cautioned the President about the problems it would cause.

He told the News also that presidential counsel Philip W. Buchen had misled him about the pardon, which led him earlier to give false information to newsmen. Without giving details, he said he had been misled twice before on different topics by different staff members.

In his column, terHorst wrote that Haig and his associates were not used to Ford's style, which he described as open and candid and not given to being impressed by lengthy memos and position papers.

"Hardest hit by Ford's style was Haig," terHorst wrote. "Nixon's preoccupation with Watergate had tremendously magnified Haig's authority in the White House and the executive branch of the government.

"For most of the final Nixon year, as Haig himself would agree, he was the acting president of the United States."

Nixon visit doesn't faze Rancho

By JON NORDHEIMER
New York Times Service

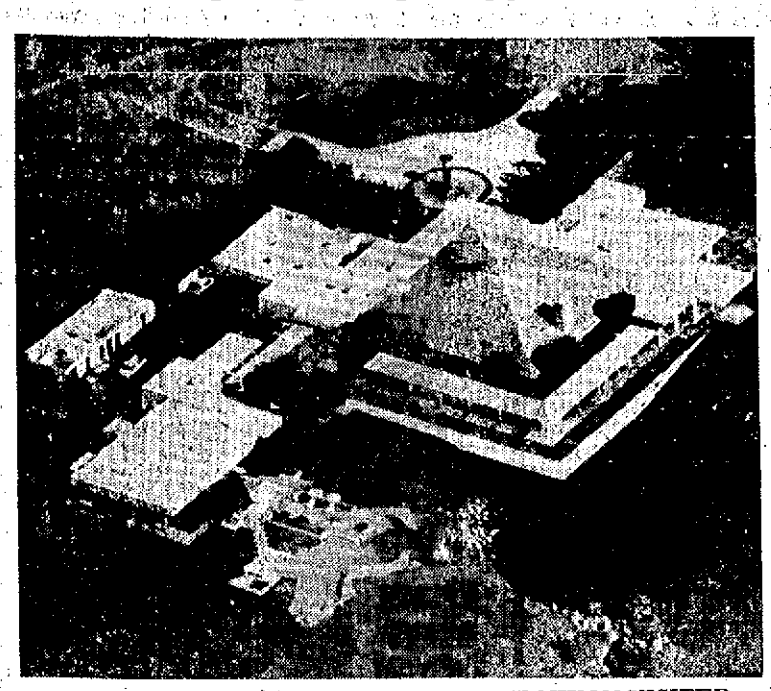

RANCHO MIRAGE—One of the few regular visitors to the desert resorts of the Coachella Valley at this time of the year is the sloping wall of smog that spills through the San Gorgonio Pass at nightfall like a ghostly reminder of the Indian legends in which spirits walk the awesome brow of the San Jacinto Mountains.

September, with the blazing heat of the desert floor reaching 110 degrees or more every day, is the worst time of year for smog, which is pushed 75 miles up the Los Angeles basin along Interstate 10 until the Palm Springs exit, where it thins and hazes the last light of day over the golf courses and comfortable estates of Rancho Mirage.

Wealthy year-round residents of the town, which has a population of 15,400, rent beach houses in coastal retreats like Newport Beach or San Clemente on the other side of the mountains, where the cold Japanese current freshens the breeze that rolls the smog inland.

So it was rather strange that a man with one of the finest estates in San Clemente should choose to journey here in the September doldrums, as former President Richard M. Nixon did last week, spending five days at the baronial winter residence of an old friend, Walter Annenberg, the United States ambassador to Britain.

But even stranger was the way the former president slipped in and out of town, planting Secret Service decoys to slip past photographers and anything resembling the public. That was how Nixon departed under the cover of night Thursday, electing to make the two-hour drive over the mountains to return to San Clemente in darkness, regardless of the concern expressed by some physicians over his phlebitis condition and the obvious discomfort of a long car trip.

WALTER ANNENBERG ESTATE WHERE NIXON VISITED

Nixon's shadowy visit was in contrast with the local memory of another former president, Dwight D. Eisenhower. Ike had a bungalow on the fairway at the El Dorado Country Club in Palm Springs, which, despite its exclusivity, did not make him a recluse, and he almost became a part of the scenery.

Nixon moved in and out of town like billionaire recluse Howard Hughes. Already there is a growing aura of mystery surrounding the man, only five weeks out of the Washington fishbowl, that resembles the cult of the enigmatic Hughes.

"If Nixon keeps it up," remarked Sam Brockway, en route to visiting a patient at the Eisenhower medical center, "pretty soon we'll start hearing stories that his fingernails are eight inches long."

The Annenberg estate is a half mile from the hospital. Nixon dedicated it in late 1971 and its proximity led to speculation that the former president came here to be closer to a major medical facility. But the rumor evaporated when he left for home without going to the hospital.

"Maybe he just wanted more isolation and privacy than he gets in San Clemente," said William Rawritzer, mayor of Rancho Mirage, one of the stepping-stone towns south of Palm Springs that was incorporated last year. Its name is for the illusory oasis that the desert heat conjures on the white sands of the hot valley floor.

Whatever attraction lured Nixon to the desert, the Annenberg estate, called "Sunnylands" by its master, offered a kind of regal comfort that not even the General Services Administration could provide at San Clemente. Built at an estimated cost of more than $3 million nine years ago, it sits at the corner of Bob Hope Drive and Frank Sinatra Drive on 200 acres of lush property made green by a recycled irrigation system. It is surrounded by another 700 acres of desert "buffer" land.

A chain-link fence topped by three strands of barbed wire guards the estate perimeter. It is patrolled 24 hours a day by a large private security force, and privacy is maintained with the help of tall, thick clumps of white flowering oleander bushes and tamarisk trees all along the fence.

The main house contains 25,000 square feet of living space, more than a half acre, but it has only two bedrooms, with the master bedroom taking up 2,000 square feet, about the size of an ordinary house. A guest house has eight bedrooms.

Visitors drive into a motor circle dominated by a fountain with a 25-foot high column copied from the original in a Mexico City museum. The house looms in ranch-style silhouette with Mexican lava walls and a precast concrete tile roof.

Annenberg's prize possession inside is a rare set of Steuben glass with an oriental motif in a display case between his study, which has a wire service printer punching out news of the world, and the living and dining area, with expansive floors of white Italian marble. A central atrium has floor to ceiling tropical plants.

Outside is a 4,000-square-foot patio, large swimming pool, artificial lake and a nine-hole golf course. The ambassador, who is staying in Philadelphia this week, maintains a staff of about 30 at Sunnyland.

The resorts of the Coachella Valley are over-run by celebrities during the cooler season and the presence here of an ex-president draws little interest, even given the circumstances of Nixon's departure from office. Woodrow Wilson once owned 10 acres of property nearby. Besides, there is a sense of awkwardness and embarrassment about Nixon's plight. Clouds of doubt exist about the state of his health and there is a tendency to hope that the man's long hot summer will finally reach a solstice where he will find peace and serenity.

"Either he continues to hide his shame behind walls or he will come out into the sunshine," remarked Wallace Hamsen, a retired Army medical technician. "I don't think he'll go down the drain. He'll rally eventually, that's his nature. The trouble is that he's fallen so low that the trip back up is very long."

Nixon fears hospitalization

NEW YORK (AP) — Air Force Maj. Gen. Walter Tkach said Saturday he decided against hospitalizing Richard M. Nixon after the former President told him, "If I go into the hospital, I'll never come out alive."

He did not say why Nixon feared he would die if hospitalized.

Tkach, Nixon's long-time personal physician, was interviewed by NBC News at his home at Andrews Air Force Base near Washington after he returned from a visit to his patient at San Clemente.

"Mr. Nixon's condition has worsened in the past several weeks despite the pardon," Tkach said, and he "is a ravaged man who has lost the will to fight."

Tkach added, however, that Nixon showed no signs of mental imbalance and is rational.

But, he said in a 30-minute interview with NBC newsman Ford Rowan, phlebitis has caused Nixon's left leg to swell and he is fatigued and very tense.

Cooling it

A couple of Cambodian youngsters cool off at a roadside pump some 36 miles southwest of Phnom Penh, Cambodia, only three miles away from a small village where hot fighting raged between rebel and government troops. Fifteen villagers were killed and six others wounded in the battle, and 28 homes were burned down. —UPI

Ethiopia Communists call for civilian rule

ADDIS ABABA (UPI) — An underground Communist student group called Saturday for a civilian government and a mass public rally in what could be the first major challenge to military leaders who deposed Emperor Haile Selassie.

Student sources said the clandestine group, whose members number an estimated 200, was organizing a demonstration for Monday to urge rapid creation of a provisional civilian government to replace the ruling Armed Forces Committee, which formally ousted Selassie Thursday.

"We don't want to trade one dictatorship for another," a pamphlet circulated by the student group said.

Diplomatic sources said the opposition student movement was growing rapidly and the demonstration could develop into the first real crack in the solid support the military has enjoyed in its seven-month-old gradual coup that slowly stripped Selassie of his power.

"It looks like Monday might be a crunch day," one diplomat said. "It could be the military's first real test. They need the students and can't afford a confrontation."

Military officials relaxed their grip on the capital, withdrawing tanks and armored vehicles from strategic points of the city, extending nocurfew hours, and reopening the international airport.

The show of strength was ordered Thursday, when the 82-year-old emperor, ruler of Ethiopia for 58 years, was placed under house arrest.

Diplomatic sources said they believed Selassie — "The Lion of Judah" and "King of Kings" — was being held with 10 to 16 other members of the royal family at a vacation palace in the air force town of Debre Zeit, 30 miles southeast of the capital.

Lt. Gen. Aman Michael Andom has emerged as the apparent military strongman since Selassie's ouster, but diplomats said the real power could still lie with as yet unidentified officers serving on the estimated 80-member Armed Forces Coordinating Committee.

Europe unity sought

Common Market summit

PARIS (UPI) — Leaders of the nine European Common Market nations started talks Saturday night aimed at preparing a new timetable for European unity.

The heads of state and government arrived at the Elysees presidential palace for a "dinner summit" organized by French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing.

The European leaders arrived by car, Britain's Premier Harold Wilson — the only one to be applauded by a knot of spectators — in a Rolls-Royce and West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt in a three-car cortege.

First to arrive was Common Market President Francois-Xavier Ortoli and last — 18 minutes late — Joop Den Uyl, the Dutch prime minister, who was delayed by the attack by Japanese gunmen on the French embassy in The Hague. The other guests were Poul Hartling of Denmark, Mariano Rumor of Italy, Leo Tindemans of Belgium, Gaston Thorn of Luxembourg and Liam Cosgrave of Ireland, all prime ministers.

The dinner, which is expected to lead to a full-scale formal summit meeting here later this year, was arranged by Giscard d'Estaing as the first step in his ambitious plan for a "relancement" (relaunching) of the drive toward unity, bogged down for the past year by economic crises and political weaknesses.

It was the fourth European summit — and, with no agenda or communique, by far the most informal. Its main task was to begin the job of repairing damage left from previous summits, most notably the 1972 Paris conference that drew up a detailed timetable for "European Union" by 1980.

Almost none of the projects that timetable listed — a regional aid policy, economic and monetary union, energy coordination, ecological cooperation — has been realized. Few observers expect the 1980 deadline to be met.

In this atmosphere, the newspaper Le Monde said, Giscard wants to "review, correct, complete, reinforce and, above all, make precise" the 1972 timetable and invited the other leaders to hear their ideas before making any formal proposals later this year.

Basque guerrillas blamed in bombing

MADRID (AP) — Spanish police blamed the Basque guerrilla group ETA on Saturday for an explosion at a Madrid restaurant that killed 11 persons and injured 71.

"Investigations have so far proved beyond any doubt the attack was planned and carried out by the terrorist organization ETA," said Superior Police Chief Federico Quintero.

He told newsmen police were offering an $18,000 reward for information leading to the arrest of ETA member Juan Manuel Galarraga Mendizabal, 27, a native of Guipuzcoa Province in the Basque country. It was believed the first time the government has offered a reward for information on a wanted person.

Panelists get AMA funding

By JAMES GERSTENZANG

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Medical Association has earmarked at least $25,000 for the reelection campaigns of 10 members of the House Ways and Means Committee, which writes health insurance legislation.

For several years, the committee has been working on a variety of health bills, many of them opposed by the AMA. It recently put the issue aside to work on other measures.

OF THE 10 members singled out by the nation's major medical organization, six joined as sponsors of a health insurance plan supported by the AMA. The measure was one of several offered in addition to the bill proposed by Ways and Means Committee Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark.

The 10 members aided by the AMA are among 21 committee members seeking reelection. At least two, Rep. Richard Fulton, D-Tenn., and Rep. Omar Burleson, D-Tex., are unopposed in the Nov. 5 general election.

The contributions were disclosed in records filed with the clerk of the House. They showed that more than half the money has already been distributed to the candidates.

Fulton introduced the bill favored by the AMA last Jan. 18. His "Fulton for Congress Committee" received a $2,500 contribution from "Independent Medicine's Political Action Committee — Tennessee," the AMA's state political chapter, on July 22.

The congressman won a landslide victory over a state legislator in the Democratic primary.

Burleson, one of the cosponsors of Fulton's bill, received $4,000 from the Texas branch of the AMA's Political Action Committee on April 2. His campaign expenses have totaled $6,414.37 so far this year, according to his funding reports.

Burleson was unopposed in the Texas Democratic primary election.

Rep. Joel T. Broyhill, R-Va., also a cosponsor of the bill, received $5,000 from the AMA's committee, $3,000 from the Virginia Medical Political Action Committee and $2,500 from the Oral Surgery Political Action Committee.

He listed total campaign contributions of $137,817.09.

REP. AL Ullman, the Oregon Democrat who has often directed the powerful committee in the absense of Mills, received his largest contribution to date from the Oregon Medical Political Action Committee, which relayed $1,000 from the AMA. The congressman's campaign war chest totals $16,981.38, according to the Sept. 10 report of the "Re-Elect Al Ullman Committee."

Rep. Joseph E. Karth, D-Minn., received $2,500, about 25 per cent of his listed expenses so far, from the Minnesota Medical Political Action Committee campaign fund on May 9.

Neither Ullman nor Karth were cosponsors of the AMA-supported bill.

REP. Donald C. Clancy, R-Ohio, received $2,000 from the AMA, $2,500 from the Oral Surgery group and $1,000 from the American Dental Political Action Committee — a total that accounts for more than half of the expenses he listed.

Four other committee members are among the House members for whom AMA funds have been earmarked. They are:

Rep. Phil M. Landrum, D-Ga., $2,500; Rep. Bill Archer, R-Tex., $2,000; Rep. John J. Duncan, R-Tenn., $2,000, and Rep. Donald G. Brotzman, R-Colo., $1,500.

Brotzman and Duncan were cosponsors of the AMA bill and Clancy sponsored a similar measure.

Sleep on the deep

I've gone to many waterbed stores in this area trying to find out whether waterbeds are good or bad for your back and posture, but I always seem to get the run-around. What are the pros and cons of waterbeds? W.M.H., Long Beach.

The waterbed jury is still out and it's still too early to tell what the effects of sleeping on a waterbed are, according to several sources contacted by ACTION LINE. However we were able to learn that waterbeds have been used successfully in several hospitals for burn victims and paralyzed patients and most recently to ease labor pains with expectant mothers. A spokesman for the Stanford University Sleep Disorder Clinic, a leading sleep research institute, said, "I have yet to see a convincing study on waterbeds. We will be conducting an in-depth project with waterbeds next year, but as far as we know very little in the way of waterbed research has been completed." A local orthopedic specialist said, "I know of no real studies which have been done on waterbeds. But I've heard good things from over two dozen patients and can't recall ever hearing a negative comment. However, without more information I would hesitate to recommend a waterbed for therapeutic purposes. At this point it's something each individual should decide for himself."

The unshod

I ordered a pair of white golf shoes from Dynaflyte Golf Headquarters in New Hyde Park, N.Y. in mid-January and paid them $27. They sent a pair of brown and white shoes as a substitute. I returned them asking that they refund my money if they couldn't send the ones I ordered. I wrote again in June and on July 16 they said I would get the shoes in 10 days. I still don't have them. Please help. A.A., Long Beach.

You should have a refund soon. ACTION LINE phoned Dynaflyte and was told they were still out of your size—a "very average size"—and couldn't say when they would have them. They said they were preparing a refund for you and suggested you reorder the shoes and by the time the order was processed, they might be available.

Responsible

I just received a relative responsibility form for my parent who is a recipient of Supplemental Security Income. Why would one adult child get the form and not the other? M.L., Long Beach.

A spokesman for the Los Angeles County Department of Public Social Services told ACTION LINE: "Relative responsibility liability applies to the adult children having separate incomes and residing in California. If the son is working and could afford to make the payments he would have a liability, while a daughter married and not working is not liable, nor is her husband. However, if she were to get a job and make enough to be deemed able to pay, she would be liable. Of two sons, one residing in California and the other in another state, both with separate incomes, only the Californian is liable as the state's jurisdiction is limited."

On the tour

Did Bob Hope get paid for his annual Christmas entertainment tours to armed forces bases overseas? E.R., Long Beach.

The 71-year-old comedian paid all expenses, except for transportation, for his annual tours overseas, according to a public relations spokesman for Hope. The Department of Defense provided him with transportation as it does for all performers who travel with USO-sponsored shows. Performers who accompanied Hope donated their time and the comedian footed the bill for the entire troupe's expenses on the road. The entertainers were paid only for their spots on the televised special of the show which Hope produced. He was reimbursed partially by sponsors who bought spots on the telecast. For more than 26 years Hope entertained servicemen overseas at Christmas.

Beneficiaries to vote on Rocky's confirmation

By ED ZUCKERMAN
Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Several Senate Republicans who will be voting on Nelson Rockefeller's confirmation as vice president have received campaign contributions from Rockefeller and members of his influential family.

Just this year alone, Rockefeller has contributed to the campaigns of at least three Republican senators and a fourth Republican senator has received campaign gifts from other Rockefeller family members.

The vice president-designate has donated $1,000 to Sen. Milton Young, R-N. D., $500 to Sen. Peter Dominick, R-Colo., and he provided his palatial Washington estate for a fund-raising party in June for Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md.

Sen. Jacob Javitz, R-N. Y., has received contributions from three members of Rockefeller's family — $4,500 from John D. Rockefeller III; $750 from Laurence S. Rockefeller and $1,500 from David Rockefeller.

ALL THE contributions were made earlier this year, well before Rockefeller was selected by President Ford to become the No. 2 man in his administration.

However, the gifts may pose a conflict-of-interest problem for the past and present recipients of Rockefeller money. It has been customary for senators to abstain from voting for confirmation of contributors named to federal posts.

In 1968, the year they last sought reelection, Mathias and

EXCLUSIVE

Javits received contributions from Rockefeller family members. Mathias received $1,000 from the vice president-designate; while David, John III and Laurence gave $3,000 apiece to Javits.

IN 1970, Nelson Rockefeller donated to three New York GOP House members who still are serving in Congress and will be voting on his confirmation. He donated $1,000 to Rep. Jack Kemp, former quarterback of the Buffalo Bills football team; $2,000 to Rep. Peter Peyser, and $3,000 to Rep. Ogden Reid. Reid switched to the Democratic Party several years ago in protest of the Nixon administration.

Numerous other House and Senate members, according to the Citizens Research Foundation, received financial support from the Rockefellers in the 1972 election:

— John D. Rockefeller III, chairman of the philanthropic Rockefeller Foundation, donated $5,000 to Peyser and $2,5000 to Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill. His son, John IV who is a West Virginia Democrat and is married to Percy's daughter, Sharon, gave $3,000 to his father-in-law.

— David Rockefeller, who is chairman of the Chase Manhattan Bank, donated $1,500 to Rep. William Cohen, R-Maine; $1,000 to Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich.; $1,000 to Sen. John Tower, R-Tex.; $1,000 to Percy and $3,000 to Peyser.

— Laurance S. Rockefeller, a conservationist and trustee of Princeton University, donated $500 to Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass.; $1,000 to Percy, and $5,000 to Peyser.

Kissinger tied to delay in Chile aid year on Chile before a Senate foreign relations subcommittee, in which John M. Hennessy, then an assistant secretary of the treasury for international affairs, had the following exchange with Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, the subcommittee chairman:

Church: "So the position of our government was the state of the economy in Chile was such that Chile was not credit-worthy and that no further loans should be made owing to the general condition of the economy. Is that correct?"

Hennessy: "That is correct."

A number of sources characterized the Nixon administration's curtailment of credit and aid to Chile as a political decision initiated shortly after Allende formally took office in November 1970.

"There was a range of alternatives being considered," one source recalled. "The options ranged from a Marine-type invasion to massive infusions of money. When Allende became president, everybody breathed a sigh of relief because we hadn't done anything."

"Once he was president, then there was set in motion a carefully planned program led by Kissinger," the source added. "He personally chaired—for maybe as long as 10 or 12 weeks—a working staff group dealing with economic sanctions. It was our understanding that the president was extremely concerned about Allende and Henry was showing him that he was on top of it."

The sources said the working group included officials at the assistant secretary level from the State Department, the Pentagon and the Treasury Department as well as Kissinger and other National Security Council aides. During that period, sources said, a formal National Security Council Decision Memorandum ruling out economic aid to Chile was issued.

Normally, the interagency unit would have been under the chairmanship of the assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs. But, the sources said, the assistant secretary at that time, Charles A. Meyer, had fallen into disfavor with the White House because of his resistance at meetings of the 40 Committee to some of the clandestine CIA activities authorized against the Allende government.

"It was a big blow to the State Department," another source said. "It was a Kissinger group.

"It stuck in my mind because Kissinger, in effect, became a Chilean desk officer," the source added. "He made sure that policy was made in the way he and the president wanted it.

"State's noses were out of joint because it showed the White House's distrust in their ability to implement its policies," this source said. In a way, the source conceded, the distrust was partly justified.

"Sure," he added, "there were a lot of guys who wouldn't have enforced the economic policies so vigorously as Kissinger. They would have dragged their feet so some loans and aid would have gone through. Kissinger wanted to be sure that the bureaucracy was under control."

Mrs. Popeil, friend guilty

plotting a crime in California that is to culminate outside the state doesn't constitute conspiracy. Almost all the testimony in the case was that the alleged killing was to occur in Popeil's plush Chicago penthouse. A single conversation recounted by Reed indicated Ayers had told him Popeil could be made available "on any street corner in California at any time."

Nor did the solicitation convictions surprise either side, mainly because of a Jan. 6 tape recorded conversation between Peeler and the two defendants. In it Mrs. Popeil outlined details of the apartment, and she and Ayers discussed killing Popeil with an overdose of a sleeping drug.

IT WAS the immediate jailing of the two that shocked the defense and prompted Mrs. Popeil's attorney Robert Green to say "This is unusual to say the least ... I personally think the judge abused his discretion. There is no reason to think she would not show up, no indication she is a menace to society. And there is a substantial possibility of reversal by an appellate court."

Ayers' substitute attorney, Dep. Public Defender John Vacca, concurred with Green and added that "there is no indication whatever that he is a menace to society, and it would be silly for him to flee in view of the probability of an appeal."

However, Brandler declared, "I will not permit anyone convicted of soliciting a murder as clearly outlined on the Jan. 6 tape to go free pending sentencing. Solicitation is a felony until it is ruled a misdemeanor."

He also called the Buffum decision "bad law" but said "we have to follow it."

The verdicts ended 31 days of trial which began July 22 after the case was transferred from an overcrowded Long Beach calendar.

The case in many ways resembled a 1950 B movie plot.

THERE WERE the three dramatic ingredients: money — lots of it, sex (implied in testimony) and violence, discussed on tapes and on the stand.

There was the pretty blonde, estranged from a husband worth $9 million, and the personable, attractive pilot she met on a weekend lark. There were the maroon Rolls Royce, the white Jaguar and the blue Mercedes in which the blonde and the pilot rode around Long Beach. And there were the two small-time con men willing to do anything for a buck, including the proposed "contract," according to defense testimony.

There were private eyes hired by the rich husband, doublecrosses, plots and counterplots, and dialogue as colorful and unexpurgated as anything Mickey Spillane devised.

And there was Mrs. Popeil herself, looking like something from a 1960 Harper's Bazaar, with a wardrobe of designer clothes, diamonds from Cartier and two dozen furs from the best shops.

A small-boned, blue-eyed country girl from Alabama, she had told Popeil before they married in 1954, "I might be expensive," — and she was. Her allowance prior to her separation was $5,000 a month and a like amount she could run up in charge accounts.

The man who paid the bills and sued her for divorce appeared as a surprise witness and admitted he would have been glad to have Ayers "take her off my hands."

THE DEFENSE contended from the beginning that it was Popeil who engineered an entrapment plan against Mrs. Popeil and Ayers in order to get evidence for his case. They claimed he had hired Peeler to help him, and one witness told Ayers Popeil "would even plot his own murder in order to trap you and Eloise."

However, it was the tape recordings by Peeler that seemed to have had the most impact. Two of these were set up by Long Beach police Jan. 6 and 7 after Peeler had agreed to cooperate with officers.

Four other tapes of conversations involving Reed and Ayers, will be a major basis for the defense appeal, Green said. He claimed Saturday that they should not have been ruled admissible because the testimony of an accomplice must be corroborated. Green said he would also cite procedural matters, other rulings on admissibility and jury instructions as grounds for his appeal.

The surrogate counsel for Ayers said he could not indicate whether or not the public defender's office would carry his appeal but said it is probable that an appeal would be requested by someone, possibly a private attorney.

FPC said negligent on gas price hikes the Justice Department, and a delay in approving all pending natural gas price increases.

"Most, if not all, of the nation's 40 million gas bills have been seriously and adversely affected by the irregularities revealed by GAO and shown to be commonplace at the FPC," Moss said in a statement released with the report.

"Cumulative financial exploitation of consumers by an industry was aided and abetted by the very federal agency charged with protecting the public against monopoly and profiteering."

Natural gas prices have risen steadily in recent years, and renewed attempts by the industry to raise gas prices now are under way. The FPC, like some other government regulatory agencies, has been criticized in the past for adopting policies said to be favorable to the industry it regulates.

The 115-page report, titled "The Need for Improving the Regulation of the Natural Gas Industry and Management of Internal Operations, Federal Power Commission," was obtained by the New York Times from Moss.

The GAO, which is the investigative arm of Congress, said in the report that the FPC had:

—Improperly granted natural gas producers authority to sell gas at unregulated prices. In many such cases, it said, the prices charged were above regulated levels.

—Tolerated widespread non-compliance by its officials with its own "standards of conduct regulations" intended to prevent conflicts of interest.

— Failed to take timely action on certain rate applications, with the result that customers paid higher prices for natural gas "than may be just and reasonable."

The report noted, however, that John M. Nassikas, chairman of the commission since 1969, disagreed with some of the criticism of higher prices gas companies were allowed to charge their customers. Nassikas argued that the FPC had the right to waive certain requirements in emergency situations, but the GAO did not support his position.

"To accept FPC's interpretation of its authority would, in GAO's view, make a sham of the regulatory process," the report stated.

The lengthy report was delivered to Moss Friday. According to Elmer Staats, U.S. comptroller general, who signed the covering letter. The report also was being sent to a number of congressional committees and government agencies, including both the House and Senate committees on appropriations.

At the heart of most of the alleged improper approvals of rate increases, the report said, were a series of unauthorized extensions of "emergency gas sales contracts." Such contracts were designed to stimulate increased delivery of gas by allowing higher prices, but are carefully circumscribed by FPC regulations.

REGARDING conflicts of interest, the report said only 61 of 125 officials made proper disclosures when they were hired.

Most of the commission's officials, the report said, had "failed to file required financial disclosure forms for several years," with only 7 of the 125 upper level officials filing annual disclosure forms properly.

The GAO said its investigations had resulted in 12 FPC officials being directed by their office of personnel programs to divest themselves of financial interests "that could conflict with their duties." Seven additional officials owned securities the GAO said it believed should be prohibited, and they subsequently were notified to sell them, the report said.

In two other matters the GAO was asked to investigate, it said it found new grounds for criticism of the FPC.

Hannaford calls pardon 'illegal'

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Mark W. Hannaford, Democratic nominee for Congress, 34th District, Saturday announced individual endorsements by Lakewood City Council members and expressed strong criticism of the Nixon pardon.

Noting that he studied constitutional law "under one of the most renowned Nixon apologists in the country (Alexander Bickel)," Hannaford said he is sure that even Bickel "was astounded by the blanket pardon by Gerald Ford of the man who elevated Ford from congressman to president of the United States.

"There is nothing to pardon unless the legal process has run its course. Certainly the President's power to pardon could not apply until specific guilt has been established. A double standard of justice is indeed established by pardoning one and not the rest, but to say that Richard Nixon is pardoned for all crimes for which he might be accused and convicted over an extended period of time vastly compounds the injustice in addition to being illegal."

Hannaford said he is particularly offended "by the fact that the former president apparently negotiated this all-inclusive pardon without making any admission whatever to an illegal act.

"Even Spiro Agnew is now self-righteously claiming that he was not found guilty of any crime even though he in effect pleaded guilty in order to bargain his way out of prison. Nixon is indicating the same refusal to admit guilt and is to go free even though some 50 others stand accused or convicted for doing the bidding of the Nixon administration, and several are languishing in prison.

"I wish," said Hannford, "that Watergate had never happened and we could have been spared this dreadful experience, but it did happen and the law should be carried out. If Mr. Nixon wants to save the nation the ordeal of going through the torment of a trial he could shorten the process by pleading guilty to specific crimes.

"Only after such a guilty plea could the term 'pardon' aptly be used and then it should be considered only in light of legal justice for all lesser members of the Nixon administration."

Lakewood Mayor Wayne E. Piercy, noting Hannaford's eight years on the council, including four as mayor, said, "Under his leadership and ability to understand the needs of our residents, Lakewood built new parks, improved services to citizens and remained the safest city in California...even though the city maintained one of the lowest property taxes in the State of California."

Councilman William Young said Hannaford's involvement in community affairs prior to council service "gave him a knowledge of the people not many officials truly acquire."

course of complete candor, including full disclosure of my personal finances."

He suggested all candidates and officeholders would do well to follow his example, adding, "I realize that some individuals may regard publication of their income tax returns as an invasion of privacy. But I think that we must face the fact that the public, with considerable justification, is very skeptical of those who would serve in government.

"Any candidate for office had better be able to prove that he has paid his taxes, that he has not used convenient loopholes to reduce or avoid his tax liability and that he has no entangling investments which could lead to a conflict of interest."

Offill, chief assistant to State Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, said his financial documents are available at Republican Headquarters, 3386 Orange Ave. He said they reveal that he had a 1973 adjusted gross income of $19,521 on which he paid taxes of $2,890, and a 1972 adjusted gross income of $17,928 with taxes of $2,477, claiming the standard deduction in both years.

"As I stated during the primary election campaign, I intend to publicly disclose the status of my personal finances each year that I hold office. I have nothing to hide now and I will have nothing to hide in the future.

"I firmly believe that the individual voter wants proof that a person seeking public office is paying his or her fair share of taxes and that the officeholder will vote according to conscience and constituent opinion rather than what is good for the officeholder's pocketbook. I am providing that proof now. I shall provide it in the future."

'Open convention' opposed

United Press International

The California Republican Party Saturday declared itself opposed to "an open" GOP presidential nominating convention in 1976.

The action was interpreted as a boost for President Ford and Vice President-designate Nelson A. Rockefeller and a loss for supporters of California Gov. Reagan who still would like to see him on the 1976 GOP ticket.

On a voice vote, delegates to the fall convention of the Republican State Central Committee meeting in Anaheim defeated a resolution calling for a "free and open" convention "with no privileges of tenure granted to the appointed incumbents," Ford and Rockefeller.

Shortly after rejection of that measure, most delegates to the two-day convention scattered, leaving about 150 members to vote on remaining resolutions.

State Republican Vice-Chairman Paul Haerle announced that the action of the remaining delegates on the resolution would be accepted by the Central Committee's executive committee at its next meeting.

Other resolutions adopted included:

—Amnesty: Declared opposition to any "blanket amnesty" for draft evaders and Vietnam war military deserters.

—Guns: Deplored registration of firearms and called for repeal of federal gun control legislation that "harrasses the honest citizen rather than inhibits felonious violence."

—commend: Praised Ford and Reagan for their support of women for leadership positions in government.

—Farm: Called for enacting "effective" farm labor legislation to provide secret ballot union representation elections and prohibit secondary boycotts of farm products.

—Teachers: Announced opposition to Democratic-ponsored legislation that would permit one teacher organization or union to be the exclusive bargaining agent for teachers with the school boards of trustees.

Obscenity bill said favored

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Assemblyman Bill Bond, R-Long Beach, said Saturday his August mail survey of his 39th District's registered voters, showed 84 per cent of respondents favoring passage of Assembly Bill 4221, which continues prohibitions to protect children from obscene materials but exempts from prosecution the purveying of such materials in separate facilities where an adult would reasonably expect to find such materials.

Bond said there was vigorous protest over the possibility of reserving sections of publicly-owned beaches for nude sunbathing as "immoral use of public property and that it would lead directly to sex perversion, rape and child molestation."

There was substantial criticism, Bond said, of the state's new program requiring installation of smog control devices on 1966-70 automobiles. Objections were based on anticipated added maintenance and repair costs, expectations of reduced mileage and the expense of purchasing and installing the devices.

Criticism continued on legislative salary increases and pension benefits, especially those to several relatively young lawmakers leaving office this year. "There was a solid expression of support for my legislation that would have taken all authority away from legislators to set their own salaries, pensions and other fringe benefits," Bond said.

Here are the percentage votes from the 6,837 (about 7 per cent) respondents of 101,875 queried.

Pornography—Would you vote for AB 4221? Yes, 84 per cent; No, 16.

Nudity—Should areas on public beaches be reserved for nude swimming and sunbathing? Yes, 35; No, 65.

Government services—Should all governmental offices providing direct services to the public (for example, Department of Motor Vehicles) be required to remain open on Saturdays or at least one evening of the week? Yes, 86; No, 14.

Voting—Should cross-filing (allowing candidates for a public office to register in the primary elections of more than one political party) be reinstated? Yes, 51; No, 49.

Ballots—Should space be provided on ballots so voters could indicate that they do not favor any of the candidates running for a particular office? Yes, 72; No, 28.

News sources—Should reporters be granted immunity from revealing sources of their news stories? Yes, 65; No, 35.

Daylight hours—Year-around daylight saving time is scheduled to end in 1975. Should it be continued? Yes, 64; No, 36.

Motorcyclists—Should motorcycle riders and passengers be required to wear crash helmets? Yes, 80; No, 20.

Influence—In your opinion, who exercises the greatest influence over government? Big business, 40 per cent; Organized labor, 25; Both have approximately equal influence, 35.

REAGAN HAILED AT CONVENTION

Associated Press

State Republican leaders paid a formal, final tribute to Ronald Reagan as "the greatest governor in the history of California" in a prepackaged show that GOP State Chairman Gordon Luce said was prepared by Reagan's own staff.

The 12½-minute mixed media show with a sound track narrated by actor Jack Webb highlighted the general sessions of the Republican State Central Committee's final convention during the Reagan administration.

Reagan, however, was one of the very few California Republican leaders who did not attend the two-day convention Friday and Saturday in Anaheim.

His wife, Nancy, accepted a plaque for her husband and told 800 dinnerguests, "It has been a great eight years. The last eight years have been for him the most challenging, most interesting, most fascinating, most rewarding and at times the most frustrating of his whole life."

The film strip, "The Reagan Years," spanned his career from his sportscasting days with radio station WHO in Des Moines, Iowa, through his time as a movie and television actor and to his administration in Sacramento.

The three-screen slide show and motion picture segment ranged all the way from film of Reagan running for a touchdown in the "Knute Rockne Story" to tributes from Sen. Barry Goldwater, Nelson Rockefeller and state schools chief Wilson Riles.

Vermont Bar backs legal 'pot'

BRETTON WOODS, N.H. (AP) — The Vermont Bar Association endorsed a proposal Saturday that would allow marijuana to be sold to persons 18 years old and older at state liquor stores.

The association, ending its three-day convention here, also unanimously asked President Ford not to grant any more pardons in Watergate-related cases until the normal judicial process is completed. The lawyers criticized Ford's decision to pardon former President Nixon.

The resolution calling for the legalized sale of marijuna was one of four marijuana-related resolutions recommended by the association's Junior Section of young lawyers.

John Downs, the president of the Bar Association, said the other measure which was approved called for the Vermont Department of Liquor Control to supervise the distribution of marijuana through state liquor stores.

The Bar Association also suggested that the sale of marijuana be subject to regulations regarding purity, potency and price, Downs said.

The convention rejected a resolution urging law enforcement officials and judges to "adopt an immediate policy of de facto decriminalization of marijuna."

Downs said that the majority, in voting against this resolution, took the position that the Bar Association should not tell judges they should not enforce the law.

The other defeated resolution recommended clearing the criminal records of those already convicted or charged with violations of marijuana laws that have since been changed.

Brown 'running against whole GOP'

By DOUG WILLIS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — There's no mistaking the fact that Edmund G. Brown Jr. is the Democratic candidate for governor of California — Democrat with an extra large capital D.

And the 36-year-old son of California's last Democratic governor is running this year against the entire Republican party, not just GOP standard-bearer Houston Flournoy.

Brown does not see the campaign for governor as a contest between two candidates who, in their first face-to-face debate this past week, agreed upon more issues than they disagreed.

Instead Brown paints his race against Flournoy in his speeches throughout California as a much broader and more fundamental struggle between two competing philosophies.

BROWN SAYS he stands for the "tradition of economic justice and progressive social change" embodied in the party of former Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt, Harry Truman, John F. Kennedy, and Lyndon B. Johnson. He says Flournoy stands for the bankrupt economic and social policies and morals of the party of Richard Nixon, Spiro Agnew and Ed Reinecke.

It is in a sense a traditional Democratic campaign — appealing to voters as the candidate of the party of working men and women, running against the party of big business.

Plus, this year, the party of Watergate.

In the same sense, Flournoy is conducting a traditional Republican campaign — painting his opponent as a big spender who ultimately will take more tax dollars out of the voters' pockets. He describes himself as the prudent watchdog against runaway government spending.

BUT THERE are differences this year.

Flournoy seldom mentions he is a Republican, and he talks constantly about his opponent.

EDMUND BROWN JR.

Brown hammers away often loudly and with emphasis on the fact that he is the Democratic candidate. He is campaigning for governor against the party of Richard Nixon, and he mentions Flournoy only occasionally — almost as an afterthought.

The apparent Brown strategy is simple. Fifty-six per cent of California voters call themselves Democrats. That represents a million voters more than Republicans, independents, Peace and Freedom Party and American Independent Party voters combined.

ALL BROWN has to do to become California's next governor is to convince those Democrats who have voted Republican the last eight years to "come home" to their party.

Brown's speeches are sprinkled with frequent references to Roosevelt, Truman, Kennedy and Johnson. And his favorite phrases have a familiar ring from past campaigns:

—"It's time to wake up this state and put it back to work...

—"Let's start in Sacramento (with a Democratic administration in 1975) and send a message to Washington that it's time for a change...

—"South Gate is coming home to the Democratic party along with the rest of California.

—"The winds of change are blowing across San Clemente and they are going to blow right up to Sacramento.

—"I'll bring a spirit and heart to the state of California. It's time for a change, time for a new spirit."

When Brown does talk about his opponent, it is seldom about Flournoy alone.

Brown told supporters in Imperial County that their savings are being ravaged by inflation "because of the bankrupt policies of Nixon, and Agnew, and Ford, and Reagan, and Reinecke, and Flournoy."

—In both campaigns the issues where the two candidates have clearly differed are getting relatively little attention. That includes capitol punishment, which Flournoy supports and Brown says he will implement only reluctantly and with compassion; lower marijuana penalities, favored by Brown and opposed by Flournoy; and the mandatory sentencing initiative, opposed by Brown and supported by Flournoy.

But on the issues both candidates talk about the most, few clear differences have emerged.

Both say the state's budget surplus should be preserved as a hedge against inflation and tax increases; both favor equal funds for rich and poor school districts, but neither yet has a specific proposal; both oppose President Ford's granting a pardon to Nixon; and both support use of state bonds to finance low-interest home loans for low- and middle-income Californians.

Foes call it 'Junketeering'

The fringe that makes Congress cringe

By ED ZUCKERMAN
Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Foreign travel at government expense — it is the fringe that makes Congress cringe.

On almost any day, lawmakers who practice the art of foreign travel fly off from Dulles International Airport or Andrews Air Force Base to attend an international conference or inspect a U.S. installation in some remote or exotic corner of the globe.

They rarely call attention to the fringe benefit, which is called "junketeering" by those few lawmakers who oppose the practice.

Earlier this year, while a senator was off on a globe-circling jaunt, his office issued daily press releases with Washington datelines, giving the impression he was busy with legislative work.

Once in awhile, though, the otherwise quiet junket can run amuck and create a front page headline or two back home.

SUCH was the case a couple years ago when members of the House Education and Labor Committee were touring educational facilities in the Soviet Union. Former Rep. James Scheuer, D-N.Y., departed from their itinerary to meet some Soviet Jewish intellectuals and was invited by the host country to leave. Same with Rep. Earl Landgrebe, a conservative Indiana Republican who was arrested by Soviet police for distributing Russian-language Bibles on Moscow streets.

To give foreign excursions officials status and eligibility for government money, the trips must be approved by the House or Senate.

When the travel resolutions are presented for debate, the familiar refrains of opposing viewpoints are heard.

While most congressmen would have less said about the subject, the chief protagonists in recent years have been Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, who feels junkets are a waste of the taxpayer's money, and Rep. Frank Thompson, D-N. J., who feels foreign travel can be a broadening experience.

An oft-quoted confrontation between Gross and Thompson, who really admire each other in private, came when Gross objected strenuously to sending a delegation of House Education and Labor Committee members to an International Labor Organization (ILO) meeting in Geneva, Switzerland, several years ago.

"I WOULD like to say that I can attest to having been a delegate to the ILO on four occasions," Thompson taunted. "The weather at this time of year is excellent — it is really beautiful. On some days one finds a little cloudiness, and it is difficult to see Mount Blanc from Geneva."

Thompson later teamed up with another ILO participant, Rep. John Ashbrook, R-Ohio, in a practical joke against Gross, who is the House's curmudgeon-in-residence. They introduced a resolution calling for creation of a one-man congressional committee, specifying Gross as chairman, to make overseas inspection trips.

Foreign travel at government expense can also be a fringe benefit for top congressional aides who sometimes travel with their bosses.

Not too long ago, a senator asked his aide which staff member should be chosen to accompany him to the South Pacific.

"I really don't know. Why don't we discuss it while we're there?" the aide responded.

THE MERE fact that congressmen do travel is not sufficient cause for embarassment — few would argue that U.S. foreign policy should be drawn by persons who are unfamiliar with the character of world leaders and the nature of governments and peoples elsewhere. Rather, it is the frequency and purpose of travel and the lavish treatment they receive that makes for squirming.

Congress approves funds to pay for travel and living expenses. Members are given an allowance of $75 a day in local currency. And U.S. embassies are prone to use their official entertainment allocations to show a little extra hospitality to a congressman.

But there has always been a final reckoning for junketeers. It occurred when each committee published a travel report in the Congressional Record, listing the travelers and their destinations, the costs involved and the purpose of their trip.

Earlier this year, however, the disclosure requirement was quietly repealed by an amendment to the 1974 State Department appropriation bill. Met by a storm of protest when belatedly discovered, Congress sheepishly enacted another disclosure rule.

BUT the new rule covers 1974 travel. And, because of the repeal, disclosure of 1973 travel will not be made.

Congressional Quarterly, a private journal of government activity, has attempted to fill the vacuum by sending questionaires to all members asking for 1963 travel information. Seven senators and 55 representatives — including Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, who originated the disclosure reapl — refused to acknowledge the questionnaires. But 218 members did supply voluntary information showing they made a total of 314 trips in 1973.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., reported making no overseas trips at government expense during 1973.

Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., reported a trip to Belgium and a trip to France and England, both on Senate Commerce Committee businesses.

AMONG California House members, Rep. Richard Hanna, D-Buena Park, was the best-traveled. Serving as a delegate to the Asian Development Bank annual meeting, he visited the Philippines, Taiwan, Hong Kong, and Japan. As a member of the House Science and Astronautics Committee, he made a trip to the Soviet Union, Japan and Korea. As a House Banking and Currency Committee member observing the International Monetary Fund and World Bank meetings, he visited Senegal, Kenya, Iran, Lebanon, Saudi Arabia and Egypt.

Rep. Don Edwards, D-San Jose, made one trip to England and Norway as a member of the House Judiciary Committee on business relating to U.S. interests in South Africa and drug treatment and rehabilitation.

Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr., R-Burbank, made two trips — one to Switzerland to represent the U.S. at the International Telecommunications Conference and another to France to attend the Paris Air Show as a member of the House Committee on Science and Astronautics.

REP. John McFall, D-Manteca, made two trips. He went to France to witness the signing of the Vientam peace accord, and he visited the people's Republic of China.

Rep. Robert Mathias, R-Tulare, left the country twice — to Columbia to represent the House at the centennial observance of the Colombian Congress and to Belgium as official delegate to the North Atlantic Assembly spring meeting.

Rep. Leo Ryan, D-South San Francisco, made two trips — one to Brazil, Chile, Peru and Venezuela for the House Foreign Affairs Committee and to Lebanon, Israel, Jordan, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia and Egypt as part of a special House task force to assess effects of the Arab-Israeli war.

Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Long Beach, reported one trip — to Japan for discussions with nuclear power industry officials in that country.

Rep. George Brown Jr., D-Colton, went to Venezuela on a House Agriculture Committee study trip.

Rep. Don Clausen, R-Crescent City, studied deepwater ports in England and Ireland as a member of the House Public Works Committee.

Rep. George Danielson, D-Los Angeles, visited Belgium, England, Scotland, Germany, Austria, Italy and Spain on undisclosed official business.

REP. Carlos Moorhead, R-Glendale, went to Belgium, England, Germany, Italy and Spain on official business for the House Judiciary Committee.

Rep. Jerry Pettis, R-Loma Linda, went to the People's Republic of China as a member of a congressional delegation.

Rep. Thomas Rees, D-Los Angeles, studied Japanese banking on behalf of the House Banking and Currency Committee.

Rep. John Rousselot, R-San Marino, went to Canada to discuss postal unionization.

Rep. Fortney (Pete) Stark, D-Oakland, visited Thailand, Hong Kong, Taiwan, and Korea on House Banking and Currency Committee business.

Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin, D-San Diego, went to Spain as a delegate to the International Telecommunications Conference, on behalf of the House Commerce Committee.

Rep. Charles Wiggins, R-West Covina, went to Mexico as official delgate to the U.S.-Mexico Interparliamentary Conference.

Five California House members made no response to the request for travel information—Rep. Phil Burton, D-San Francisco; Charles Gubser, R-Gilroy; Robert Leggett, D-Vallejo; William Maillard, R-San Francisco, and Charles Wilson, D-Torrance.

Insurance exec found stabbed, dead in home

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The body of an insurance executive who had been stabbed seven times with a butcher knife was found Saturday in his apartment.

Police went to the apartment of Daniel L. Shepard, 44, assistant manager of the Hartford Insurance Co. office, after neighbors reported hearing a man scream for help. The apartment was in disarray indicating that the victim put up a furious fight with his assailant.

Police said a woman's undergarment was found in Shepard's bedroom. One coroner's investigator said it was possible a woman could have subdued the 165-pound, 5-foot-8 Shepard "but she'd have to be a strong girl."

Shepard's wallet was missing.

Congress said gaining power

By EDMOND LeBRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The generations-long buildup of power in the executive branch has probably peaked and Congress will begin playing a bigger role in the next few years, House Speaker Carl Albert says.

CARL ALBERT
'A Bigger Role'

"I believe we will see a general strengthening of the legislative base in the intermediate term," Albert said. He explained he is thinking of a period of about 5 to 10 years.

But Albert, the highest official in the legislative branch, added that the executive, with its concentration of initiative and decision power in one man — the president — will always have some built-in advantages.

The tripartite system of U.S. government, he said, works best when there is close cooperation between the White House and Capitol Hill — and this relationship has been lacking in recent years.

"THE LACK of coordination between the administration and Congress has been due primarily to the difficulties President (Richard M.) Nixon had," Albert said.

He was asked whether the Watergate scandals, highlighting the extent of presidential power and the opportunities for abusing it, had spurred the flow of power to Congress. Albert said Watergate had contributed, but he contended the trend had set in well before the scandals reached a climax.

"We passed the War Powers Act before that," he said. This measure, a reaction to the Indochina war, sharply limits the authority of the president to commit U.S. forces without concurrence of Congress.

A more recent instance of Congress acting on its own, Albert said, was the development and passage of legislation designed to protect the rights of employes enrolled in company pension plans.

Albert called this "a historic bill ... completely a congressional initiative."

CONGRESS has taken no more important step toward reasserting its authority than passage of the Budget Control Act last July, Albert said. This measure, now just beginning to be tested in operation, undertakes to give the legislative branch tools to grapple with the budget as a whole and to assert its views on priorities rather than merely reacting to the annual proposals from the White House.

"If we have only cheese-paring authority in the budget process," Albert said, "We can hardly be effective."

Albert has served in the House since 1947 and has said his childhood ambition was to be speaker.

"I don't think we will have a veto-proof Congress," he said. "To get cooperation each side has to go at least half way."

He said he knows some critics have argued that the Democratic leadership both in the House and Senate has been insufficiently vigorous, especially in asserting party authority against powerful and independent-minded committee chairmen.

"It is a delicate balance," he said. "Committee chairmen have some legislative authority. There is nothing you can do about that ... There is no way a speaker can get a chairman to do something he is firmly committed not to do, if the chairman has legal authority on his side."

ALBERT cited developments during his own speakership that he said tended to bolster the central party authority. The House Democratic caucus has developed mechanisms for asserting party positions and directing chairmen, whose appointments are at least theoretically subject to the caucus, to conform. The system is still under trial, and not all chairmen have conformed.

The Democratic Steering Committee, a sort of cross-section of the caucus, now has more input than before in legislative decisions, Albert said.

He was asked whether Congress needs to improve its owo structures and procedures.

The process has been under way for some time, he replied:

"We have been doing more of that, both within the Democratic caucus and in the House as a whole. We have tried to modernize our proceedings."

Ford image said injured by pardon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., said Saturday President Ford acted hastily and damaged his image by pardoning former President Richard M. Nixon, but predicted Ford would make a political recovery.

"I think that President Ford has invited difficulty to himself by what I consider to be prematurely issuing the complete pardon for President Nixon," Sparkman said.

Action-packed session of U.N. to open Tuesday

By R.M. SORGE

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The 29th session of the United Nations General Assembly is expected to be full of action from its opening at 3 p.m. Tuesday to its closing about three months later.

Clashing interests on a global scale will characterize its debates — the old pitted against the new, rich against poor, the industrialized against the underdeveloped and the free enterprise against the socialist countries.

But in some cases, when the 110 items on the session's provisional agenda are being discussed, the adversaries of yesterday may join together against another random group, motivated by national or regional considerations or special interests.

WHEN THE session convenes, the assembly will first elect Foreign Minister Abdelaziz Bouteflika of Algeria as president and then almost immediately proceed to one of its more important decisions, the admission of new members to the United Nations.

Three countries scattered around the globe along the equator — Bangladesh in South Asia, Grenada in the Caribbean and Guinea Bissau in West Africa, with populations of 71 million, 94,000 and 600,000 — hope to enter the world organization with unanimous approval. Their admission has been cleared by the Security Council and will bring the U.N.'s total membership to 138.

THE ASSEMBLY will reflect changes in Africa, Asia and the Middle East, deal with disarmament questions, the creation of at least three nuclear weapon-free regions, growing economic problems of the developing world, social and cultural matters, the U.N.'s budget and a number of special issues.

Since the last regular session a year ago, the most drastic change has emerged in Africa, where Portugal, under the new regime of President Antonio de Spinola has begun to dissolve its old colonial empire.

Ever since the assembly issued its solemn declaration on decolonization, Portugal had come under ever stronger attack in the debates each year for clinging to its colonies, under the pretext that they were provinces on equal standing with the motherland. The assembly is expected to warmly welcome the change and impress on Portugal that it should soon grant independence to its other territories, particularly Angola and Mozambique.

SPEARHEADED by the Organization of African Unity (OAU) the assembly is expected to direct the strength of its anticolonialist campaign against South Africa and Southern Rhodesia. The latter is a rebel British colony, has no direct connection with the U.N., and is under a Security Council-imposed trade embargo.

But South Africa is a member state which continues to hold on to its World War I mandate of South West Africa. This is in disregard of several U.N. resolutions which have terminated the mandate and claimed U.N. authority over the mineral-rich territory under the name Namibia.

The OAU is expected to deny South Africa the right to speak in the general debate and possibly to press for its expulsion from the U.N.

ANOTHER chunk of territory along the Northwest coast of Africa, the Spanish Sahara, will be the subject of debate between Spain and the neighboring countries of Morocco and Mauritania. Spain has promised to hold a referendum on independence in 1975, under U.N. auspices, but both Morocco and Mauritania claim the Sahara as an integral part of their own territory.

For the Asian orbit, two important political questions will have to be decided: Should the U.N. terminate its military presence in South Korea? Should it recognize the government of President Lon Nol or that of Prince Nordom Sihanouk as the legal regime in Cambodia?

THIRTY-FOUR nations have proposed to dissolve the U.N. Command established in the 1950 Korean War and to end all further U.N. involvement on the peninsula, including U.N. countenance from some 38,000 U.S. troops there.

In last year's vote on the Cambodian representation, Sihanouk's supporters lost by two votes and it is anyone's guess which way the decision will fall this year.

In the Middle East debate the Arab nations are expected to focus on their demand for the creation of a homeland for the Palestinian refugees.

LAST YEAR the Middle East question was on the assembly's agenda, but was not brought to a debate in order to avoid interference in the delicate diplomatic negotiations following the October War.

The assembly will devote considerable time to all aspects of disarmament, including the Soviet proposal for a World Disarmament Conference, the reduction by 10 per cent of the big power military budgets and cessation of all nuclear weapons tests, particularly in the atmosphere. New proposals include the creation of Nuclear Weapon Free Zones in the Middle East and on the Indian subcontinent. Also on the agenda is the long standing proposal to make the Indian Ocean a zone of peace and exclude big power rivalry from it.

IN THE economic and social field the assembly will discuss the results of its special session last April which sought help from the industrialized and oil-producing countries to the poor nations most affected by the 400 per cent crude oil price increase.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Expect heated discussion, avoid personalities. Take safety precautions, particularly with unfamiliar equipment. Improved financial conditions are indicated.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Be helpful to others; bring them together. Travel, events away from home, aren't too productive. Leave business and career out of present adjustments.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): You can make definite decisions, progress in your work, begin new phases of operation, if you ignore personal and family distractions. Remember that machines do not care.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Rushing sets you back — so don't! Expect dissent, stifle impulsive reactions for the sake of peace and cooperation. Contracts, agreements of any sort are delicate.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You spend money in all directions. Make sure that no special demand gets out of hand. Defer large purchases. Good records are essential.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Associates are impatient despite the need for caution. Interpret the situation correctly and use self-restraint. Slow down while handling appliances.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Stay out of public view, although it may not be easy. Be discreet by not joining in social unrest, needless complaints.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Competition surfaces among normally close collaborators or regular associates. Keep your share at a minimum. Update facts and figures now.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Too much seems needed to be done too quickly for reasonable thought. Do what you can to simplify all operations. Keep your sense of humor, but don't be flippant.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Prefer easier pathways today. Let others quibble over legal issues, differences between individuals and groups. You aren't necessarily an arbiter nor an official critic.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Anything will set off a bout of squabbling. Take care to choose game pieces you can comfortably leave in play. Prepare for recovery and progress later.

Your new dream house may be storing a legal nightmare.

Unrecorded liens, hidden assessments, or zoning ordinances you don't even know about have created costly headaches for thousands. Worst of all, part of your home may not even be on your land. Now there's a way to protect yourself.

"What do you mean the carport is on my neighbor's land?"

The horrified homeowner who's confronted with this news moves quickly from anger and disbelief to a feeling of helplessness.

And it isn't just a feeling. Escrow has closed. The house belongs to him. There's no recourse to the former owner. The problem is his and his alone.

Legal costs run high. Costs of removing part of your structure run even higher. Once you're hit by this nightmare, there's no easy answer.

A survey would have revealed this problem. But surveys may run several hundred dollars. And even a survey doesn't reveal some of these other potential problems:

For example, if a previous owner didn't pay for work or materials on your home, there may be an unrecorded lien on your house for this work. And a lien foreclosure court action could cost you your property.

Again, there are local ordinances that may require your home to be set back a certain distance from the boundaries; or to conform to a stated height. If you were unaware that your house didn't conform to these rules when you bought it, compliance could cost you a bundle.

Until now, no standard title insurance policy offered such protection.

Now, Title Insurance and Trust, California's largest title insurance firm, has changed its standard title insurance policy for homeowners to include important new kinds of protection.

The new policy is called T.I. PLUS. It doesn't take anything away from the protection you've always received from standard title insurance. But it adds substantial protection against these painful problems:

Lack of access from your property to a legally established public street.

Unrecorded liens for labor or materials.

Enforced removal of your house or other improvements (excluding perimeter fences and plantings) due to (a) encroachment onto adjoining land, (b) encroachment onto recorded easements or unrecorded subsurface easements, (c) violations of covenants, conditions or restrictions, or zoning ordinances, and (d) the exercise of a holder of reserved mineral rights to come upon your land.

In addition, T.I. PLUS is the first standard title insurance policy that offers you substantial inflation protection.

Most homes increase in value every year due to inflation. And a title policy issued today may not offer you adequate protection five years from now.

T.I. PLUS automatically increases the maximum amount of coverage each year by an amount established by the U.S. Department of Commerce Construction Cost Index. And you get these automatic increases up to an additional 50% of the original face value of the policy.

If you're going to buy a home, you owe it to your peace of mind to get the full story. And you can do that in one of three ways:

1.) Ask your Realtor about T.I. PLUS. Remember, it's available only from Title Insurance and Trust.

2.) Call your local office of Title Insurance and Trust Company.

3.) Go to your phone and dial 800/252-0311 for a recorded message that gives you further details. T.I. PLUS

Secret Witness

Summaries of I,P-T cases and rewards

As part of the Independent, Press-Telegram's Secret Witness program, 10 selected summaries of cases in which rewards are offered are printed in the Independent and Press-Telegram each Sunday and Thursday.

Rewards also will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of suspects in any other major criminal cases, or the apprehension of fugitives from justice, not covered in these summaries. These rewards will vary in amount depending on the seriousness of the offense. Rewards in all cases, whether among those listed or not, will remain open until such cases are closed or until notification is given in print that the reward is withdrawn.

To ensure eligibility for Secret Witness rewards, informants are required to channel all information directly through Secret Witness, either by calling the special Secret Witness telephone number or by writing in care of the special Secret Witness post office box.

The summaries follow:

—A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Andrea "Treecy" Logan, 5-year-old Long Beach girl found strangled near her home in an alley back of 136 Walnut St. on May 7, 1974.

—A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Leon Pointer, 46-year-old liquor store owner shot to death by a burglar he surprised in his store at 13409 S. Avalon Blvd. in the Athens area on July 29, 1974.

—A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderers of Stephen Eugene Connor, 25, of La Palma, who was found shot to death on May 11, 1974, in his car parked at 19638 Sequoia Ave. in Cerritos.

—A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Frank S. Huber, 71-year-old Compton businssman shot to death during a holdup at his auto parts store at 16620 S. Main St. on Feb. 22, 1974.

—Rewards totaling $4,000—including $2,000 offered by Secret Witness and $2,000 pledged by the Compton City Council—will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of 55-year-old Compton city employe Raymond Adams, shot to death on May 13, 1973, as he was operating a city street sweeper at Compton and Long Beach Boulevards.

—A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Kathleen Ann La Chance, 24-year-old aspiring Long Beach actress who was found stabbed to death, her nude body bound by straps and mouth stuffed with sand, near the pier on the Santa Monica beachfront on the night of Nov. 15, 1972.

—A $500 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the bandit who held up the Cerritos branch of the Bank of America at 11:45 a.m. on Aug. 6, 1974, and escaped with $850.

—A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of John Allen Echols of Compton, found shot to death in a station wagon parked in front of 508 W. Cherry St. in Compton on May 11, 1974.

—A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Michael O. Vander Schaaf, 28, shot to death during a holdup of the Vander Schaaf Liquor Store at 486 W. Wardlow Road on June 18, 1973.

—A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Independent, Press-Telegram pressman Frank M. Schiavone, 41, and his wife, Shirley, 44, shot from ambush as they returned to their Westminster home on the night of May 9, 1971.

How to be a Secret Witness

Secret Witness seeks information from the public leading to the capture of fugitives and the arrest and conviction of criminals.

For this purpose a guaranteed fund of $1,000 has been established by the Independent, Press—Telegram to be used for rewards of varying amounts.

Identities of informants will be kept secret.

You will be paid a reward if the information you give Secret Witness results in the arrest and conviction of a criminal or the capture of a fugitive in cases publicized in this column. Rewards also will be paid for information given to Secret Witness resulting in arrests and convictions, or the capture of fugitives, in cases not published in Secret Witness.

To contact Secret Witness, telephone 436-2526 from 8 a.m. to midnight on weekdays or from 3 to 11 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Do not give us your name. Or write to: Secret Witness, P.O.Box 67, Long Beach, Calif. 90801.

This is how the last page of your "Secret Witness" letter should look after you have typed or printed your information about a crime.

DO NOT SIGN YOUR NAME. Instead, select a code name for yourself . . . any name, as long as it's not your own . . . and place it and a code number at the bottom of your letter. The code number should combine three letters and three numbers in any combination.

Tear off and keep a corner of the last page, with the same code name and number on it. Mail your letter to "Secret Witness," P.O. Box 87, Long Beach, 90801.

Boat handling classes to open

The Long Beach unit of the United States Power Squadrons, starting this week, will offer two free classes in basic small-boat handling, according to John Cady, squadron education officer.

A once-a-week, 10-session class will be given Wednesdays at Millikan High School, 2800 Snowden Ave., and a twice-weekly class covering the same material will be held at Hill Junior High School, Anaheim Street and Studebaker Road, Mondays and Thursdays.

Classes will be held in the school cafeterias starting at 7:15 p.m. They will be open to residents of Los Angeles County, 12 years of age or older.

Before taking a final examination, students will be taken on a practice cruise aboard one of the boats owned by the 550-member Long Beach squadron. Those successfully completing the course will be awarded a certificate of completion.

The course material is designed to benefit present and future owners or operators of sail and power boats. Subjects to be covered include handling of boats under normal and adverse conditions, seamanship, and common emergencies, rules of the road, and aids to navigation.

Other subjects to be covered by experienced volunteer instructors include compass and chart familiarization, boat trailering, river and lake boating, and the mariner's compass and piloting.

Additional information regarding the classes and those conducted in other areas of the Southland can be obtained by dialing the toll-free number, 1-800-243-6000.

Wayne, Hepburn team up

GRANTS PASS, Ore. (AP) — John Wayne and Katharine Hepburn, who hadn't worked together before, spent the first day of filming for Hal Wallis' new movie at Hawk Creek Landing.

Wayne returned somewhat sunburned from the site on the Rogue River, six miles west of Grants Pass, where the temperature under sunny skies was 87 degrees.

"They worked us hard today, and Katharine was wonderful," he said.

Miss Hepburn, Wayne's costar in the movie "Rooster Cogburn," was unavailable for interviews.

In the movie, Wayne plays Cogburn, the crusty, one-eyed lawman who emerged in the movie's predecessor, "True Grit."

Sutherland, Gould

They're not so manic off-stage

By EVE SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — Donald Sutherland and Elliott Gould seem to specialize in movie roles with a distinct manic edge.

Some think they live those roles off-screen. Not so. Serious matters, such as the price of rice or politics, pop into their dicussions of acting and what's funny (chicken is, goose isn't).

Lounging at opposite ends of a long, beige sofa in their hotel suite, the actors Robert Altman first paired as stars in "M-A-S-H" talked about life, work and interviews.

They're promoting a new film, "S-P-Y-S," their third together, in which they play CIA men in trouble with almost everybody.

"We've been doing a lot of interviews, talking to journalists so they'll know what to talk to us about. Evidently some actors have given the impression doing interviews is an unpleasant task," Gould said.

"I LIKE to be taken on. It's really very nice to be taken on and to respond. But anybody who wants to take me on had better be prepared. He'll have to give himself away, too."

"We've got a lot to share," Sutherland interrupted. "Everybody wants to be in movies. Everybody is the central character in their own movie. It's a very social business. So it's really joyful, interesting to participate in interviews, particularly when the two of us are together."

Sutherland is a lanky blond, 6-foot-4 and 185 pounds, mustachioed and born in Canada. At 39, he has a string of film credits, including "Klute" with Jane Fonda and "Don't Look Now" with Julie Christie.

Gould, 35, is heavier. He's 6-feet-3 and weighs 205, has dark eyes and brown, electric-shock-curly hair and is a native of Brooklyn, N.Y. He appeared on Broadway in musicals and drama before he went to Hollywood for movies.

Once married to Barbra Streisand, by whom he has a son, Jason, 7, Gould is divorcing Jennifer Bogart with whom he has two children. He prefers discussing the children to the former wives.

"I MEAN what I say and I say what I mean," Gould quipped. "And my kid says to me 'You are what you say.' Of course, that's because I replied 'Bull-' to something he said, and he said 'Daddy, you are what you say.' "

Sutherland lives in a Quebec farmhouse with French actress Francine Bisset, who recently gave birth to their first child. He has two children from two earlier marriages. They are growing up in California. Sutherland worries that they will have no conception of regular weather or changes of season.

Gould keeps an apartment in California and Sutherland "a telephone in a closet." Neither of them owns anything anywhere.

"To tell the truth, it's sad sometimes. I'm from the street. I live where I'm put. Frances Ford Coppola lives in San Francisco. I like it there, but Frances Ford lives there. Who can say where you live?" Gould asked.

Bowl ends 'smaller, more careful' season

By DAVID LEVINSON
Staff Writer

The Hollywood Bowl season ended Friday and Saturday nights with the usual fireworks and the usual Royal Fireworks Music by Handel (in an unusual wind band version that approximated the original.)

An old Bowl hand, pianist Earl Wild, was on hand to play two pops favorites: Gershwin's Concerto in F and Liszt's Hungarian Fantasy.

The novelty this season was that the band in the shell was not the Los Angeles Philharmonic but the Cleveland Orchestra under its music director, Lorin Maazel. Zubin Mehta and the Philharmonic are touring Europe.

MAAZEL and company brought to the Bowl chamber-style symphonic performances that are smaller in dynamic scale and considerably more careful than Bowl audiences are used to, even in those performances where Maazel has been the guest conductor.

He got his best chance to demonstrate how subtle a large orchestra can be in Samuel Barber's The School for Scandal, the overture that opened the program, and in Leonard Bernstein's Facsimile.

Neither piece amounts to much, except as an indication of promise. Both composers carried their promise to considerable heights, but neither was daring in his use of his talents and neither is likely in the history of 20th century composition to rate much more than a listing among the also rans. These early works are pleasant enough, though: tuneful and secure in their construction and orchestration. Maazel attended to them seriously and got from them everything that is in the scores, and maybe a little more.

WILD'S performance of the Gershwin concerto was jazzy. That was altogether to the good.

Oscar Levant established a tradition of playing this work with more attention to grandeur and sentiment than to swing. It was a mistake. Such grandeur and sentiment as the work has, and it has a good deal of both, are most persuasive when they are not underlined in performance. Wild and Maazel tried for less than other conductors have in this concerto; in consequence, they achieved more.

Liszt's Hungarian Fantasy presents problems that are beyond that approach. Its depths, such as they are, do not yield themselves to a performance that concentrates on hard-driving rhythms and a big sound. This piece is a little too Hungarian for that, and it is probably a little too Hungarian for Wild. He is a slick showman. His pianism is brilliant. But his melancholy does not run deep, and his sense of the heroic relies too much on superficial effects.

The Handel received a delightful performance, in which even the timpani played con amore. We are all used to this music in an arrangement for orchestra by Sir Hamilton Harty that is ingratiating, but not in a Handelian way. Maazel restored a section omitted in that more customary symphonic version, and he restored, too, many of the baroque effects the usual version obliterates.

The fireworks seemed to me to be less spectacular than usual. Inflation, I suppose. Or perhaps an unwillingness by the visitors to try to blow manfully through oceans of smoke. If the latter was the case, I forgive them. There is enough smoke in Cleveland without coming to Los Angeles to find more.

Disneyland attraction

Gunilla Hutton, country and western artist, will perform at Disneyland Saturday for the park's Country Music Spectacular. She will join Buck Owens and Minnie Pearl on the Tomorrowland stage.

Peter Palmer couldn't be misled

NEW YORK — There's many a leading man who gets misled. Peter Palmer wasn't going to be one of them.

Peter was tall and handsome, a former University of Illinois football star who'd already been on the Broadway stage in "Li'l Abner." Now he suddenly was Carol Channing's leading man in "Lorelei." That would seem to be a great spot for an actor to promote himself with personal publicity — "Carol Channing's leading man, WOW!"

But that's where Peter Palmer was a leading man who wouldn't be misled.

Because Peter Palmer is now leaving the show, taking with him his wife Aniko Farrell, who was Miss Canada in the Miss Universe, Miss World and Miss International contests 10 years ago.

And there's no great furor about their leaving because, to be frank, not many people knew they were in the show to start with.

That's the way the star system works in the theater and Peter Palmer knew it well.

PETER PALMER
Leaving 'Lorelei'

"When I got into the show, I knew I was never going to steal any scenes from Carol Channing," Palmer said the other afternoon.

Peter and his wife were doing a night club act in 1972 and happened to meet Carol in Atlanta.

"The next thing I knew, I'd been cast as her leading man in 'Lorelei.' When Carol found out that I'd been cast for the part, she said, 'You must also see his wife.' And now she says she wasn't responsible for getting me in the show but she was responsible for getting Aniko in the cast."

Aniko, who's from St. John's, Nova Scotia, is in the chorus.

Palmer was the first University of Illinois music major to get a letter in football (back in '52 and '53). He and his wife wanted to return to Sullivan County, Ill., to do the Little Theater there this fall and are leaving "Lorelei."

"We'll miss 'Lorelei,'" Palmer said. "We never missed any shows and Carol didn't and Charles didn't either!"

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Taking off weight is good for your health, your appearance and your tailor.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "The trick is to control inflation without causing a depression, a challenge equivalent to sticking a pin into a balloon gradually."

EARL'S PEARLS: A man explained at the Magic Pan that he never travels by plane: "I figure if God meant us to fly, he'd have given us credit cards."

You're never too old for miracles

THIS IS THE story of two elderly gents who have brought miracles of happiness into each other's life.

The older one, Adolph Fabian, has a bit of a stoop, wears a hearing aid and is 81 years and two months old. Don't forget those two months. He brags about those with the same pride as a mother reporting the age of her newborn baby.

He's a shy, kindly man with only a little gray sprinkled through his sandy-colored hair. A black belt gathers full-cut trousers, stylish in another era, around his spare 145-pound frame.

Today, Fabian boasts a host of senior citizen friends in the downtown area, where he lives at 428 W. Fifth St.

But most of all, he revels in his unusual vision—his ability to see the world and the printed word without the aid of even so much as a pair of dime-store magnifying glasses.

IT WAS NOT always so. Let's change the scene to a year ago:

Then, Adolph Fabian was blind in one eye because, when he was 11 years old, a friend accidentally shot him with a BB gun. Another thing, he didn't have many friends around town.

Not knowing where to go for companionship, he spent weary hours eating alone, walking around downtown or sitting on a bench somewhere watching the people go by with his one good eye. Sometimes he'd fall asleep.

That's what he was doing—snoozing on a bench at the Pike—when William Kellner happened by on the first lap of his daily two dozen.

"Wake up, the war's over," Kellner said, giving the sleeping Fabian a firm but friendly shake. "What are you waiting here for—the glue factory or the undertaker?"

Kellner, a retired architect and sometimes teacher-musician-cartoonist, is no spring chicken himself, though he acts like one. He defies the fact that, chronologically, he has already chalked up 72 years on his life chart.

A health nut who doesn't drink, smoke or sit out any dances, he also lives downtown—at 612 W. Third—and, by golly, he doesn't believe in oldsters sleeping their lives away, even if society DOES decree they're in their twilight years.

"COME ON," Kellner coaxed, introducing himself. "Why don't you come with me to the Senior Citizens' Nutrition Center? We'll have a hot lunch."

"Naw, I don't want no charity," Fabian objected.

Kellner, vice-president of the group at Drake Park, assured him the luncheons are NOT charity, but a government-funded program to see that people on pensions have something nutritious to eat. Fabian finally agreed to go along for the lunch—and they've been constant buddies ever since.

"Now, I can't get him away from there," Kellner said. "I love the fellowship," Fabian explained.

As their friendship grew, Kellner encouraged Fabian to see a doctor about the blind eye. "Maybe surgery would help," he suggested. "Medicare would pay for most of it—what have you got to lose?"

They practically went through the surgery together at St. Mary Medical Center, where a local eye surgeon removed a cataract that had formed over the eye.

"I can see!" Fabian cried when the bandages were removed. "I can SEE—it's a miracle!" He, Kellner, the nurse and the doctor all had a good cry.

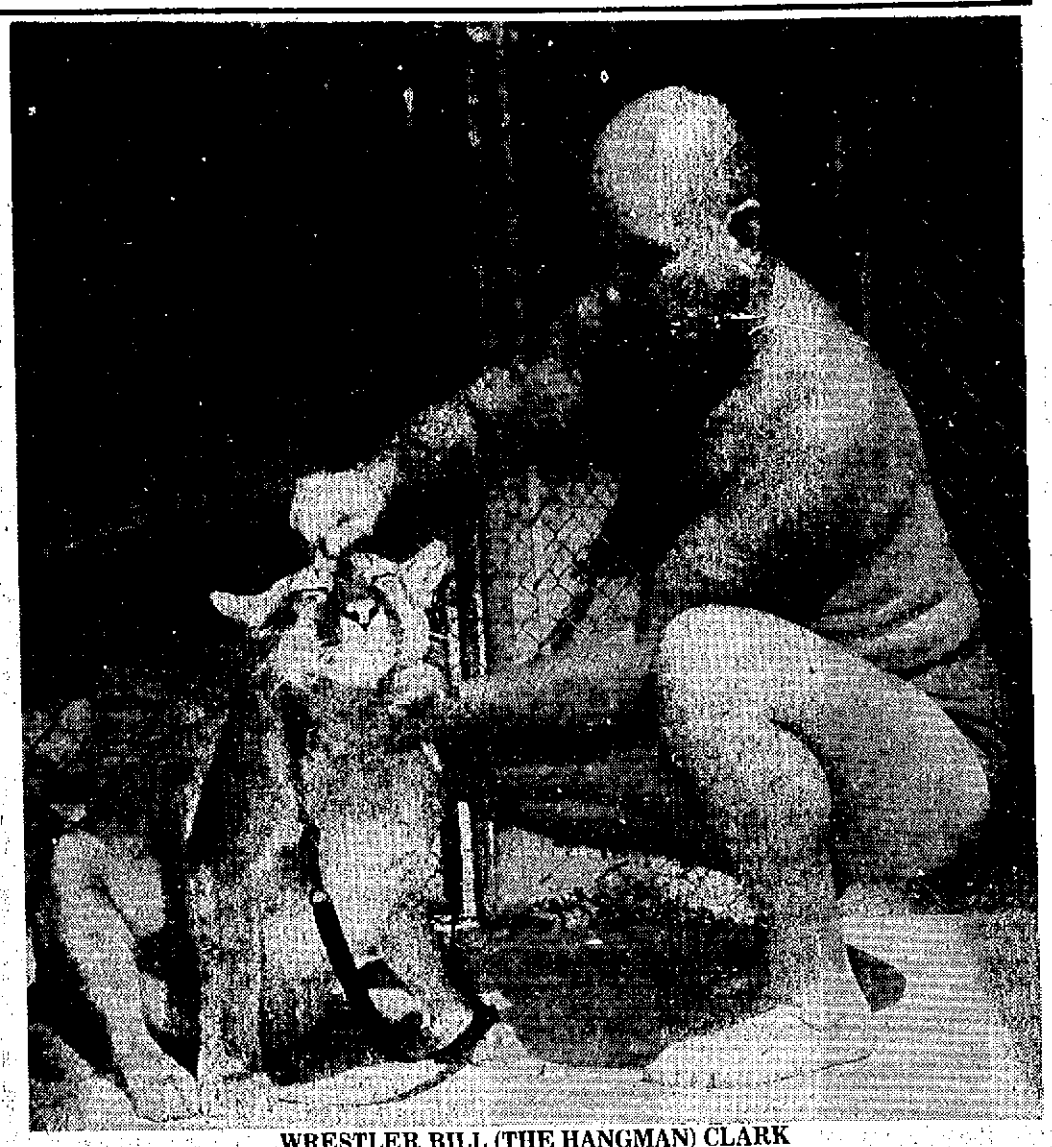

THE NEXT miracle happened just two weeks later. While walking downtown, Kellner—who enjoys nothing more than a pretty girl—wanted to stop in to see his favorite teller, Maulyn Marcus at Home Savings & Loan Association.

"I go there every week to put a dollar in my account—or get 10 dimes in change just to see her," Kellner laughed.

It was the final day of Downtown Long Beach Association's (DLBA) recent Hawaiian promotion and Miss Marcus encouraged the two men to fill out coupons for DLBA's all-expense-paid trip to Hawaii for two.

The men agreed that, if either won, he'd take the other. Both firm believers in divine guidance, they did some praying on the side. Somebody Up There must have heard: Fabian's name was drawn from thousands in the box.

When I met them Friday at the DLBA offices, both were wearing leis and bubbling like two Jacuzzis. Neither has been to Hawaii and neither has flown before. They'll leave Sept. 25.

WRESTLER BILL (THE HANGMAN) CLARK
Mean looks don't show the other side of a quiet, neighborly man

Mainly, he's a 'wrassler'

'Mean man' really a nice guy

By BOB SANDERS
Staff Writer

He weighs 250 pounds—most of which appears to be flab but obviously isn't, and he acts like a mean, mean man—in the wrestling ring.

He stealthily stalks an opponent, waiting for the opportunity to use an "illegal" karate chop when the referee isn't looking—which is quite often—and he seems to enjoy the boos and catcalls of the audience.

He is known as The Great John L., or The Hangman, or The Skull and he's really a fake.

His name is—his real name, that is—is Bill Clark, and he's a quiet, neighborly type of fellow who lives at 9061 Madison Ave. in the Orange County town of Westminster.

DESPITE his ferocious handlebar mustache and his shaven, bald head, Bill Clark is really a nice guy when he is not wrestling—or wrassling, as he pronounces it with unerring accuracy.

Although born in Bowling Green, Kentucky, in 1925 he is a true son of Orange County, complete with a large American flag flying from a flagpole in his front yard.

After dropping out of Bowling Green schools in the tenth grade Clark began a career as a boxer, winning the city flyweight championship in Indianapolis in 1940.

Having boxed his way through World War II in the Navy, he drove taxis and hauled meat until 1951 when he married a girl from Oklahoma City named Donna and launched his career as a "wrassler."

In 1957, he and his growing family settled in Westminster in a large, rambling house where they are now raising their eight children, aged 17 to 1.

CLARK HAS enlarged his professional repertoire to include movie stunts, karate demonstrations, fire eating, 80-foot leaps into a pool of water, acting (as a villain, of course) and even potato chip eating television commercials.

Some of the profits from this varied career have gone into construction of a 40 by 40 foot, two-story gymnasium at the rear of the house which contains a full-size wrestling ring complete with a 10 by 15- foot American flag draped on the wall.

The wrestling ring also doubles as a practice ring for his oldest, 17-year-old son, Bill, to practice his karate, at which he is an expert. In fact, Bill teaches karate when he is not participating in demonstrations with his father.

Another facet of the Clark career is wrestling with a 135-pound mountain lion, affectionately named "Honey."

"WHEN I FIRST got her," Clark recalls, "she was so mean I couldn't even pet her for three weeks. That was three years ago but now she's soaffectionate she has the run of the house."

The Clarks have a permit from the City of Westminster to keep the 9-year-old cougar and have had no complaints from neighbors—so far.

When he is not playing villain for a television wrestling match, Clark likes to put on free demonstrations for children around the county.

Sometimes he wrestles Honey—and always loses—or does karate with Bill, and also always loses.

"I just look like a mean ornery cuss," he says, "and people seem to like to watch me lose."

Of course, in his wrassling matches, he doesn't always lose.

TriStar jumbo jet in Africa on global demonstration trip

By HERB SHANNON
Staff Writer

Some 10,000 miles off its normal route network, a hard-working Pacific Southwest Airlines L1011 TriStar jumbo jet is resting today in Johannesburg, South Africa, before returning to its regular California commuter schedule by way of a slight detour of 46,000 miles around the world.

Last week a PSA cabin crew and Lockheed Aircraft Corp. flight crews demonstrated the giant trijet's unique features for potential airline customers in Egypt, Tunisia, Libya, Algeria, Morocco and Ghana. Starting Monday the jetliner will resume its journey through Africa, the Middle East and Asia.

The L1011 global sales tour was announced jointly by Daniel J. Haughton, chairman of Lockheed, manufacturer of the TriStar, and J. Floyd Andrews, PSA chairman and chief executive officer, earlier this month at the Farnborough Air Show in England.

THE PSA wide-cabin trijet, dubbed "Mother Grinningbird" because of the airline's trademark, a broad smile painted under the nose section, along with a dozen of PSA's stunning stewardesses, were highlights of the weeklong air show near London.

The Farnborough event is the aviation industry's No. 1 trade exhibition of the year in even-numbered years, sharing that honor in alternate years with the Paris Air Show. The 1974 display was the first international show in England.

"This PSA TriStar, which normally flies only within California, will travel to 25 cities in 22 countries," Haughton said. "This will be the third and most extensive sales tour for the L1011 this year."

Haughton said the current itinerary will demonstrate the TriStar to interested airline customers throughout the Arab states of the eastern Mediterranean, East and Central Africa, India, Hong Kong and Malaysia in addition to coverage of Russia and Australia in tours earlier this year.

"We are proud that Lockheed chose PSA's L1011 for the world trip," said Andrews, who flew aboard the trijet on the first leg of its odyssey from the Lockheed final assembly plant at Palmdale to London, crammed with sales personnel, flight crew teams and a sprinkling of aviation news reporters.

"WE ARE also pleased to show our lower-deck lounge and PSA service by 12 of our stewardesses who will be hostesses for the demonstration flights."

PSA's L1011 is a unique commuter version with a stairway leading from the upper cabin to a 16-seat lounge located in what other carriers have used as the forward cargo compartment. The TriStar on the world tour is identical to one now demonstrated in scenic flights from Long Beach Airport in July and now in service on PSA daily schedules between San Diego, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

The PSA aircraft is also fitted with a closed-circuit cockpit color television camera system which allows viewers in the cabin to watch the flight crew and the instrument panel during fully automatic takeoffs and landings.

The process was demonstrated for the passengers on the initial hop from Palmdale to London's Gatwick Airport via a refueling stop at Bangor, Maine. The TV system includes a secondary close-up camera which zooms in to capture minute details on the instrument panel at critical points.

The Lockheed sales tour is in part inspired by a stipulation in a Textron Corp. agreement for refinancing of the L1011 program, which has lagged in anticipated orders because of world competition by its Long Beach-built counterpart, the McDonnell Douglas DC10 wide-cabin trijet.

The original Textron condition for additional financing of the L1011 in the agreement announced earlier this summer called for a minimum of 45 new TriStar orders by the end of October.

HOWEVER, Textron officials at the Farnborough Air Show indicated that Lockheed would not be held strictly to those terms if the sales tour indicated a strong future market for the L1011.

All five of PSA's L1011s are scheduled to be in service in California by next summer, including the one on the global tour through Oct.4.

Airlines which have flown the demonstrations on the current Lockheed tour to date include Egyptair, Libyan Arab Airlines, Tunis Air, Air Algeric, Royal Air Maroc and Ghana Airways.

Sinner, saint or sexy? Scientists looking into halos

By MOLLY BURRELL
Staff Writer

If you think you're a bundle of energy, you're right — all kinds of energy.

And if you believe those Sunday school pictures of Jesus with a halo around his head, you might also be right.

There is a group at UCLA that is not only intrigued by both ideas, it is deep into research about these and other parapsychological phenomena.

This week nearly 2,000 of the 30,000 visitors of the 23rd annual Western Electronics Convention in Los Angeles packed an auditorium at the Convention Center for a look at some of the results of seven years of study at the University's Neuropsychiatric Institute.

THERE WERE color slides of Kirlian photography that resembled Miro abstracts — vibrant red, blue, yellow, orange ovals which touched, merged, radiated wild fringes or sent off what looked like sun spots.

There was a group ESP experiment led by a psychic which resulted in an intriguing 11-4 accuracy record.

There was a supersensitive digital machine that measured electrical energy impulses at acupuncture spots on skins of a dozen volunteers.

There were reports of healing by a nonprofit psychic and Kirlian photos of a "vanishing leaf effect."

AND THROUGH it all, Dr. Thelma Moss, a small, velvet-voiced clinical psychologist who heads the Institute admitted: "We really don't know what we're looking at or dealing with. Its very mysterious ... We believe there is energy there but we don't know what kind or in what measurable amount."

What they do know, Moss says, is that UCLA researchers can duplicate some of the experiments the Russians began 30 years ago.

They involve taking pictures without a camera or lens by means of electric charges on film which is then processed in the regular manner.

In inanimate subjects like coins the light pattern is constant.

Living subjects change according to physical condition and emotional state.

ALL INVOLVE a readily apparent aura of corona around the subject, the form and extent of which varies wildly as people relax, imbibe liquor, think sexy or angry thoughts.

UCLA researchers showed the Los Angeles audience finger pad prints of relaxed people which looked like indigo blue ovals with bluish white coronas. Emotional changes, including those produced by continued alcohol consumption, progressed from red-blotched interiors with yellowish auras to bright yellow-orange ovals with increasingly larger coronas.

Adjoining finger pad prints of two hostile subjects showed corona fringes that veered apart and those of emotionally attracted people had aura fringes that appeared to reach out and intermingle.

Leaf color patterns also changed when the leaf was cut or gashed. In one slide, a leaf which had been cut off at the top retained its aura around the original uncut shape, a phenomena researchers have dubbed the "lost leaf effect."

What does it all mean?

SCIENTISTS aren't sure. Inventors Semyon and Valentina Kirlian began working on it in 1939, and they and their followers postulate that all living matter is surrounded by "aura" whose strength and character varies with activity and physical condition. Psychics have claimed for years they could perceive aura around people and the possibility that a strong magnetic personality radiates a stronger, more identifiable aura than a passive person is accepted in most parapsychology circles.

Russian and other scientists also have documented Kirlian "flares" which register at acupuncture points on the human body. One UCLA researcher this week demonstrated a machine which flipped bright red digital readings and buzzed when the reading got high as the sensing device touched volunteers' noses, chins, hands.

One of Moss' coworkers, psychic Barry Taff, led eight volunteers in an ESP session in which a subject thought about "someone close" and Taff pinpointed a first name, hair color, height, and occupation. Other participants volunteered peripheral personality and descriptive guesses and the total score was 11 right, 4 wrong, which Moss pronounced "unusually good."

In a separate seminar psychic John Hubacher, also of the UCLA Institute, told of a kind of "laying on of hands" and a concentration technique which resulted in an unexplainable physical improvement on a patient with partial paralysis. After five months the patient, whose doctor said there was nothing further medicine could do, regained most of the use of his arm, crippled after a gunshot wound, Hubacher said. It was just one of several demonstrations documented by the Institute, Moss said.

HUBACHER admitted: "I don't know what I'm working with. I do know I'm hypersensitive to temperatures and I can feel and see auras ... All I know is that the person I work with must have faith in himself and confidence in me."

Moss told the audience her "radiation field photography" process differs from the Russian procedure in that it uses a lower frequency electric current and works with 120 ASA speed color film with a ½ to one second exposure.

Other Kirlian experiments at Harvard and Duke Universities center around employing it in predicting disease. At Roger Williams College in Rhode Island they are studying if people influence plants via Kirlian photos. In Russia they use Kirklian photography in connection with cancer research on the theory that physiological changes show up in differing energy emissions in affected parts of the body.

'World's sexiest birds'

Profits proliferate by the covey on farm

Everything's for the birds at the Marsh enclave in Garden Grove — the sexiest birds in the world.

The whole two acres at 14232 Brookhurst are full of incubators, aviaries, wire-floored cages and thousands of quail, celebrated in Oriental folklore as a super sex symbol and curer of ailments.

For Albert Marsh, the Quail King of Orange County, the dowdy little sexbird has become a five-letter word for profit.

As his flocks increase so does the market for them, to the point where he's chalked up a 900 per cent jump in two years.

In the beginning, however, he had to start brooding behind the sofa, he recalls.

That was six years ago when he flipped his TV dial to a program about quail on a UC Davis show and promptly flew north to pick up 100 quail eggs from the university hatchery.

There he was in an apartment, without surplus funds, and with a wife who thought he had hatched a bird-brained idea, he recalls. However, by the time the chicks appeared in the homemade brooder behind the couch he figured he was on to a good thing.

He moved to a small tract house and the broods increased. There were incubators in the garage, incubators in the bedroom, and a weekly supply of more eggs from a friendly student at Davis.

Also a market for the birds, thanks to a brochure he had printed and circulated prior to his production speed-up.

And the quail themselves were more than cooperative: each one laid her weight in eggs every 13 days with no time off, as is the habit with lady quails.

That's fecundity, he explained, comparing the rate with that for chickens who take two months for the same weight production. Matter of fact, he adds, quail are the champion layers of the world, weightwise, and the males are the most ardently active in the whole bird kingdom.

It's this hyperactive proliferation that has made the drab, squatty little creatures the sex birds of the Far East, explains Marsh.

Are policemen underpaid?

The work slowdown being conducted officially by the Long Beach Police Officers Association and the "blue flu" work stoppage that followed it must raise some questions in the minds of our citizens.

Are our officers underpaid? Are fewer policemen handling more calls? What is the status of the department now as compared to 1967 (the date cited in comparative statements in some association advertisements)?

Here are some facts. There are a lot of them. Statistics are not the liveliest reading. But for the record, and so you will be able to make judgments, these figures are important.

The total authorized strength of the department in 1967 was 817 persons (and 15 of those worked at the honor farm, which no longer exists). Today the authorized strength is 938.

Of today's strength, 477 are police officers below the rank of sergeant. There are 252 patrolmen, compared to 212 in 1967. In 1967 there were 120,000 calls for service from the public. Last year there were 140,000. The average number of calls per patrolman was 566 in 1967 and 555 in 1973. Calls increased 17 per cent. The average of patrolmen assigned to handle them increased 19 per cent.

Since July 1, 1967, the cost of living has gone up 43.44 per cent. Police pay has gone up 65.78 per cent. It will go up another 2 per cent Jan. 1, 1975.

At that time, Long Beach's base pay will be the fifth highest among the 25 largest California cities. The average of all the cities will be $1,270 a month; here, officers will get at least $1,345. That's $75 more.

Here is what some other cities are paying monthly:

City	Police pay
Anaheim	$1,205
Burbank	1,410
Garden Grove	1,243
Inglewood	1,373
Los Angeles	1,313
Oakland	1,328
San Diego	1,215
San Francisco	1,387
San Jose	1,217
Santa Monica	1,359

Note that the only cities that pay more than Long Beach's $1,345 are San Francisco, Burbank, Inglewood and Santa Monica.

Here are the various categories of pay for our 477 police officers as of Jan. 1 and the number and percentage of officers in each category:

Salary	Number	Per cent
$13,056	26	5.5
15,312	10	2.1
16,140	104	21.8
17,016	34	7.1
17,328	6	1.3
17,448	256	53.7
17,580	2	.4
18,204	3	.6
18,636	32	6.7
18,888	1	.2
19,920	1	.2
21,228	2	.4

The 36 men below the minimum have not yet served the three and one-half years needed to reach full pay. The 104 at $16,140 have — but they have earned no incentive or skill dollars. These groups make up 29.4 per cent of the officers.

That leaves 70.6 per cent who earn $17,016 or more per year — in base pay.

Base pay is not all these officers get.

All receive $3,859 yearly paid in cash into their retirment fund, $554 for health insurance and an average of $59 for marksmanship bonuses and $46 for uniforms.

The average cash outlay the city makes for the 477 police officers comes to $22,382 per man per year.

Other fringe benefits include incentive pay, overtime, vacations, sick leave, holidays, military leave and workmen's compensation. When all these are added in, the city has a direct average payroll burden of $24,855 per officer. When the rookies are excluded, the average rises to $24,930 per officer.

These figures do not include costs of running the department. They are salary figures only. They deal only with the 477 police officers. Sergeants, lieutenants, captains — all have higher pay. Civilians in the department are paid at rates roughly comparable to equivalent civilian jobs elsewhere.

In the six months between last June 30 and next July 1, the average pay of our officers will be boosted $118 a month, or $1,461 a year; that's a 9.1 per cent average.

The terms of some of the fringe benefits are interesting.

Vacations run from 12 to 20 days a year. Holiday time off runs from 96 to 120 hours a year. Officers can retire at 50 years of age. If they wait until 55, they can retire at 75 per cent of their final base pay.

They can also accumulate sick leave, at 12 days a year, and take cash for that at retirement time to buy continuing health insurance. All receive time and one-half for overtime in cash or time off.

Only eight jobs opened on the department in 1973. Another eight have opened so far this year. Six hundred twenty-four persons applied for the job of police officer at the last civil service exam in August 1973. Of these, 345 passed — and 294 are still on the current list seeking jobs.

Since 1967 the department has spent many millions instituting new programs to make police work more efficient and safe. The helicopter patrol is one. Another is the computerized information system, which by itself will cost more than $6 million. In addition, many civilians have been hired in the department to handle office and other duties. That has freed police officers for their main job: protecting the public.

The police officers have already received more of a pay boost than other city employes this year. In the light of the above figures, we can find no justification for a slowdown or the blue flu.

We agree with a city council resolution that "there is no justification for any police officer to, in any degree, shirk his duties and responsibilities as a police officer of this city."

Mr. President, here's what to do

(In a head-on question-and-answer confrontation, Prof. John Kenneth Galbraith, one of the most influential thinkers in the field of economics, explores the current inflation, notes the impact of the problem on the political scene, and offers some suggestions.)

By JOHN KENNETH GALBRAITH

Harry Truman once said of Bernard Baruch that he had difficulty understanding why Baruch liked to describe himself as an adviser to presidents. All presidents, Mr. Truman observed, had more advice than they could use. Still, Mr. Ford is a newcomer, and his association with my part of the general political community has never been intimate. And, as he himself must suspect, if the economic guidance he had inherited had been adequate, the economic problem which he inherited, namely, inflation, would long since have been solved. Or, at a minimum, it wouldn't be getting worse.

Also there is a place in politics for compassion. If Mr. Ford does not solve the problem of inflation, he will surely be another in our extending list of presidential basket cases. The Vietnam war did in Lyndon Johnson. Watergate did in Nixon. The present anger over inflation cannot be less than that in 1968 over the Vietnam aberration. And, as between inflation and the Watergate scandal, there is no doubt. Every poll for months has shown far more people upset over inflation than over the burglary and cover-up. Economic failure, unlike obstruction of justice, is not an impeachable offense. But over the last century or so it is at least 100 to 1 ahead for ending political careers. For these reasons, and also because inflation is a hideously unfair thing, a source of much anxiety and hardship, damaging to useful institutions and dangerous for the rest of the world, I'm taking the considerable liberty of suggesting answers to some of the questions that, one imagines, might be in a new President's mind.

Is inflation really serious?

Yes. It takes generally from the old, weak and small and gives to the big, organized and fast on the feet. It reduces the real income of colleges, hospitals, libraries and all sorts of other useful institutions and of the people working in them. Even when people get more income they think it belongs to them, do not like to see it taken right back by higher prices. And inflation is a source of growing confusion in international affairs. On no account should anyone buy the prediction that it is getting better. We have had such predictions now for six years. They are based not on evidence but on hope — and also on the unbreachable faith of economists and businessmen when in public office that if they predict that things will get better things will get better.

Isn't inflation a worldwide blight?

Don't buy this excuse, either. The Communist countries have stable prices and hard money (which is also, one should add, hard to convert), and they put to shame, in this regard, what pre-Kissinger statesmen called the free world. More important, the United States is decisive for the control of inflation in other countries. If we do, given our position in the world trading community, others can. If we don't, they can't. Other countries can have more inflation than we do but, given the effect of our prices on their imports, not much less. Canada is the case on which to reflect.

What is the cause of the present inflation?

Watch the singular form? Avoid, as a leper, the man who cites one cause and then promotes one cure. The present inflation has at least five causes of diverse but unknown power. These are:

1. A continuing high demand for bank loans which if granted add to bank deposits and therewith the money supply. Then when the deposit money so created is spent, the resulting demand pulls up prices.

2. An insufficiently anti-inflationary budget. When there is inflation, the operations of the federal government should withdraw more purchasing power from the economy through taxation than they contribute through expenditures. The worse the inflation, the greater should be the net withdrawal of purchasing power. Though not wildly inflationary, the budget should now be acting strongly to reduce total demand.

3. Prices are being raised to cover the wage settlements and, in most cases, quite a bit more. Higher prices and living costs then lead to yet higher settlements on the next round. The ability of economists, until recently, to ignore this phenomenon, always more visible in fact than in the textbooks, has been one of the more remarkable achievements of science.

4. Food and fuel prices have increased during the past year because of supply shortages that are more or less peculiar to these industries. However, some of the increase in food prices has also been the result of the general inflationary pull of demand. And some of the increase in fuel prices and in food distribution margins has been the result of the shove of wage costs and the ability of powerfully situated processors and distributors to offset such costs and increase their margins.

5. There is now fear that prices will continue to rise, the money will buy less and less and this, in turn, is leading to the thought that it is better to buy than to save. The counterpart of reduced savings is more spending — more demand bidding up prices. With this cause goes the yet further danger, if the price increases continue, that the huge volume of spendable assets existing at any time — savings accounts, savings and loan accounts, savings bonds, other securities — will be partly unhinged and used to buy goods. This last would be very disagreeable.

What, for all this, is the remedy?

Again that singular form. Precisely because the causes are several, so are the remedies! There is no longer room for choice; all measures must be used. Money must for now be kept tight, although this, as I shall indicate in a moment, is the most depressive, discriminatory and dangerous of remedies. Purchasing power must be curtailed by the budget, and this can only be done effectively and promptly by increasing taxes. The wage-and-price spiral must be arrested, and this requires controls. The strongest possible efforts must be made to increase food supplies next year, and an expansion of fertilized output is especially important. All of these actions must be taken with such energy and purpose that people will have confidence in the future value of their money and dollar-denoted assets and will not be moved to reduce current savings or spend past savings.

What about past policy?

Obvious. Were it any good, it would have worked by now. More specifically, it has relied, and of late exclusively, on one instrument: control of the money supply. This control has been tight enough to depress severely the industries that depend on borrowed funds, housing being the extreme case. The heavy reliance on this instrument explains a fair amount of the present stagnation in the economy. But it has not, obviously, been sufficient to stop or even slow the inflation. Thus, it could be dangerous. Of all the instruments of control, monetary policy is the most unpredictable in its effects. That is why, between economists, it sustains such arcane and priestly discussion. If its effects were known, the discussion would have nothing to keep it going.

Is there no hope, then, in the old-time religion?

Nope. None whatever. The control of inflation is not a matter of faith. Nor, appreciably, is it a matter of ideology. It requires the same action of conservative gvernments and liberal, those of the left and those of the right. The old-time religion holds, essentially, that what worked in the last century will work now. Reduce the role of government, balance the budget, sit on the money supply, have faith and all will be well. So it might have been in the last century, and the economists who have been making policy of late are men of undeniable learning on matters relevant to that time. But now in the late 20th century there are powerful corporations and strong unions with a major effect on prices. Governments and their budgets have a large effect on economic life. And since these things will continue to exist, policy must be accommodated to them. Let it be remembered that the old-time divines warned against substituting faith for works and were probably against wishful thinking too.

How about the initial Ford proposals?

Alas, more of the same and not good. Action must be related both in amount and in time to the disorder. Inflation is here and now. The effect of cutting public expenditures, the social and political problems aside, is far too slow. Expenditures under present commitments are set for months ahead, sometimes years. Balancing the budget in the fiscal year beginning next July has no appreciable present effect at all. This would be as true for a liberal as for a conservative administration. And, of course, the political delays cannot be ignored. Thus, I would cut the defense budget; it is replete with expensive military anachronisms — the carrier force, for example — and strategic overkill. But everyone knows

Letters to the editor

Police act against

The letter that follows carried these words at the bottom: "The following to be excluded from the article. Any alterations or omission from this article makes it invalid and no authority is given by the LBPOA to reproduce any portion of this article if it is altered or if there are any omissions."

We do not accept letters to the editor under those conditions. We always reserve the right to edit letters to shorten them and to make spelling, capitalization, punctuation and syntax conform to customary usage.

We are printing this letter exactly as submitted, without the customary editing, because it seems to be an official communication from the Long Beach Police Officers Association and is therefore of interest in conjunction with today's editorial.

"IN REBUTTAL TO A UNHEALTHY SITUATION"

A small amount of common sense type reasoning by Mr. Don Ohl, the editorial editor, would tell him that the Police Officers Association would not have placed an advertisement in the paper which cost the Police Officer $968.00, if they knew that the Police Officer was going to take an action that would have made it needless to spend the money. After all, the headlines and articles gave more coverage to the Police Officers plight than did the ad.

The issue in the Police Officers actions is do we have the right to negotiate for our salaries.

As for the simple statement quoted in the editorial, by City Manager John Mansell, "we expect a full days work for a full days pay". Then why does'nt he pay the Police Patrolman 3 times the pay they made 7 years ago? By refusing to increase the manpower in the Police Dept. Mr. Mansell has caused the Policemen that hired on 7 years ago to have to do three times the work now as they did then.

It is not necessary, as stated in the editorial, to remind the Policemen of their duty. Those Officers who are working, are performing fully and honestly, using their own good judgement and keeping the safety of the citizens foremost in their actions, dispite the pay dispute.

The editorial refers to the Police action as in effect a strike against the public, and it should not be rewarded. The action by the Police is against the City Manager and the City Council and possibly only against the City Council because they accept the advise and recommendations of the City Manager. The public can easily solve the City's dispute with the Police Officers by demanding that the City Officials go to final and binding arbitration.

When it comes to tax hikes, we must think big the debate that would precipitate. The same is true of cuts in spending for civilian needs and welfare. Accordingly, any serious attack on inflation requires an increase in taxes. This, too, will involve debate, but when enacted the effect will be immediate. Anything else is oratory. The resurrection of the Cost of Living Council was also bad political theater. It admits of the need for wage and price control but not of the need for making it effective. The President of the United States already had the right of free speech.

What taxes?

The rule should be to tax those who have benefited most (or suffered least) from inflation and to spare as much as possible the others. Also the tax increases should not unsettle the wage structure. To this end, I would put a surtax of (say) 10 per cent on prsonal taxes paid on incomes above $15,000 and 20 per cent on taxes on incomes above $20,000. The corporation income tax should also go up a few points. And the excise tax should be put back on heavy automobiles and a new one applied to air conditioners, other energy-using apparatus and a wide range of other luxury commodities and services. (I'm attracted by the idea of putting a stiff tax on the expensive, steak-replete, nutritionally wasteful restaurant meal and of suspending for the time being the tax deduction for all entertainment that involves eating. This would help a little to keep the affluent from bidding up the food costs of the poor.) There can, my liberal friends must recognize, be no tax reduction in the middle of a runaway inflation. Tax increases to contend with inflation should also be kept separate from tax reform, urgent though the latter is. Once prices are reasonably stable, people in the lower brackets can be and should be given important relief.

It is the tax increase that, more than anything else, shows that the government is serious about inflation. Better, then, that it be too big than too small. On one economic proposition all can agree: Taxes can be reduced without deep pain and with sane celerity. It should be noted that such room as there may be for ideological choice in inflation control is in the taxes that are used. A devout conservative would, doubtless, seek to spare the rich, put more of the burden than I have on the poor. I don't think a wise conservative would wish to do so.

Controls, you might have seen, have been ruled out.

I noticed. And, in its way, this is in a notable presidential tradition. Harry Truman opposed their use in the Korean war and then used them. Richard Nixon was vehemently against them until August 1971. Then he thought them essential for getting by the 1972 election. Perhaps I could be allowed a personal confession. In the spring of 1941 I was put in charge of price control because I had written a paper showing how in the event of war its use could be minimized. This was in contrast with the view of people (most notably Baruch) who said that a comprehensive system was inescapable. In subsequent months I faced the choice between jettisoning my earlier beliefs and principles or leaving office a disastrous failure. I never wavered, was astonished at how easily one made the requisite adjustment. Unions do shove up wages. Wage costs do shove up prices. Corporations do raise prices. Living costs do incite to wage increases. Controls apart, this cycle can only be arrested by a truly mammoth depression. Here ideological choice disappears. The same grim circumstances would hold for Barry Goldwater as President as would hold for Father Robert Drinan. The only way to evade these circumstances is to fail.

Don't controls interfere with, as it is reverently called, the free market?

No. That interference developed when we got big corporations and strong unions. General Motors fixes its prices and, in conjunction with the United Auto Workers, wages too. The recent increase of $500 per car and the token retreat by $54 were a manifestation of that power — the proof that the interference with the market is already a fact. It follows that price-and-wage controls only substitute public price- and wage-fixing for private price- and wage-fixing.

It might be added that control of prices and wages is neither necessary nor desirable where there is no private power to set them — where they are, in fact, established by small firms in the market and thus can be controlled by demand. I would not control prices of firms employing fewer than 1,000 workers or bother with any wages (executive salaries apart) that are not covered by a union contract.

Wasn't the recent experience with controls ghastly?

Yes, terrible. But unfortunately the issue is not one of choice but necessity. And look what happened to prices when those admittedly lousy controls were lifted! The lesson is that controls must be administered by people who believe in them. So administered, they served a highly essential function in World War II and the Korean war and helped prevent inflation in circumstances far more difficult than now. The Nixon controls were irresponsibly administered by men who opposed the policy, set up no organization for administration or enforcement, went, lunar-fashion, from one phase to another and fatuously promised that all control would soon be ended. Control must be for as long as we have big corporations, strong unions and reasonably satisfactory employment.

Don't your liberal friends say that recession, not inflation, is the real danger?

Many do, and here, reluctantly, I part company with them. Economists, like other people, are conditioned by their experience. During the Great Depression of the thirties the economists of masterful reputation, when asked to prescribe for the slump, nearly all warned sternly that inflation was the real peril. That is what they had experienced in World War I or had seen or experienced in Austria, Germany or elsewhere in Central Europe in the early twenties. The men of comparable distinction today have spent their lives prescribing for recession and unemployment, testing all policy by its effect on Gross National Product. It is with these matters that their books and their textbooks deal. So, when asked about inflation, they revert to the world they know and warn of recession. Also, as this catchism sufficiently tells, the things you do against inflation are, without exception, profoundly unpleasant in the short run. The remedies for recession — lower interest rates, lower taxes, more public spending, no controls — are all lovely. Economists, like others, want to be loved, yearn to be the hearers of glad tidings.

Are you saying a recession is impossible?

By no means. No sensible economist risks his reputation by saying things like that. It is the kind of thing people remember. There are, in fact, serious dangers in the present reliance on monetary policy with its highly erratic effects. I am saying that inflation is the problem we have and that no, absolutely no, politicians should make poicy on the basis of economic prediction. Prediction is especially unreliable now, for there is no experience with the public reaction to inflation at the present rate — to its effect on savings or the resort to spendable assets, for example. And there is ever the danger that economic prediction is subordinate to what the economist making the prediction wishes to prescribe. Mr. Nixon's economists, year after year, predicted that inflation was at an end. That allowed them to prescribe inaction, which is what they favored. Some of my friends predict recession because that allows them to urge the measures that are so nice.

Is there danger of unemployment if inflation is attacked too vigorously?

Considering how unpleasant the action against inflation is, and considering as well the portents of the new administration so far, excessive vigor is a danger that can be discounted. As to unemployment, many who warn of the danger are really seeking an excuse of avoiding inflation's unpleasant remedies. In 1926, France stabilized after a long, bad inflation with little unemployment. There was unemployment in Germany following the stabilization of 1923 but it was quickly over. That was after the worst inflation in modern times. The German stabilization in 1948 was followed by a huge expansion in employment. As noted, the present stagnation is the result, in considerable part, of trying to control inflation exclusively with tight money and high interest rates. This causes unemployment in the industries that depend on borrowed money. A broad spectrum attack on inflation would, as it succeeded, allow of lower interest rates, larger industrial investment, more residential construction and more employment in the industries like housing that are now starved for money.

No one really knows the effect of stabilization on unemployment, but because unemployment is a possibility steps must be taken to minimize its impact. The cost of ending inflation should not fall on those who lose their jobs. Public-service employment, paid for by the federal government, is one answer — and a consensus seems to be developing on its use. I would urge as more important an emergency supplement to unemployment compensation to keep to a minimum the loss of family income. Such special expenditures are to assist those specific persons who lose their jobs. They are an alternative to supporting employment by general increases in all spending or general changes in all taxation. Their budget effect is much smaller. Such inflationary effects as these expenditures do have can and should be offset by increased taxes.

Will the economic summit help?

The problem is not one of knowledge but of political will. It will help if it reinforces will, but not if, as seems more probable, it searches for ways of evading pain.

How long would it take to end inflation by the measures just specified?

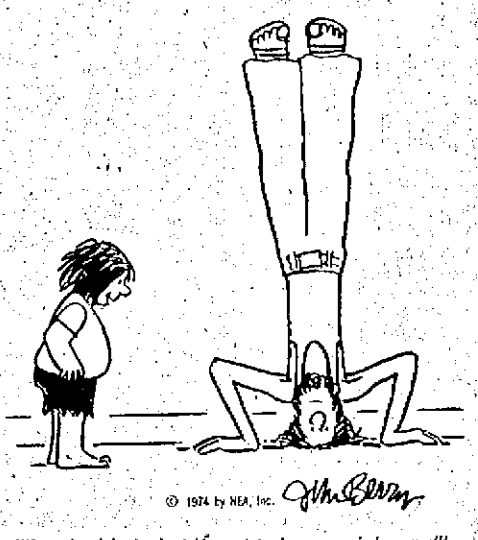

Nearly everything depends on the energy with which they are applied. In the absence of a major disaster to the world food supply, inflation could be brought down to 3 or 4 per cent within a year. Beyond that, it is more difficult. Wages that have lagged will have to catch up. Also with controls one always cures injustice by raising the low wage or price rather than reducing the high one. And there is always some further upward drift. All depends on the determination with which action is taken, including the willingness to sack advisers who promise results and do not prevail.

Something has to give to end inflation, and it cannot be the incomes of the poor. So the spending of the affluent and the profits of the corporations are what must be squeezed. Complaints from these quarters must be heard with the utmost compassion and then largely ignored. During World War II those of us who had charge of prices developed a personally damaging form of economic sadism which caused us to feel bad if anyone went out of the OPA offices smiling. Few did. Men of similar youth and energy and equally perverse personality must now, somehow, be found. No doubt they still exist.

Do you expect such action?

Eventually, but not soon. The political choice is wonderfully clear. It is between politically painful action in the short run and political extinction in the somewhat longer run. Most politicians will avoid the immediate pain — hoping that Providence will intervene to save them from their eventual fate. Some unpleasant surgery in Vietnam in 1965 would have saved Lyndon Johnson in 1968. No doubt he believed in the enterprise but he also knew that liquidation of the Vietnam misadventure would bring an eruption on the right and rumblings from the Joint Chiefs. The descent into the quagmire seemed easier. Nixon could have cut his Watergate losses in July 1972 or even later and survived as President. But to sack John Mitchell and the others presumptively involved would have made waves. So he too opted for peace in the short run and San Clemente now. On past form, therefore, the nasty things that are needed to end inflation will also be finessed or postponed. A few more presidents, premiers and prime ministers must bite the dust before it is the conventional wisdom that inflation (like unemployment till now) is politically mortal. Also there is the matter of advisers. These, unlike the men they advise, do not suffer the extinction. So they can urge the easy course. Then, when their man is defeated, they can go back to advising businessmen on the economic outlook, or to teaching the young. A sobering thought.

L.A.C. Says

By L.A. COLLINS SR.

The growing surplus of school teachers

Up until 10 years ago there was a shortage of qualified school teachers. The average pay for teachers was less than $6,000 a year. Today the average pay is close to $11,000 a year. But there were over 290,000 college graduates trained for teaching this year with only 118,800 of them finding positions. As a result, school officials are frustrated in their desires to bring into their system more of these highly qualified new graduates.

This is the theme of a U.S. News and World Report survey and charts indicating the problem. It tells of the need for new methods of dealing with the problem of providing for retirement of some older and less efficient teachers who are protected in their jobs by tenure which gives them almost absolute security. It says many present teachers were hired during the shortage periods of 10 to 20 years ago who are not as qualified as are the recent graduates. Many of these 118,000 newly employed will not be given tenure after three years if they are not satisfactory.

The surplus of graduate teachers has steadily increased in the past 10 years with only a slight decrease in the past two years. The high point was 1972 when about 300,000 were graduated with only 40 per cent of them finding jobs. This caused about 3,000 of them to go to Australia where they found openings with starting pay of $10,500 tax free pay. Some others have gone to other countries such as South Korea and Kenya.

The Cleveland, Ohio, school superintendent says we are seeing the best group of candidates we have seen in 20 years. But we don't have any openings because people are not leaving. We will probably hire about 200 people, but we will have about 10,000 applicants this year. In Nashville, Tenn., only 150 new teachers are being hired out of about 3,000 applicants. In areas where enrollment has fallen drastically even teachers with tenure and the younger people with low seniority are being laid off.

Some school union officials concede that upgrading is needed in the teaching profession. The newly elected president of the American Federation of Teachers and a former math instructor said he was perturbed when teachers were unable to explain why his own children were getting failure grades in arithmetic. So I got out some flash cards and drilled them for a few days and soon they were doing fine. He asked why this could not have been done in the schoolrooms.

A former teacher of geography who is now program officer for education at the Ford Foundation says there are incompetent teachers who are protected by tenure, by unions and by plain neglect on the part of their supervisors. The process of dismissing a tenured teacher is so complex few administrators care to try it.

Even so about a dozen states including California have passed laws requiring regular evaluation of working teachers in hopes of getting them to do a better job or getting out of the profession. Another 17 states are working on new standards that would require prospective teachers to demonstrate practical classroom skills.

In two years 57 San Diego teachers were judged "less than effective" and were issued warnings. None were fired, but about 20 quit and the rest were given advice on how to improve. Kern County is sending teams of teachers into classrooms to make appraisals and officials report "full cooperation from the faculty."

California is fortunate that the great majority of its tenured teachers are highly qualified. It is tragic that so many of the newly graduated cannot be employed. It can maean a large reduction in the number preparing for the profession in future years. With education the second greatest cost of government, second only to defense, it is evident our educational system will be under great pressure in the years ahead as birth rates remain low and fewer teachers and classrooms are needed.

Schools open Monday; strike threat still looms

By KRIS SHERMAN
Staff Writer

Fall semester classes are scheduled to begin Monday for an estimated 60,000 students in the Long Beach Unified School District, but the possibility of a teachers' strike still looms over the schools.

Following a 2½-hour negotiating session last Wednesday, teachers said they would postpone any strike action until after additional talks planned for Sept. 25.

The teachers, represented by the Teachers Association of Long Beach (TALB) and the Long Beach Federation of Teachers (LBFT) have asked the district for a 12 per cent wage increase.

THE DISTRICT, meanwhile, has offered teachers a 6.1 per cent pay hike retroactive to last July 1. Earlier this year, teachers were given a 2 per cent pay raise, and school board members say the district simply cannot afford to pay more.

Though teachers repeatedly have threatened to strike the first day of school, a district spokesman said the district's 3,000 teachers will be on hand Monday to lead the students through an abbrievated first day of classes.

Classes are scheduled to begin at 8:30 a.m. at all junior and senior high schools, while most elementary school classes are to begin at 9 a.m.

All students will be dismissed by 2 p.m. to permit teachers and staff members to evaluate the first day's activities and make necessary adjustments, the spokesman said.

HE SAID the regular class schedule would begin on Tuesday.

Cafeterias at all district schools also will begin operation Monday. Elementary pupils may purchase a hot tray lunch for 45 cents, but the price of junior and senior high school lunches has been increased to 50 cents. Half-pints of milk still are 7 cents.

Students who have not already enrolled are advised to report to their school office one-half hour early to complete registration and receive class assignments, the spokesman said.

If parents have any question about which school their child should attend, they may call the school nearest their home for information.

THE SPOKESMAN said adult classes also begin Monday. Prospective students may sign up this week during the first meeting of evening courses offered by the School for Adults at Wilson High School and other locations throughout the city.

A few openings still are available in art, business, English, foreign languages, history, home economics and industrial arts courses, according to the spokesman.

Schedules of classes may be obtained from local public libraries and at the School for Adults, 845 Park Ave. Most of the tuition-free classes begin at 7 p.m., and registration may be completed during the first class session.

Great big boat in his yard

BOB SANDERS

A lot of people in Southern California build little boats in their backyards, but Dennis Holland is building a great big boat in his front yard.

And it is, by no means, an ordinary boat. Neither is Dennis Holland an ordinary boat builder. The 29-year-old, handsomely mustached Holland is an expert boatbuilder, having served a six-year apprenticeship in boat building with a Costa Mesa boatworks.

Not satisfied with the ordinary, run-of-the-mill boats made of plywood and fibreglass, he has chosen as his major work building a full-scale replica of an old sailing ship, a 118-foot brigantine, named the Roger B. Taney, which plied the waters of the world for almost a hundred years beginning in the early 1800s.

DENNIS HOLLAND ABOARD HIS BRIGANTINE
Been working on the vessel for more than four years

"I CHOSE the Roger B. because it existed before cameras," he explains. "It seemed like more of a challenge."

He got plans and drawings of the boat from the Smithsonian Insitute and began work on the project in May, 1970.

After four solid years of work, he has completed most of the major work and the boat now dominates the front yard of Holland's home at 2476 Santa Ana Ave. in Costa Mesa.

"I had planned to complete her in November," he says, "but the cost of everything has gone up so much that now I am hoping for January or February."

He had originally figured the boat would cost between $25,000 and $35,000 but now has upped that figure to around $100,000.

With an absolute devotion to authenticity Holland has done almost all of the work on the boat with hand tools, using the strongest woods and materials available.

"I got this winch off an old square rigger in San Pedro," he says with obvious pride, shoving the handle of the 20-foot boom up and down.

He is also justly proud of the giant ship's wheel he and a friend handmade of mahogany inlaid with oak.

OF COURSE, even a young, energetic man like Holland couldn't complete a project like the Roger B. without the cooperation of his family. And Holland has that. His lovely wife, Betty, is wholeheartedly behind the project.

In the beginning she worked as a secretary to help finance the beginning of the operation. Then she moved into the partially complete boat to live so they could rent their house.

Now, with the addition of a three-month-old daughter, named Julie Marie, she does some baby sitting to augment the family income while Holland has been working at several projects to finance teh boat.

The most recent job Holland has done was building wooden bridges in a housing tract. Next week he starts building a triplex for a guy who wants a triplex built down the street from his house. "When I finish that," he hopes, "I should have enough money to complete the boat."

When he does he and Betty hope to spend next summer taking groups of paying young people on cruises around Southern California waters to save enough money for their real ambition—a cruise around the world.

IN ADDITION to the main cabin, which the Hollands will also use as an office there are two other cabins which they will rent out on their cruises and bunks for about 30 people.

Holland, who grew up in Long Beach and got his first taste of boatbuilding putting together model boats to sail in the Colorado Lagoon, hopes eventually to build another, larger boat on the East Coast.

He hopes to buy some land at Martha's Vineyard and settle there. "But that's a while off," he says.

Friday 13th lucky day, after all

Army Capt. Andrew Johnson never was the superstitious type, but he really believed Friday the 13th was his unlucky day.

Until a 16-year-old Good Samaritan proved him wrong.

While riding his bicycle in Belmont Shore, Johnson, of 3635 E. First St., lost his wallet, which contained credit cards, military identification and $91 in cash.

Though he discovered the missing wallet only minutes after it apparently fell out of his pocket in front of the Coast Bank on East Second Street, Johnson said it was nowhere to be found when he returned to look for it.

Thinking he would probably never see the wallet —or the $91—again, the young captain went home cursing his bad luck.

But Saturday, he received a call from Phillip Jordan, who said he found the wallet shortly after 3 p.m. Friday in front of the bank.

Phillip, the son of Forrest D. Jordan, of 130 Claremont Ave., took the wallet home. With the aid of his parents, Phillip notified authorities at Fort MacArthur, who told the Jordans how to get in touch with Johnson.

"If it hadn't been for him (Phillip), I'd be out 90 bucks," said Johnson, who added he gave the teen-ager a $20 reward.

"It's a super deal," said the captain. "There just aren't that many people young or old who would give back $90."

Calculator taken

A calculator valued at $367 was taken from a Long Beach Unified School District truck parked on Orange Avenue north of 10th Street, police said Saturday.

Laguna artist list expanded

Instead of limiting exhibitors in the famed Laguna Beach Festival of Arts to Laguna only, the invitation list will be extended to artists and craftsmen living along the coast.

The 1975 season will begin July 11 and close Aug. 24.

Burglars take 4 air conditioners

Four automobile air conditioners, valued together at $640, were taken from Holiday American, 1427 Long Beach Blvd., by burglars who pried the hasp off of a storage room door, Long Beach police reported Saturday.

Quail—'sexiest of birds'

The Japanese are very big in quail eggs, exporting and eating them by the millions, he says. They think a bird with this kind of sex life has a lot going and maybe some of it is transferable, he figures.

For the Chinese, the quail's magic is more curative, he says. Indeed, China's last Empress Dowager carried a quail in a cage wherever she went, for two reasons: One was to keep her hands warm by holding them inside the cage, and the other was to try to absorb some of the bird's immunity to disease, which is also tops in the bird world, he says.

Marsh says he has a steady stream of Chinese customers who buy birds to send to ailing friends or family.

"You Americans get sick and you eat beef and pork and chicken and you are still sick. We Chinese eat quail and get well," Marsh quoted on customer.

Fortunately, Marsh says, he got right in on the crest of the wave of bird fancying, and his trade has increased to the point where he's planning a huge expansion. His fertile fowl now grace aviaries from Kuwait to Katmandu, Alaska to Chile, as well as classroom incubators all over the world.

He also has a large scattering of pheasants, ducks, geese, guinea hens, turkeys, rheas (South American ostrich) and a few odd birds donated by people who bought a pet they didn't know what to do with.

But mainly its quail, quail, and more quail. So many he long ago lost exact count but he figures it might be around 10,000.

All he knows is they've outgrown their quarters and are still multiplying at a rate that would make a Zero Population Growth crusader blanch. He's going to put a new roof over their heads soon, a two-story office and nursery building designed strictly for the birds.

Recreation plans for fair grounds

Closely guarded plans for a major recreational development at the Orange County Fair grounds in Costa Mesa will be outlined Thursday by the Costa Mesa City Council.

A press briefing will be at 3 p.m. that day at the police auditorium and an open meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. at the same place.

Mayor Robert Wilson declined to release details of the city's proposal but he said it would involve major outlays and would be oriented toward recreation.

In fact, he insisted, "it will be the biggest thing to hit the county since Disneyland."

He said it would include remaking the fair's entire layout and utilizing the entire 163 acres owned by the 32nd Agricultural District, the legal entity that operates the fair. The fair itself does not use all the land.

Mayor Wilson conceded that the fair is state property and a state responsibility, "but because the fairgrounds are in Costa Mesa, we're interested in good development.

Manager James Porterfield of the fair agreed that the fairgrounds need upgrading.

He also the fair board has studied many plans for development on the fair grounds, most of them centered around recreational concepts. None, however, havematerialized.

Porterfield said the fair directors "know that Costa Mesa has spent a lot of time developing this proposal, and the directors will go into the meeting with a positive attitude."

Fire near Gardena causes $200,000 damage to shops

Three shops were heavily damaged early Saturday after a fire of unknown origin caused an estimated $200,000 damage to a commercial building in an unincorporated area near Gardena.

Ten units of county firemen battled the blaze, at 14604 Crenshaw Blvd., for 40 minutes before bringing it under control. Firemen said the blaze was apparently burning for about two hours before they were called at 6:17.

The building housed two plumbing shops, a yarn shop and a hardware store, firemen said. Addresses on the stores ranged from 14604 to 14612. The businesses shared a common attic in the stucco building. All but one plumbing shop were badly damaged, according to Asst. Fire Chief Paul Schnieder.

A chance for elderly to visit far-away places

Everyone dreams of faraway places, says the brochure advertising Long Beach City College's minitours for senior citizens.

And for many elderly persons in the Long Beach area who take the minitours, the San Onofre nuclear plant and the trout hatchery at Filmore really are far away.

Those are two of the places senior citizens will visit on City College's bus trips this month. Some are even closer.

The shipyards at Terminal Island, for instance, are far away for persons who don't own cars or can no longer drive.

Breaking the isolation that elderly persons find themselves in is a main goal of the tours, college officials say.

The course—called "Travel in Southern California"—starts next week, but sign-ups for the next two series of trips are already full.

LBCC officials said senior citizens interested in signing up should call the Senior Citizens Leisure Education Center at Business and Technology Campus, 599-2421 ext. 536.

Some of the bus trips start from BTC. Others start from other points in the Long Beach area.

The schedule for upcoming bus trips includes the wildlife sanctuaries in the Whittier Narrows area, botanical gardens on the Palos Verdes Peninsula, museums in Los Angeles, CBS studios where TV programs are being taped and marine exhibits in San Pedro.

The mini-tours are the idea of Dr. Adolph Stone, a geography professor at LBCC.

Because of the special courses that LBCC offers senior citizens, educators from 50 major colleges and universities will meet at BTC Sept. 27 to discuss colleges and the elderly.

The project is part of the California Higher Education Study on Aging.

Dr. Sheril V. Hill, BTC dean and conference coordinator, said ways for providing more college services to senior citizens will be examined.

Under disucssion will be courses to assist older persons in coping with the problems of everyday living, including diets, food preparation, travel, medical information, home repairs and retraining for part-time work.

Benefit for marine institute

A benefit barbecue dinner at Dana Point Marina on Sept. 15 will be the kickoff event for an ambitious project of raising $3 million for the proposed Marine Studies Institute there.

Orange County officials, long advocating a Marine Studies Institute as a tool for both high schools and colleges, acquired a 3½-acre site at the anchor end of the marina's breakwater. They plan to build and outfit a structure there to house the facility, which would be supported by private contributions.

For the barbecue day, parking will be free on county-owned lots, according to Ray Bradley, chairman of the event. He said he hopes to have 1,000 persons as guests during the serving time of from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Stylish new townehomes grace Cypress Monterey

The dramatic and stylish new townehomes of Cypress Monterey, a cluster of feature-filled dwellings done in contemporary Spanish architecture, continue to be one of the most popular offerings in today's housing market.

Now in its final phase of construction, the $6 million community made up of "mini-neighborhoods" will consist of just 187 homes.

Since its opening in March of this year, more than 145 already have been sold, according to representatives of Kurth & Associates, Inc., sales agent.

The walled community of Cypress Monterey with its electronically controlled security gates is a park-like neighborhood with three lighted tennis courts and eight heated swimming pools and therapy pools scattered strategically throughout.

No homeowner is more than a minute from relaxing recreation.

AN OFFERING of William J. Krueger, president of Showcase Homes, close-in Cypress Monterey is a mix of several unique floor plans topped off by a tri-level unit with three bedrooms, a choice of three kitchen arrangements and 2½ baths.

"No one lives over anyone else at Cypress Monterey," Krueger pointed out.

The two bedroom plans, each with two baths, are spacious and include patios that add an extension to the living area.

Within the dwellings, homebuyers will find as price-included features central air conditioning, wall-to-wall shag carpeting, quality color-coordinated draperies, walk-in closets or huge wardrobes, master suites with deluxe private baths, a laundry area and two-car attached garages with extra storage space.

Worksaving kitchens with luminous ceilings are complete with built-in electric range, oven, dishwasher and disposal. High pressure laminate is used for countertops and the roomy cupboards.

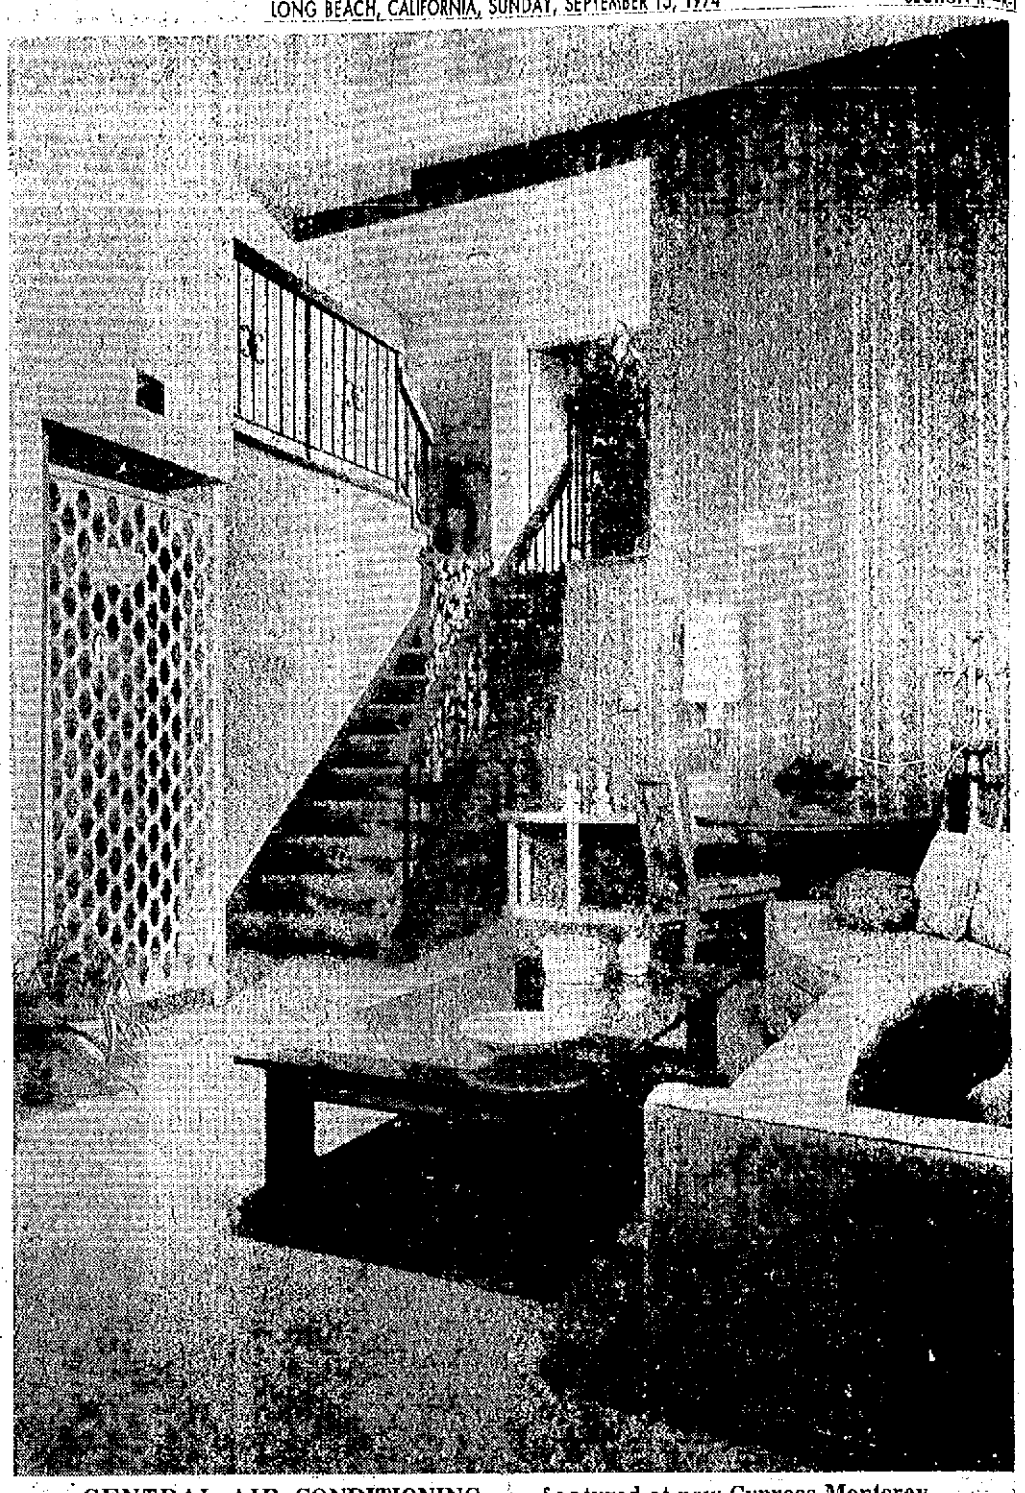

CYPRESS Monterey townehomes are priced from $26,995 with conventional financing available.

Close to freeways leading in all directions, the townehome community is handy to beaches and marinas, employment areas of south Los Angeles and Orange County, several major shopping malls with full service shops, fine restaurants and places of entertainment.

Decorated models are open daily from 10 a.m. at 9856 Lido Way within the community, located at Ball Road and Valley View Avenue, Cypress. Exit either the San Diego or Garden Grove Freeways at Valley View and drive north to the intersection and Cypress Monterey. An alternate route is to exit the Artesia Freeway and drive south.

Villa Frontera low interest rate attracts

An unusual location next to a 75 acre park combined with 7¾ percent interest rates for buyers under both VA and FHA programs are the reasons for a fast take-off of sales at Phase II of Villa Frontera Townhouses in East Anaheim, reports Larry Armour, president of Armour-Development Company.

Phase II sales are continuing the record of the project as one of the fastest selling developments of its kind in Orange County.

"The 7¾ per cent interest rate makes it easier for young families to move up to a new life style and a country atmosphere," said Armour.

"Most of our buyers are veterans who have the added advantage of purchasing units with no down payment. The second largest group includes families who can qualify under the FHA program with the same interest rate and minimum down payments."

ALL 82 units in Phase I were sold out in three months this year.

Construction of the 74 homes in Phase II is moving ahead rapidly so that homes will be available for occupancy early next year right on schedule.

All models and all building sites are still available in Phase II on a first come first served basis. Four furnished models are on display every day from 10 a.m. to dusk on Frontera Street just west of the Glassell Street off ramp from the Riverside Freeway.

Two and three bedroom models, with four different floor plans are available.

Prices start at $32,950.

UNITS ARE clustered around small private cul-de-sac streets. Between and around the units are landscaped greenbelts with night lighted walkways for strolling or for children to tricycle free from through traffic.

The 75-acre park and recreation complex with its 35 acre lake is one of the largest developments of its kind planned for Orange County.

It will open up a wide range of activities and facilities for residents of Villa Frontera Townhouses, including boating, sailing, several huge swimming areas, sandy beaches, canoeing, tennis, horseback riding, bicycle riding on special trails, ball games on all types of special fields, picnicing, playgrounds, restaurants, and other features on a grand scale.

EXTRA large garages provide camper and motor home storage, and for workbenches and extra storage. The enclosed two car garages, all with access directly to the homes, give each resident guest parking adjacent to the front door of each home.

Units have separate family rooms, large master bedroom suites, solid carved entry doors, dramatic natural lighted stairwells, full insulation for sound, heat and cold, forced air electric heating (fully prepared for refrigerated air conditioning), natural ash cabinets, luminous kitchen ceilings, pantry storage, clerestory windows, electric kitchens with built-in ranges, dishwashers, and disposals, shag carpeting, and linen closets.

The model complex can be reached by turning off Riverside Freeway at Glassell Street (two miles west of the Newport Freeway), then west on Frontera Street, following the signs.

Leisure easy at Pacific Gardens

Leisure-time activities for residents have been an important consideration in the impressive master plan for Pacific Gardens in Garden Grove.

Homeowners have their own private recreation center and the development is adjacent to a 40-acre park for a variety of family pastimes.

In the new $3.3 million project of Pacific Development and Construction Co. more than one-third of the total land area has been reserved for open space. Recreation facilities include a private clubhouse, huge heated swimming pool and children's play area.

Interesting greenbelts between the clusters of residences are interlaced with winding walkways leading to the pool area. Lavish landscaping, accented by specimen trees and flowering shrubs create a serene, garden-park atmosphere throughout the community.

The grounds, recreation facilities and exteriors of the homes are all fully maintained by the Homeowners Association.

PACIFIC Gardens offers one and two-story townhomes in five floor plans including two-bedroom, one-bath homes in single-story design, and up to three bedrooms, two baths and powder room in two-story models.

The quality homes, in striking contemporary exterior stylings, are priced from $27,950 to $37,950 with 8½ per cent financing available.

Each townhome has a private fenced patio leading to an enclosed two-car garage with laundry room and storage space.

Luxury features standard at Pacific Gardens include roomy kitchens with built-in appliances such as range, self-cleaning double oven, dishwasher, disposal and trash compactor, luminous ceiling, hardwood panel cabinets, formica counters and pass-thru window to a patio serving bar.

Raised tile entries lead to formal living rooms and there are lavish baths off huge master suites with abundant storage and wardrobe space. Wall-to-wall shag carpeting and color-coordinated draperies, shake roofs, copper piping, deluxe light fixtures and forced air heating are also included.

LOCATED AT Magnolia Avenue and Westminster Avenue, Pacific Gardens is freeway-close to several regional shopping centers with full service shops and stores, beaches and marinas, golf courses and tennis courts.

Schools at all grade levels are within walking or biking distance and the development is handy to key employment areas of Long Beach and Orange County.

Furnished model homes are open daily from 10 a.m. at 1979 Westminster Ave. in Garden Grove under the direction of Forest E. Olson, sales agents.

Pacific Gardens may be easily reached by taking the Garden Grove Freeway to Magnolia then driving south a short distance to Westminster and the new townhome community.

Springhurst on hilltop

Springhurst, a luxury townhome development presented by The Alva Wilson Company, is showing spacious two to four-bedroom one or two-story models on a secluded hilltop site in Huntington Beach.

The builder reports there will be only 97 homes in the limited community, with five and a half units per acre, permitting generous expanse of green belt and private walkways.

Homes are elegantly planned to accomodate the most discriminating taste and lifestyle.

Refinements include wood-burning fireplaces, front and rear enclosed patios, and a full complement of kitchen appliances including self-clean ovens and trash compactors.

Larger models have three baths.

Electronic garage door openers and storage space for recreation vehicles are also provided.

FAMILIES will enjoy such private club facilities as pool, whirlpool and sauna. There is a three-acre park adjacent to the community.

Prices begin at $41,900 with choice of financing and interest as low as 8 per cent. The choice location in one of Orange County's rapidly diminishing beach areas offers swimming and boating facilities nearby, convenient freeway access and full-service shopping centers minutes away.

To view the models take San Diego Freeway or Coast Highway to Beach Boulevard, Beach to Ellis, Ellis to Newland and turn left to Springhurst entrance at top of hill.

House market value rises faster than pay

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — According to a popular saying, many of us could not afford to buy the house in which we now live, because its market value has risen so much faster than our paychecks.

In January 1972 the average price of a standard single-family house was $24,700, according to the Department of Commerce. In March of this year the same category of housing had a price tag of $35,800.

The more than 40 per cent increase in housing compares with roughly a 10 or 11 per cent increase in median family income during the same period, thus making it much more difficult for prospective homebuyers.

Those who already own their homes needn't worry — some are elated — but it does startle some homeowners to realize that if they were to seek the same house today they might not be able to afford it.

A similar situation is developing in regard to automobiles.

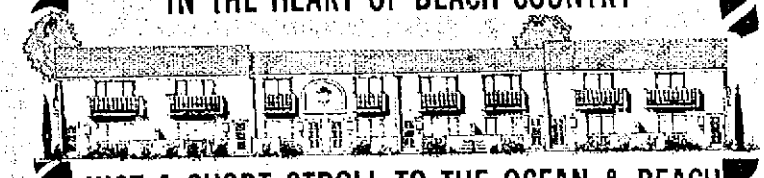

IN 1955 the average retail selling price of all news cars was $2,830, and median family income was $4,421. That meant a new car cost 64 per cent of a year's income.

From that high mark, the percentage of income needed to buy a car fell fairly steadily, reaching a low of 32.6 per cent in 1973, when the average car price was $3,931 and median income was $12,051.

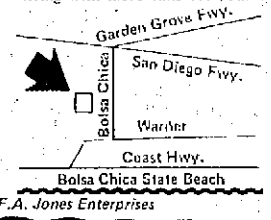

Now, however, the swiftly accelerating prices of cars seems to be forcing a reversal of the trend, according to Goldman, Sachs & Co., the securities house.

It estimates that the percentage will reach 33.7 for 1973, with median family income around $13,000.

Land planning key to Westminster Monterey

Distinctive land planning at Westminster Monterey, a new townehome community built by Showcase Homes, Inc., offers residents the use of five swimming pools and five therapy pools, two lighted tennis courts and beautifully landscaped grounds arranged in a series of mini-neighborhoods.

The private, walled community reflects the intimacy of a small village where security and serenity prevail. The two-story townhomes are clustered in groupings from five to eight enhancing the individuality and the neighborhood atmosphere of the residential development.

Located in Westminster, with schools of all levels within easy reach, the two and three-bedroom townhomes are priced from $33,995 to $37,995, according to Dick Kurth, president of Kurth & Associates, sales agents.

INTERIORS of the luxurious homes are complete with wall-to-wall carpeting in all major areas and vinyl flooring in secondary areas. Air-conditioning is optional. Each home has a private enclosed patio and a two-car garage leading to the rear patio or atrium.

Garages are equipped with automatic door openers for convenience and security. Laundry facilities have an area reserved in the garage.

Spacious, work-saving kitchens have luminous ceilings and a built-in range, oven, dishwasher and disposer. Counter space and cabinets are arranged for easy meal preparation and convenience.

Oversize wardrobes in the bedrooms, cupboards and extra storage space in the garage assist homemakers.

Approved security locks on doors are augmented by the entraguard security system at the entrance to Westminster Monterey. Residents have key cards for entry while visitors are identified by the phone at the entry gates.

PRIOR TO the completion of model homes, sales are conducted from a sales building at the site which is open daily from 10 a.m. Visual presentations of the floorplans and elevations are on display at the Brookhurst Street site between Bolsa and McFadden.

To see Westminster Monterey, take the San Diego Freeway to Brookhurst Street and drive north on Brookhurst to the new townhome community. An alternate route would be from the Garden Grove Freeway, exiting at Brookhurst and driving south on Brookhurst to the new townhome residences in Westminster.

WHAT'S YOUR PROBLEM?

Planning, thought help ease moving

By DON CAMPBELL

An "easy" move? Forget it. There's no such animal.

No matter how many times in our life we've done it we just never seem to remember how many boxes of junk we've accumulated, how many hidden expenses there are, or how wrenching it is to leave old friends and be suddenly surrounded by strangers.

MR. CAMPBELL:

In about three years, my husband and I will be moving to the south for health reasons. We must wait these three years because my husband cannot retire until then.

Either way, we have to sell our home here in the northeast in order to build a home in Virginia where we have purchased a lot. It is going to be hard for us to pull up our roots from one state and settle in another without having any unexpected things cropping up.

Anything, or any information or help that you could give us would be greatly appreciated. Please, if possible, let us know what the tax people expect from us after the sale of our home here in the northeast. — Mrs. C. C., Buffalo, N.Y.

ANSWER: I'm not going to try to tell you that the whole thing is going to be a snap and that you're making far too much out of it.

You've already anticipated what it's going to be like, but the only thing I can urge you to do — over the next three years — is to prepare yourself philosophically for the move.

You must know, and like, the area you have picked since you've already bought a lot there and that is about half the battle. Maybe you even have friends or relatives there which contributed to your decision.

If I were you I think that I'd spend the vacation time coming to you over the next three years by spending at least a portion of the time getting acquainted with the state, trying to establish some social contacts and perhaps even establishing banking connections in your home-to-be.

I wouldn't worry too much about the tax consequences of the sale of your home in the northeast.

Since you are planning to build a home in the south, rather than buy an existing one, any capital gains tax on your profit will be deferred as long as the one you are building costs as much or more as the adjusted sales price of your current home and as long as it is completed, and you're living in it, within 18 months after the sale of your old home.

(If you change your mind and buy an existing house this has to be done in a year.)

The profit on your home, incidentally, is the difference between the price at which you bought it and the price at which you sell it — less all capital improvements that you have made during your ownership (such as room additions and most other expenses that don't fall under the heading of normal maintenance).

You can also reduce the taxable profit by deducting all paint-up, fix-up expenses you incur in the 90 days before the sale of this home since these are viewed as selling expenses.

One consolation: as horrendous as relocation always seems in anticipation of it, it's never quite that bad when you get right down to the wire. It's only semi-horrendous.

MR. CAMPBELL:

We were shopping for a home and made it known to the real estate salesman that we were to collect money owed to us to make the down payment.

We were assured by letter (which we have), and several times verbally, that if we were unable to secure the funds from this individual our deposit would be refunded.

The salesman suddenly notified us that another party was ready to make an offer on the same house and if we were sincerely interested we should make the deposit.

On that short notice we didn't have an opportunity to discuss it with the party we were to collect our money from.

But I was again assured as I wrote out the deposit check that it would be refunded if the arrangements didn't work out.

Six weeks after this, when time for the down payment came due, we didn't have the money. We were then told we would lose our deposit by the real estate agent.

We did not want to borrow the down payment, as they suggested, because we did not want to get in too deeply. We will secure this money due us, but it may be several months.

So we feel that we would like to have this $500 deposit returned, as assured, and when we have the money in hand we can go ahead and buy our home. What do you recommend? — H. B., Des Moines, Ia.

ANSWER: You might be able to make a fair legal case on the basis of the fact that you do have a letter giving you the assurance that the deposit will be returned, but I question both the ethics and the logic of it all.

By making the deposit, you have effectively kept the house available to you,

Residential requirements in top Orange Co. priority

Orange County's major economic challenge between now and 1985 will be to balance residential requirements, Bill Peterson, manager at the Main and Ellis Bank of America in Huntington Beach, told the Huntington Beach Realty Board last week.

"The county has been the fastest growing area in California the past decade and there's no reason to expect anything different in the coming years," said Peterson. "It's just that the booming growth of the fifties and sixties will be a thing of the past."

The slowdown in growth, said Peterson, will give business people, government officials and residents a needed chance to catch their breath — and time to more judiciously plan for the future.

"Orange County can expect a population of 1,742,972 in 1975, approximately 8 per cent of California's total population, and more than 2,308,000 persons by 1985," he said.

"In short, the question being asked around Orange County is, How do we go from here?"

ALONG WITH the population growth, Bank of America predicts solid improvement in county employment figures. More than 400,000 persons were employed within the county in 1970, with that figure expected to more than double by 1985.

"That certainly dissipates the old and inaccurate image of Orange County as a so-called 'bedroom community'," smiled Peterson.

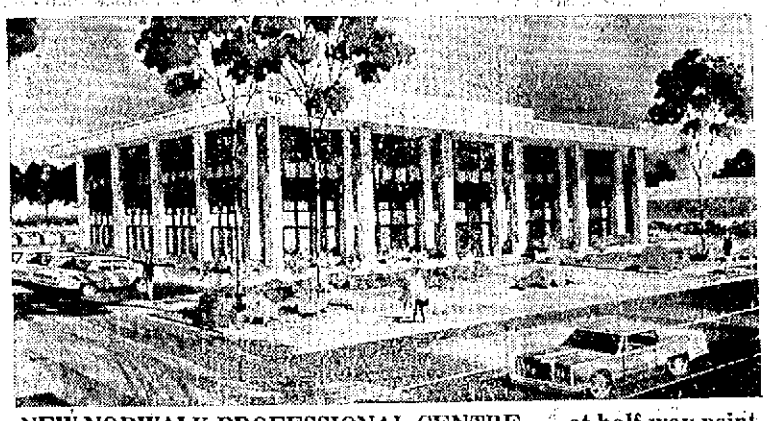

"Another image about the county about to be dissipated is that aerospace is just about the only source of employment. Once accounting for nearly 60 per cent of the county's manufacturing employment, the number had dropped to 45 per cent by 1972 and even further diversification is expected."

Peterson said the decline in aerospace employment in recent years has served as a rallying point for the acumen of Orange County business leaders.

"As a result," he said, "more and varied types of industrial developments have emerged with the result there is less chance for cycles of unemployment which can occur if an area is too dependent on a single major source of employment."

IN SUMMARIZING the economic outlook for Orange County, Peterson said, "All in all, Orange County appears to be more in control of its future than most other counties in California. The people have taken the first steps toward maintaining and improving the quality of Orange County living. This commitment to planned progress is essential to make that future even better."

The speech was based on the bank's recently published "Focus on Orange County." Copies of the focus are available at Bank of America offices.

NEW NORWALK PROFESSIONAL CENTRE . . . at half-way point

Norwalk Professional Centre being readied

Construction has reached the mid-way point on the $2 million Norwalk Professional Centre at 12727 Norwalk Blvd., (across from the Southeast Los Angeles County Superior Court Building and Civic Center) in Norwalk, according to Robert Singer of Los Alamitos, developer of the project with Kaiser-Aetna in a joint venture.

Early occupancy is expected to be made by October for some tenants. The 40,000-square-foot professional office building will house deluxe suites ranging from 400 square feet to 13,000 square feet (available in multiples of 400 square feet).

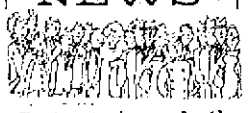

Ample parking for tenants and clients surround the entire building.

Leasing is being handled by H. M. Friedland Company and Staff on the site. According to Harold M. Friedland, partner and co-developer also in charge of leasing, "the building is being built for the professional office user in the hub of the Civic Center Complex and the Southeast Superior Court System. Its proximity to Los Angeles, Long Beach, Orange County, and the freeway systems makes this location an outstanding one."

DESIGNED in the "legal contemporary" style with warm color coordination by the Long Beach Architectural firm of Louis Shoall Miller, the three-story building will feature two elevators, decorator planned custom interiors, fully carpeted offices and corridors, floor to ceiling drapery, recessed lighting throughout, solid core doors, multi-zoned air-conditioning, sound resistant partitions, and management on the premises.

Completion is scheduled for December with Prelude Development serving as the general contractor.

EMBOSSED OR PAINTED PATTERNS . . . available in tile

DESIGN FOR LIVING

Early Greeks had ceramic tile

By EMILY MALINO

Ceramic tile is a unique material. It is very old; in fact, it goes back to Greece and Rome where it was used extensively within the homes.

In Mediterranean or other seaside countries, where wood floors and papered or painted walls don't suit the climate, ceramic tiles are used throughout the house on both floor and walls.

In some places, like Portugal, for example, or Turkey, it is used as an exterior as well as interior wall surface.

This versatile medium is only now being developed in this country. Recognizing that tile can, indeed, be used throughout the house, manufacturers are finally taking it out of the bathroom.

THE TILE that used to be available in pale pastel shades or rose, yellow, green and blue, obviously thought to be appropriate for bathrooms, is now being glazed in vermilion, lime, orange, ultramarine and emerald.

The tile that was once a simple glossy finish is now available in textured finishes of many kinds, making a non-slip surface suitable for floors as well as walls.

The tile that once came only in a four-by-four inch square now comes in many sizes as well as shapes. Even embossed or painted patterns are now available in many styles.

I've always liked to use tile in different rooms; I've designed entrance halls with ceramic tile floors and walls, I've tiled a barbecue fireplace on an outdoor deck, and even an indoor chimney and hearth.

IN A house I'm working on now, I'm using a large-scale ceramic tile in a bright blue textured glaze as a back splash over the sink; the tile is large, the size of a common brick, so running two tiles high it vertically gives me exactly the sixteen inches of space. I need to cover between the counter and the hanging cabinet over it.

I'm using the same blue tile for the top of a table I designed for the kitchen dining area.

Ceramic tile is still the most popular wall and floor covering for bathrooms; although it is slightly more costly initially than vinyl floors and wallpaper, it will outlast them twenty-to-one.

I live in a ninety-year-old house, for example, where the ceramic tile in the bathrooms is certainly the best preserved part of the place.

IN A bathroom I'm working on right now for a plant-lover, I used a 6" x 6" tile for the bath walls; I used a brilliant orange-red for the tub wall, from the top of the tub to the ceiling.

I used a bright glazed white tile in a 3" x 6" match for the right-angle shelf wall and a textured white tile for the floor in the same module.

The shapes and size provide continuity, while the bright color makes the long tub wall look closer visually, expanding the minidimensions of this little lavatory.

For further continuity, I made a wall-to-wall tiled shelf that holds powder and shampoo for the tub; towels in a niche near the sink and plants in between.

The shower curtain rod is continued over the shelf, where it makes a handy hook for a hanging plant basket.

The shower curtain is a white diagonal stripe screened on clear vinyl, so the beautiful red wall is not obscured by a heavy draped curtain, giving focus and good cheer to an ordinary bath.

Here's the answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeature

Q. — I have an aluminum mobile home. The sides of it are coated with dirt and grime, built up over a period of years. The parts not dirty appear to be in good condition and I assume that, if I can get off the dirt on the other parts, the entire home will look pretty good. I plan on using detergent and water, but now have been told by someone who used to own a mobile home that the detergent may leave ugly stains.

A. — If you use a mild detergent, rinse thoroughly and wipe dry with a clean cloth, there will be no stains. Staining occurs when a very strong detergent is used and the surface of the aluminum is not completely rinsed.

Q. — I recently bought a new mobile home made of aluminum. Is there anything that can be done to prolong the life of the aluminum?

A. — The aluminum is likely to remain serviceable indefinitely. However, its appearance can be preserved by coating it with wax or lacquer. Wax is easier to apply, but may yellow after repeated applications, in which case the old wax must be removed with a solvent cleaner and a new coat applied. A coating of clear methacrylate lacquer will last for several years without yellowing. If the aluminum is not anodized, it should be washed first with an etching type cleaner. Find out from the seller of the home whether the metal has been anodized.

Q. — When several coats of old varnish have been removed from a wooden table top, should the surface be sanded before applying a new finish?

A. Most definitely, yes. Start with a medium-grit paper and finish off with a very fine grit. Clean thoroughly with a thinner to remove all traces of sanding dust.

Q. — I recently plastered a wall. It is all right over most of the surface, but in three or four places, there are soft spots, as though the plaster never hardened. What caused this?

A. — Soft spots generally are the result of having worked over the plaster with a trowel after the material had begun to set.

Q. — There are several fence posts near my house that I want to move to new locations. The other day I tried to remove one and found it almost an impossible job. After struggling with it for half an hour, I hadn't gotten any further than loosening it a bit. I might get it out eventually, but I hate to think of going through the same trouble with all the other posts. Is there some special way of getting out such posts?

A. — Try this: dig around the post to the depth of a spade. Wiggle the post to loosen it. Hose water around it and place a board on the ground next to it. Place your automobile jack on the board. Wrap a stout welded chain around the post and over the jack lifter. Hoist away and the post will come out of the ground.

Q. — In a house I am having built soon, I am considering using cedar shingles on the roof. I suppose they are a fire hazard of sorts. Are they legal?

A. — The codes vary so much, even in adjoining communities, that you'll have to ask your architect or builder. Glass-reinforced asbestos paper is used with cedar shingles to produce an acceptable fire resistance. Also, there is a type of gypsum board called fireblock board which is used as an underlayment with the prime purpose of retarding the spread of fire. Both of these products have passed rigid tests.

Q. — I intend to paint the outside of my house soon. I have already bought the paint. It says on the can that only one coat is needed, but a neighbor tells me that I will need two coats because I am painting the house white and the present color is yellow. Can you tell me whether two coats will be needed?

A. — Your neighbor is correct in the assumption that two coats are sometimes needed when applying a lighter color than the previous color. But sometimes this is not so, since the kind of paint and the condition of the surface are also factors. The only way you will know for sure is to put on a single coat and determine whether it has covered sufficiently.

On Jan. 1 the federal government took over all state aid programs for the aged, blind and disabled and added these cases to the already-heavy Social Security offices' work loads.

The changeover has been plagued with serious and confusing malfunctions, as government officials readily admit. But, they maintain, steps are being taken to correct the problems and the situation gradually is improving.

Unfortunately, though, as bugs are being eliminated from the maze of a computer system that now directs what is called Supplemental Security Income (SSI), it is the old folks formerly receiving state Old Age Security (OAS), who suffer.

In some instances, people transfered from one system to the other were dropped from aid rolls entirely and did not receive money for as long as six months. Some old folks have yet to receive an SSI check.

And these senior citizens — because of the intense pride frequently exhibited by people of their generation — are those least likely to complain about not receiving monies due them. Some even are reluctant to report non-receipt of regular Social Security (now termed SSA) checks. The stigma of "welfare" hangs unpleasantly over their heads.

And pride is why most of the local senior citizens interviewed for this article on how old people are coping with limited,often undependable incomes during a period of incredible inflation, prefer to remain anonymous. This is the first of two parts.

LONELINESS is one of the most difficult emotions senior citizens must deal with. Coupled with financial troubles, life can be pretty miserable for some.

Mrs. E.V. cautiously unbolted the wooden door of her modest, aging mobile home, parked in a small, sleepy trailer court just off the freeway in North Long Beach. She has lived there more than 20 years and pays $80 a month space rental.

"Please, come in quickly," she urged.

Once settled into a worn overstuffed chair, the pleasant, well-groomed woman added apologetically, "I mustn't leave the door open long, because of my respiratory problem. On days such as this, when the air is particularly bad, the APCD (Air Pollution Control District) man calls and suggests I stay indoors and keep the purifier on."

Mrs. E.V. has lived alone since her husband died four years ago. Her children, she said sadly, cannot be bothered with her.

"My daughter is on drugs and my son just doesn't care."

She is in her early 60's and one year ago underwent open heart surgery. She already has had two different pacemakers implanted and must return to the hospital every six months to have the heart devices checked.

For some time, Mrs. E.V. received Aid to the Totally Disabled (ATD) through the state-run welfare system.

"At that time I was a little too young for OAS (Old Age Security)," she grinned.

Then in January, Mrs. E.V. was one of millions of older or disabled people transfered from state welfare to the federally-run Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program. In addition, she was to be collecting on her late husband's Social Security.

Mrs. E.V. did not receive a single check from January through August. And now, after receiving only one SSI and regular Social Security payment for the correct amounts, she finds herself once again lost "somewhere in that damned computer" and must rely on "emergency" payments her local Social Security office is permitted to make in such hardship cases. The money, of course, must be repaid once the regular checks arrive.

"When this mess first began," Mrs. E.V. said calmly, "I would get just frantic. I did not know whether or not I would be able to eat. My doctor would say 'this is very bad for you. You mustn't get nervous.' But he was not the one who had no money for food.

"Some days, before I could get the emergency money, I got to the point where I didn't care. 'So I don't eat,' I would think. So what?"

IT IS NOT JUST SSI and its operations which confuse Mrs. E.V. MediCal, she said, which is administered through the state, "is really something silly — how they determine what they will and will not pay for.

"They will pay for my permanent oxygen tank, here in the trailer. They consider that a life or death necessity for me.

"But they REFUSE to pay for the portable oxygen tank I must carry with me if I step outdoors for even 5 minutes. MediCal says it is a convenience — you know, like a luxury — and will not pay for filling it. I guess I am not supposed ever to be able to go out of this place.

"The reason I mention it is because the portable tank costs about $17 a month to refill. With rent, utilities, food and everything else, that is quite a chunk out of the amount I do get of combined Social Security and SSI ($255), when and if the monthly checks arrive."

As it is, Mrs. E.V. said she never buys meat. "I can't afford it. My doctor tells me to eat healthy meals, but I can barely afford dry milk and eggs."

As so many other older people interviewed mentioned, Mrs. E.V. feels her monthly income actually was reduced in the switchover.

"Before, I got $12 worth of food stamps every month on ATD, in addition to the monthly checks. Those were eliminated when we got all these so-called raises in Social Security. It's a joke, a cover-up."

In July, Social Security checks went up four per cent. In the past decade, benefits have increased 75 per cent. But in light of spiraling living costs, seniors have little or nothing to spare after paying for food and shelter.

BUT ED KRAMER, of Social Security's California headquarters in San Francisco, said "people just don't understand. It's a misconception because they are not actually receiving those stamps.

"California is one of only five states providing $10 a month extra to SSI recipients to make up for the elimination of food stamps, to insure they are now receiving an amount equal to what they were receiving monthly before the switchover. The same amount they were receiving in December, 1973, under the old program."

But sometimes older people are reluctant even to report possible mistakes in their Social Security and SSI checks. Mistakes that could mean they eat a little less that month. And, because of the complexities of the federal government's payments system, those mistakes could go undetected indefinitely.

That is exactly the situation Mr. and Mrs. G.M. found themselves in, until prices rose so high they knew they must forego pride, make a trip to their local Social Security office and tell someone they felt they ought to be receiving more money.

The G.M.s, who said "we are much luckier than lots of other people, we have each other," live in a slightly larger trailer, just around the corner from Mrs. E.V.

Two years ago Mr. G.M. suffered a stroke and is totally disabled. He had recovered previously from a severe heart attack.

"But I can work in my garden," the ruddy-cheeked, gray-haired man said proudly. "The day I can no longer do that, I know we will have to move to an apartment."

"But here," his wife interrupted, "we are much better off. The space fee is cheaper than any rent we could pay and we own this trailer. No one can take that away from us."

Together the couple (he is 74 years old, she is 72, and in October they will have been married 50 years), had been collecting Social Security and OAS totaling $425 a month. Somehow, in the change to SSI, the monthly amount was reduced to a total $376.50.

"Plus, our food stamps were eliminated. We could not understand it," Mrs. G.M. said quietly. "At the same time, our space rent was raised, as well as gas and electric.

"All I could think to do was write to Social Security and ask why. I did so immediately and never received an answer. That was more than four months ago. Everything seems so bungled. They never even acknowledged my note."

Meanwhile, the G.M.s said, they tightened an already-skimpy budget, docilely accepting that for one or another reason the government had decided to decrease their allotments.

"Of course," Mrs. G.M. said almost sheepishly, "we don't want anyone to know we have these problems. We are not nearly as bad off as most people."

"We have learned to enjoy what we have because there is no money for extras," Mr. G.M. said, smiling at his wife. "Haven't bought a single thing for this place in 10 years, as far as I remember. We do still have our car, more than 10 years old. I can drive short distances. We pray nothing will happen to it because we certainly could not budget money for auto repairs."

THE G.M.S, WHO WERE self-employed until well past retirement age ("only quit when my health

THESE ELDERLY people are luckier than most. They have each other to rely on during times of stress. Most seniors must face problems, such as Social Security computer foul-ups, alone.

Homes sought for students

Homes are still being sought for foreign students at Long Beach State University by the campus' International Community Council for Foreign Students and Visitors.

Mrs. Gene Johnson of the ICC office explained that more than a dozen foreign students are seeking families to rent them a room and provide kitchen privileges. "Many of the foreign students arrive here late for a variety of reasons and find that it's too late to get into the dorms.

"The foreign students are usually prepared to pay between $50 and $65 a month for a room with kitchen privileges and to supply their own food," she explained. "Families who have offered rooms in the past have found it to be a great experience and a mutually rewarding opportunity."

Families interested in renting a room to a foreign student should contact Mrs. Johnson at the LBSU International Community Council office.

...the unexpected rewards

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following letters, from Long Beach realtor, Ollie Speraw, Sombat Karnjanakit, the Thai student who shared the Speraw home during his years at Long Beach State University and his fiance, Suganya Tosuphan, demonstrate the extra bonus of opening one's home to foreign students — warm, fast friendship that can last a lifetime. And, being called "Mom and Dad."

Dear Joyce,

It has been such a mad rush to get ready to leave I'm penning this at the eleventh hour.

We are leaving in the morning to visit our Thai student and his fiance in Thailand with stops in Tokyo, Taiwan, Seoul and Hong Kong. Both of them received their masters degrees at LBSU and will be married in January. Sombat is now a professor at the University of Thailand at Bangkok. Their most recent letters to us are enclosed.

In the beginning we simply informed Dr. Johnson at LBSU that we would be willing to help a foreign student who needed help. We had no way to know what a beautiful experience it would turn out to be. The Thai people are shy, timid, sensitive, humble and all together a delight to know. Sombat lived with us over a year and through him we became acquainted with the Thai community at State. Sombat worked at two jobs all of the time in addition to his studies.

I wish I could think of more and a better way to encourage others to share their homes and their lives with those who need a little help. Sorry I don't have pictures. I'll try to bring something suitable from Thailand.

Best wishes,
Ollie

Dear Dad, Mom with love,

I am very glad to receive your letter. Yes, certainly, we will meet both of you in Bangkok. Right now, Sue and I plan to get the interesting points in Thailand to present to you. Fortunately, the Montien Hotel is located closing to my Chulalongkorn University, I can pick you up in five minutes. The weather in Bangkok is good now, close to Long Beach but a little bit more humid and some rainy on the east coast. (We will take a trip on that way anyway.)

In order to get more familiar with Thailand, we will trip up north to see a very beautiful nature and nice people (girls) Oh! I'd like to describe more and more but Sue stopped me to tell you about the trip.

I think, right now, both of you will having good wonderful time on the way coming. I hope this year is a good year for good vacation because you can take a lot of time out of work and seeing various cultures. You can have a relaxed time and come to visit your foreign children. Maybe Dad can observe Thai garden and take back to decorate at the house, Mom. When I told my students that my American family will (be) visiting me, they are anxious to meet you to look, to talk, to speak English and to participate with both of you. I will take a breath and waiting on the day you coming. And I will try to arrange my family to meet you that they also would like to see you.

God bless you
Affectionately yours
Sombat

Dear Dad & Mom

I have read your letters from Sombat which make me feel so glad and anxious for your coming. We are planning for tour for you while you stay in Bangkok. There are many interesting places to see such as...(I will tell you when you arrive. Keep secret right now).

I'd like you to go to Chiengmai, the city where Somjai is living now. It is the second famous city of Thailand and far from Bangkok about 700 miles. I think you should stay in Bangkok 3 - 4 days and spend 2 - 3 days in Chiengmai. We will arrange the time again after you arrive. I have sent a letter to Somjai to tell her that you are coming so that she can plan something for you while you go to Chiengmai. We will enjoy and have a good time I hope. According to Buddhism, the best month for us to get married is January (or December) so we can get married on that month and I'm so sorry you're going to miss it. However, we are meeting on this coming September and we will enjoy it. Please don't forget to prepare dresses or pantsuits or others for warm and hot weather. Some days it rains also.

Would you please do me a favor if you don't mind. I'd like you to bring me a long dress which I left it with one of my friend. I will tell my friend to bring it to you if you have a place for it. I have to wear it around the time you come, and it take many months to send it by ship so I'd like you to bring it for me. Thank you very much. See you pretty soon.

Sincerely, Suganya

SOCIALLY SPEAKING

Muy bueno fiesta for Las Hermanas senoras

By CAROLYN McDOWELL

ACCORDING TO Eleanor Parsons, Noche de Luna Tertulia means Night of the Moon. I'll take her word for it. I still have trouble translating Las Damas after several visits South of the Border.

That was the theme when Las Hermanas members entertained husbands at the Park Estates home of Lyman and Nancy Lough. The Lough home is oriental throughout and party chairgal, Eve Schweitzer, thought the contrast of setting and costumes would add to the delightful evening.

It did. Along with margaritas and mariachis, Old Sonora Mexican food, pinatas and about a zillion belas. Look that up in your Spanish dictionary.

Some of the nearby Park Estates dwellers came on foot; Bob and Alice Engels, Ed and Kay Karle and Dr. John and Wanda Sewak.

New provisionals and husbands on hand were Kathy and Dr. Bob Cleveland, Betty and Dr. Nelson Crandall, Corkey and Verne Jenkins, Maxine and Howard Riggins, Maria and Chuck Stevens and Pauline and Jim Worsham.

Provisional trainee chairgal Mary Jo Bradley and husband, John, were there along with Dr. George and Grace Alexander, Walter and Mary Gray, Bob and Arlene Johnson, Bill and Helen Price, Tony and Lois Venne, Paul and Jeanne Williamson, Dr. Wold de Lyre and Elva, Reese Hansen and Elsie and Leland and Gladys King.

IF YOU NEEDED a doctor last weekend, you may have had a little trouble finding one.

Many of them were up to a little hocus pocus.

At the Lakewood County Club home of Dr. Larry and Diana Pilchman.

Members of the Phi Delta Epsilon medical-social fraternity got together for a little fraternizing and food.

Party was themed "Harvest Time" and the whole thing began weeks ago when invitations in the form of miniature barns were hand delivered to each invitee. Inside the baby barn was a jar of jam. The label on the jar gave party details. Everyone agreed it was a most novel invitation. Some of them liked it so well they ate the jam, threw out the jar and forgot what it said.

The hocus pocus at the party was provided by a hypnotist who is also a sleight of hand expert.

Among those fooled were doctors and ladies Seymour And Reva Alban, David and Goldie Krugman, Stan and Jesse Butler, Ron and Sylvia Hartman and Martin and Helen Torem.

Others included the group's president, Bernie Cooperman and his wife (also doctor) Thelma, Lewis and Jill Rosenberg, Irv and Noonie Applebaum, Bob and Paddy Kaller, Phil and Melanie Nolan and Morris Lorber with wife, Judy, who stole the show. The hypnotist put her into a trance and suspended her between two chairs.

DID YOU KNOW that long established local dress shop, Schicks, changed hands recently?

BIEN VENIDOS. Las Hermanas chairlady-elect Borgny Baird, left, and current chairgal, Win Root, say welcome to Dr. and Mrs. Betty Crandall at group's Mexican party.

Well, it did. And the occasion called for a party.

New owners, Jerome and Ruth Litt, invited the staff to their Encino home for a pool-side party honoring retired manager Louise Huffman.

Party goers were Louise's husband; Roger; new manager Edith Wahl and husband, Ed; Kenneth and Pat Sylvester, Helen Bagley, Warren Clark, Margie MacDonald, Irene Dickinson, Phyllis Kruidhof, Ruby Useu, Lillian Zatlin, Josephine Cappel, Pearl Brown, Anne Mapes, Grace Umphries and Yukie Seki.

Bet it was the best dressed party of the week.

I AM TAKING the rest of the day off.

Ralph McClurg, a staffer at our Bellflower office, has kindly consented to finish the column for me. Writes Ralph:

More than 300 friends of Mrs. Edith D. Maxwell, co-publisher of the Paramount Journal for 28 years, turned out for a surprise champagne birthday party in the Sierra Restaurant.

In addition to the well-wishers at the 80th birthday fete, Mrs. Maxwell received hundreds of plaques and scrolls from friends and political dignitaries.

Topping her civic and journalistic activities in the Paramount area since 1940, Mrs. Maxwell is better known for her interest in finding homes for lost cats and dogs. In 1973 she received the Green Humane Award from the National Cat Protection Society.

Mrs. Maxwell was personally instrumental in the unification of Hynes and Clearwater into a single community in 1948 as well as the incorporation of Paramount in 1957. She served on the Paramount Planning Commission from 1964 through 1968.

The family came to California in 1929 from Bloomington, Ill., where her husband, the late Burnett Kee Maxwell Sr., was managing editor of the Bloomington Daily Bulletin.

Following her husband's death in 1968, Mrs. Maxwell was co-publisher of the Journal with her son, Pete, until the weekly was sold in 1968.

Mrs. Maxwell is still carrying on her civic activities.

AT PENINSULA SHOW

Horses, riders to compete

Final preparations are being made for 17th annual Portuguese Bend National Horse Show, sponsored by the Peninsula Committee of Children's Hospital.

The two-day event is scheduled Saturday and next Sunday at the Peninsula Equestrian Center, 40 Narcissa Drive, Portuguese Bend. Mrs. Harry Dorsey Jr. is chairman of the fund-raising gala, assisted by Mrs. Theodore Jones and Mrs. Robert Watts Jr.

Allen Ross, manager of the Grand National Horse Show in San Francisco's Cow Palace, will again be manager and announcer for the show, which also will be televised. KTLA (Channel 5) will tape a portion of Sunday's show for viewing Sept. 27 from 8 to 9 p.m.

Judges for the show, which will feature competition in Hunters, Jumpers, Hunt Seat, Western and Stock Seat Equitation, Saddle Seat, Walking Horse, Welsh ponies, Roadsters and Saddle Seat Equitation, are Sam Register of Kentucky, Mrs. Carolyn Vogt of Clovis and Eli Long of Rancho Santa Fe.

THE ALL-JUNIOR show on Saturday will have 13 stake classes open to riders under 18. Three national championship medal classes will be offered, as well as the Barbara Worth Medal Class.

Among trophies presented on opening day will be the Frank A. Vanderlip Perpetual to the high point winner in the all-junior competition, and the Andrew D. Shaw trophy to the Western high point junior rider.

Sunday's open show will feature 23 classes, of which 12 are stake events. An added attraction this day will be an exhibition of the Peruvian Passo horses, which have a natural gait without any extra gimmicks, even shoes. One stunt will show the smoothness of the horse's fast gait when the rider will hold a full glass of champagne without spilling any during the ride.

Evan Shaw and his Metlox Poppy Trail Carriages will again be on display both days.

Tickets are $2 general admission for adults and $1 for children; box seats are $3 the first day and $5 the final day. Box seat requests are available from the committee, P.O. Box 801, Palos Verdes Estates.

Proceeds benefit Children's Hospital in Los Angeles.

Last year's show drew 850 entries and 8,000 spectators.

The Aces on bridge

by IRA G. CORN JR. TEAM CAPTAIN

Dear Mr. Corn:

With 20 on score and both sides vulnerable what should I have bid over my opponent's opening of one diamond?

♠ K Q 10 8 7 5 4 2
♥ K Q 10 9
♣ Q

High Jumper
Palos Hills, Ill.

Answer: It depends on the tactics you wish to use against these particular opponents. A jump to three spades would probably be the popular choice. However, against some opponents it might be better to chance only one spade, allowing the opponents to "push you" to the three or four level.

Dear Mr. Corn:

My partner opened a game demand of two spades and I responded three diamonds with:

♠ 9 5 2
♥ A 8 7
♦ 9 6 5 3
♣ A K 7

We eventually ended in six spades and made it but my three diamond bid is still being criticized.

Longest Suit
Carmel, Ind.

Answer: I agree that three diamonds was a poor choice. Opposite a strong two bid it is important to show where your high cards are rather than bid an anemic four-card suit. I would choose either three clubs or a positive raise to three spades.

Dear Mr. Corn:

My partner opened a standard two no-trump and I held this hand: What should I have bid?

♥ 9 8 6 5 4
♦ 10 8 5 3 2
♣ ---

No Points
Cascade, Colo.

Answer: There is no answer that will win all the time. Much depends upon opener's heart holding. My guess is that a four-heart gamble will gain more than it loses. However, I would be fully prepared to apologize when four hearts fails.

Dear Mr. Corn:

Is there gambling in bridge?

Extra Change
Denver, Colo.

Answer: Playing for modest stakes is quite common in regular rubber bridge circles.

Any form of gambling is absolutely prohibited in duplicate tournaments sponsored by the American Contract Bridge League.

THE NEW ETIQUETTE

'White gloves' obsolete

By MAUREEN ELENA REARDON

You can get about anything you want these days in a department store, including etiquette. Mom can spend a pleasant hour in notions and Dad can price fertilizer while daughter or son is picking up the proprieties.

The archtypical kids' etiquette course is "White Gloves and Party Manners," a creation of Marjabelle Young, who for 15 years ran an etiquette school in Washington, D.C. Graduates of the course include the Eisenhower and Nixon children.

"White Gloves" is taught in six hour-long segments to girls five through twelve. I sat in on a class for five through eight year olds at a local department store. The girls were reviewing their curtsy and pivot and were having trouble making their squiggley feet obey. "The reason I'm teaching you this is for poise and confidence," said the teacher.

THE TEACHER was having a little problem with restlessness during the class. "I want you to sit very still. I want you all to sit like young ladies like I taught you." A little girl in a proper party dress and a non-regulation arm cast smiled ... and wiggled some more.

Each girl taking the course received a pair of white gloves, a workbook, and a copy of the book "White Gloves and Party Manners," written by Ms. Young and Ann Buchwald.

Some of the things in the workbook were quite bizarre.

One page had a space for listing of phone numbers. Here's part of the list:

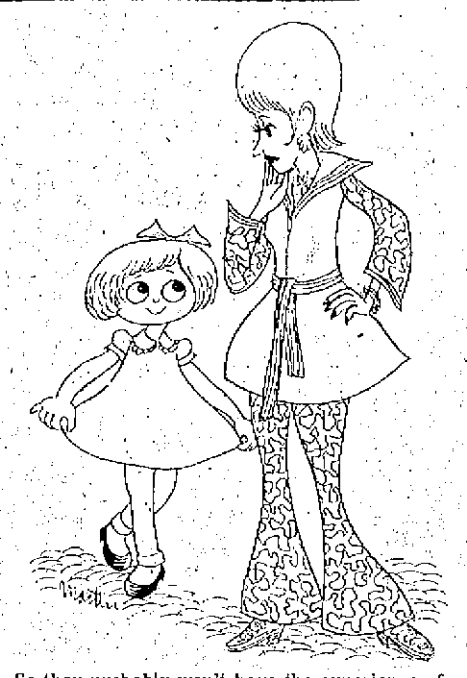

My Music Teacher, My Art Teacher, My Ballet Teacher, Riding Stable Number, Club, My Veterinarian, Best Party-Dress Shop, My Printer (Reordering my informals), My Cleaners, Bakery (Birthday Cakes), Family Photographer.

It's enough to give a girl who's poor lots of complexes.

A family tree, to be filled in by the girls, occupied a whole page. "What if you have to put a horse thief at the top?" I asked the teacher. She said most girls couldn't go back as far as their grandparents, anyway.

Girls were advised to rub a mixture of lemon juice and sugar into their hands. I called a dermatologist, who suggested that the girls might be better off if they drank the lemonade.

THE BOOK IS A conversation piece, too. The girls are advised how to use a fingerbowl.

So they probably won't have the experience of Esther Greenwood in Sylvia Plath's "The Bell Jar," who thought the water in the first fingerbowl she encountered was a Japanese soup. She drank it. Of course, fingerbowls appear more often in fiction than in real life.

In the book the girls were taught how to use the "rest position" and "finished position." Those, in case you're baffled, are arrangements of silverware. In "rest position," the fork prongs are curved down over the knife. This supposedly indicates you're still eating. The "finished position" is a side-by-side arrangement of knife and fork, with the fork prongs down. This tells the waiter you're done.

I called two upperclass bastions in my community, the yacht club and athletic club, to see if the "rest position" and "finished position" are used there. The woman in charge at the yacht club said she'd never heard of such a thing in her 15 years at the club. The man in charge of the waiters at the athletic club said he was aware of the positions because they're used in England where he was born. He said native-born Americans don't use them.

I HAVE MIXED emotions about "White Gloves." An etiquette course is a valid way to supplement what is taught at home. And much of the material in the "White Gloves" book is good, like that on friendship. But so much of the material is dated that the course could turn a little girl into a living antique.

(If you have questions about the new etiquette, or want to share your comments and ideas, write to Ms. Reardon, care of the Independent, Press-Telegram. Questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns.)

AT WIT'S END

Large families learn joys of sharing

By ERMA BOMBECK

A prominent psychologist recently announced that due to the economy, the emphasis on overpopulation, and working mothers, there has been a cutback of children and we are entering the era of the Only Child.

Do you have any idea what the impact of that statement is? It means there has been a breakthrough in Sibling Rivalry. That's right. Someone has finally come up with a cure for it—the one-child family. I don't know why our generation never thought of it.

Imagine. No more having to cut a maraschino cherry into four equal pieces. No more trying to convince your younger son that hand-me-down boots are neither male nor female. No more taking a number at mealtime to talk.

WITH EACH addition to our family, we tried to explain how wonderful a brother or sister would be, but they never bought it. Few children do. We used to have a neighbor child who treated his smaller sister like chopped spinach. His disgust for her culminated when he dragged her to school one day for Show and Tell, shoved her before his classmates and said, "This is my sister. I told you she was dumb."

All three of my children pretend to be an only child. Their hostility often isn't even subtle. One used to set the table for four and when I'd ask where the other plate was she'd say, "Is HE still here?" (referring to small brother).

"Yes, why?"

"How long is he going to stay?"

"Through dinner or until I can get his plumbing on automatic -whichever comes first."

SOMEHOW, I can't imagine what it would be like to sit down at the dinner table and not have the rivalry, the competition, the clashing of the three of them over what my husband and I refer to as the War of the Catsup.

"Look at him. He's using all the catsup."

"You'll have your turn, so bug off."

"Hah! There won't be a 'turn' after you're finished. Mom! He's wasting it."

"I couldn't help it. It came out all at once."

"Mom! Why do you let him pour catsup in his lap and play in it?"

"He's the baby, haven't you heard?"

"So get another bottle."

"There isn't any more. You are a hog."

"Mom! Make him put some back in the bottle."

"MOM! MOM!"

I wonder how you raise a child with his own bottle of catsup without spoiling him.

Computerized confusion

got bad," Mr. G.M. explained), said they rarely purchase meat "and we save every coupon."

Finally, at a friend's urging, Mr. and Mrs. G.M. made the drive to their local Social Security office and explained their dilemma.

"We knew we had to do something, it was getting worse and I do so worry about my husband's health," Mrs. G.M. explained.

"We had to wait quite a long time," she continued, "from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. In between, lots of people went to lunch. But finally someone talked with us and after doing something to a machine, she discovered we'd been 'victims of a computer' and that together we are now entitled to $440 a month.

"I just don't understand why they could not have taken care of it when I wrote. We might never have known."

Jim Brown, a press information officer at national Social Security headquarters in Baltimore, Md., said in a telephone interview, "I would be the first to admit there still are many problems and some people to this day aren't receiving checks.

"But," he added, "the situation seems to improve each month."

Brown noted the worst foul-ups that occurred during the switch to SSI were in New York and California.

"A lot of the initial trouble was due to some poor record-keeping on aid recipients in those states and of course, just sheer numbers.

Ed Kramer, in San Francisco, had noted that "Los Angeles County alone gave us 17,000 wrong addresses when we first assumed the SSI caseloads."

"We now have detailed people," Jim Brown continued, "to work for a time especially in the California and New York offices, to help straighten out these mistakes. We realize a great many problems are caused by a shortage of personnel. That's why, unfortunately, people sometimes must wait when they go to an office for help.

"Right now everyone here is involved in trying to keep government spending down during this time of inflation, yet serve the needs of the people.

"Our feeling is that we finally are coming out of the woods. We have fewer and fewer non-receipt complaints each month."

NANCY NAVARRO, branch manager of Norwalk Social Security, knows only too well what kinds of problems were created by the switch from state aid to SSI, but she also believes the situation is improving.

"Everyone in our office, basically, is a trainee at this new program," Ms. Navarro explained.

"Our number one problem is understaffing, as it is in Social Security offices across the country. When all these people were transfered to us, caseloads increased tremendously, probably doubled. Meanwhile, few new personnel were added to our staff.

"We all are working too much overtime and employe morale is bad. We try to be as courteous as possible and I believe that we all are very sympathetic toward these people. I don't believe any of my workers are rude or make people wait purposely. But we have so many clients and so few staff. The public, gratefully, has not given us excess problems here. When I explain the situation, most seem to understand.

"All I keep thinking is, 'it's got to get better.' "

In a recent telephone conversation with a reporter from this newspaper's Action Line column, a worker at the Long Beach Social Security office, who said she preferred to remain anonymous, said, "I am a PBX operator. At least that's what I am supposed to be.

"But since this switchover — since we've been handling all these SSI cases — I have spent very few Saturdays with my family. We all work overtime now and they've even got me processing claims. It's a mess."

ED KRAMER PROMISES that 50 per cent more employes now are being channeled into California offices to work on SSI claims.

"But we must remember, these all are new employes, trainees. There are going to be a few goof-ups still.

"People must consider that California accounts for almost 20 per cent of SSI recipients nationwide. It's a matter of sheer numbers. And the original transfer process involved conversion of 58 different counties' programs — all run independently of one another.

"We know California is in worse shape than most. But it is improving. In January, we were paying on 519,000 SSI claims here and as of July were paying 560,000. By this month that number has increased substantially. Those numbers mean a total of more than $92 million to the people receiving the aid."

MONDAY: More victims of SSI foul-ups.

DEAR ABBY

Illegal for her to be pregnant

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am an adult, unmarried woman. I feel that I can get along without a husband if the right one never comes along. I want a child, but I don't want to adopt one. I want to experience bearing a child.

I have spent many hours on the phone talking to doctors and hospitals about artificial insemination, but they all refuse to accept me because I am not married. They say it is the "law." Abby, why? I am healthy, well-adjusted and can well afford to raise a child. I have even taken courses in child care and child psychology. Above all, I love children and know I would make a good mother.

Some girls fool around and get pregnant. I have never fooled around, and I wouldn't do it even for the purpose of having a child, but the law says I can't have artificial insemination because I am not married. That's discrimination.

I am willing to go anywhere in the U.S.A., but it would be much more convenient if I could have it done near here. Please help me. CHILDLESS IN MICHIGAN

DEAR CHILDLESS: Ask a lawyer to tell you if there is any state that allows an unmarried woman to have artificial insemination. If there is none, you are out of luck. I agree, it's discriminatory and archaic. It assumes that a child cannot be successfully reared by one parent—a fallacy, as widows, divorcees and single fathers have proven.

DEAR ABBY: I am 29, a divorcee with two children and am considered attractive. About a year ago I spotted an eligible bachelor in town, so I moved into this apartment building hoping to make his acquaintance. I made his acquaintance all right, but that's about all. He says hello pleasantly when we meet in the hall, but I've never been able to get him into my apartment.

I telephoned him one evening to tell him my bedroom window was stuck (it really was), so he sent a janitor up with a hammer. He's not going with anybody special, and he's not a goody-goody because I've seen him entertain women in his apartment. None of them is as attractive as I. How can I get him interested without having it look like I'm chasing him? GETTING NOWHERE

DEAR GETTING: It's not easy to chase a man without having it "look like" you're doing what you're doing. Face it. He's not interested in you. And any more moves in his direction will make your scheming so obvious that he's apt to hide when he sees you coming.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, P.O. Box 69700, Los Angeles 90069. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

FASCINATING FABRICS

New kinds of corduroy

By FRANCES DIETRICH

After brief reference to "new, soft corduroy" in a column, I was asked by Mrs. E.P.W., Tempe, Ariz., to explain the difference between this and regular corduroy.

The new corduroy is a very fine quality — the Cadillac of corduroys. Called Firenze, as a tip of the hat to Firenze, Italy, where its Europa finish originated, it has an absolutely super soft touch, close to velvet and velveteen, but with its own unique corduroy texture.

In addition to the finish applied to the fabric, another factor that contributes to its softness is the long staple, combed cotton yarn which is used. The cotton fibers were actually combed during the first steps in yarn making. Combing straightens the fibers and eliminates the short pieces. The result is cotton yarn of high quality. The final fabric is exceptionally smooth, fine and strong.

These fine yarns were used in the background as well as the pile of the fabric producing an almost satiny texture on the reverse side. Further luxuriousness and pliability are contributed by the fine pinwales — 20 to an inch.

CORDUROY IS a particularly fascinating fabric. Though more than a century old in concept, modern creative manufacturers have kept it in the forefront of fashion with new styling.

Firenze is produced by Crompton-Richmond, corduroy specialists since 1823. The same company has offered another new corduroy; poles apart in styling as compared to Firenze but sure to appeal to the sports crowd, especially the very young.

Indicord is also a pinwale and all-cotton but designed for a usage which does not require the more expensive combed cotton. Its big appeal is a faded worn look after five washings. The manufacturers project it as a major fabric for the young market in the fall of '74 and spring of '75.

The "French Jeans" pattern of Indicord simulates denim patchwork in various shades of blue with a barely discernible printed yellow "stitch" around the patches. Another version, "Charleston," is a soft blue with small floral print.

THE FIRENZE collection is in 12 solid colors, ranging from eggshell through golden grouse, countryside green to deep brown espresso. With this type of rich-looking fabric, prints would detract from the play of light on the tiny uniform pinwales.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Has a steak in wine sauce

By MILDRED K. FLANARY

An eye surgeon — a champion at water polo — lifeguard — long distance runner — sailor — and now, a "chef." That just partially describes todays chef of the week, Dr. Leland M. Garrison, ophthalmologist.

A Long Beach native, he attended Long Beach schools from grades 1 to 12, graduating from Wilson High School. While there, he was a member of its varsity All-City water polo team. He also served nine years as a seasonal Long Beach lifeguard. He was graduated from Stanford University in 1959.

Garrison then enrolled at the University of Maryland Medical School, graduating in 1963. While at Maryland, he was a member of the Alpha Omega Alpha honor medical society.

His residency included Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital, UCLA Medical Center and Los Angeles Children's Hospital.

Garrison didn't stop there!

Following completion of his post-graduate training in 1969, he spent two years with the American Board of Ophthalmology. He fulfilled postgraduate training positions at Long Beach VA Hospital as attending physician and at the Jules Stein Eye Institute as an instructor.

GARRISON'S HOBBIES reflect his athletic interests. He has enjoyed long distance running with competition in the AAU program for the past five years; he enjoys sailing, and currently serves as fleet surgeon for Alamitos Bay Yacht Club. He says, "I'm also a serious collector of wines, which I began in 1963."

Garrison met his wife, Dianne, while they were students at Stanford. She was born and reared in Nevada, and received all her pre-college education in Las Vegas. While Garrison was a student at University of Maryland, she taught school in Baltimore County. She currently is active in Junior League of Long Beach.

They have two sons, William and Mitchell. Bill is 11 and "Mitch" is 8. Both attend Minnie Gant Elementary School.

Dianne says that next to his family and his profession, sprinting is most important to today's chef. "He runs every evening, no matter what. It can be pouring rain, but that doesn't stop him." Asked if he really can cook, she replied, "oh....uh....-to some extent. It's mostly confined to the barbecue."

Today our chef has included his wine expertise in his recipe. It's for flank steak with gamay wine and shallot sauce.

FLANK STEAK WITH GAMAY WINE AND SHALLOT SAUCE

Flank steak (tenderized)
Salt
Ground pepper
Soy sauce
Dried thyme

SAUCE INGREDIENTS:

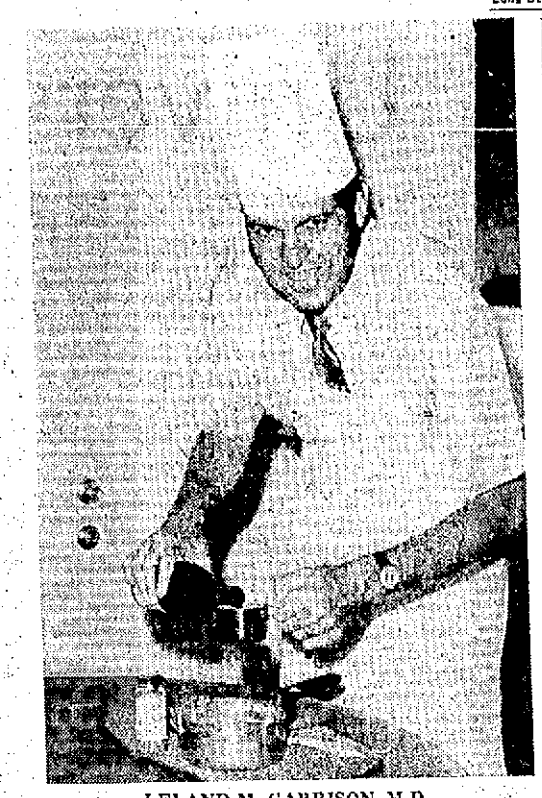

1 cup chopped shallots (or green onions)
1 cup gamay wine
½ to 1 cube butter or margarine
2 tablespoons parsley

TO PREPARE STEAK:

Brush flank steak with soy sauce and sprinkle well with salt, freshly ground pepper and 1 teaspoon dried, crumbled thyme. Let stand for an hour or more. Brush again with soy sauce and grill over fire for three or four minutes on each side (for rare steak). Carve with sharp knife into thin slices on the diagonal.

TO PREPARE SAUCE:

Combine 1 cup chopped shallots or green onions and 1 cup gamay wine. Bring to a boil. Add ½ to 1 cube butter or margarine and salt to taste stirring until butter is melted. Add 2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley and spoon over steak slices.

University bows to folk art

ALTHOUGH THE black pottery horn blown with finesse by Dr. Gerald Daniel may never appear in a real orchestra, it is valued by the LBSU Music Department chairman as an example of Mexican folk art. The Daniel collection is being exhibited currently in the university library.

Staff photos by BOB SHUMWAY

USING ARTISTIC license, the Mexican designer of this impressive bisqueware tree of life gave an apple to both Adam and Eve and also to the Garden of Eden serpent! They are gloriously surrounded by flowers, foliage, doves and angels.

By JEAN SANDERS
Staff Writer

Vivid colors and shapes that shout Mexico are brightening the library at Long Beach State University through Oct. 4, a fact exciting to aficionados of Mexican folk art.

The collection of more than 500 pieces exhibited on all six floors and gallery of the library and in a case in the administration building are but a portion of folk art collected during the past 15 years by Dr. Gerald Daniel, chairman of the LBSU music department; his wife, Irene, ("She's the basket and blanket buyer") and their son, Will, ("He's getting good at this collecting, but I have the final say on the purchase.")

The Daniel home was hardly stripped when gallery director Bob Stone selected pottery, trees of life, whimsical animal and human figures, votive tablets, straw figures, seed pots, tinware, papier mache, blankets, rugs and children's toys for display on campus.

No sooner had the items, from microscopic pieces of pottery to three-foot high trees of life, been transported to the university, but the Daniel family opened closets and chests and replenished the niches, shelves and patio in their home with more choice folk art from their collection.

Daniel buys what pleases him. His choice ranges from crude children's toys fashioned of wood that termites love to carefully crafted clay figures by Theodora Blanco, black pottery craftsmanship of Dona Maria and subtly painted pots by Gorki Gonzalez.

He sees Mexican folk art as ever-changing — and some as disappearing. He deplores the plastic shopping bags now being carried by peasants in place of the gaily colored-woven raffia bags, and the plastic furniture that seems to be replacing the charming and comfortable reed and leather pieces.

The family does most of its hunting every other year in Mexico. But let a bargain appear in San Diego's Old Town, and Daniel will know about it. He bought a large tree of life for a fraction of its asked-for price there because it was broken in at least 40 pieces. A patient gluing job erected the felled tree and it is one of the gems of the exhibit.

Supplementing the exhibit are color slides of Mexico and artisans at work, and posters on Mexican folk art sent at Daniel's request by Margarita Cevallos of the Banco Nacional de Fomento Cooperativo in Mexico City.

The exhibit, open to the public, may be viewed Monday through Thursday from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m.; Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Saturday from 1 to 5 p.m. and Sunday from 1 to 9 p.m.

AN OPPORTUNITY to learn in advance of cultural activities and exhibitions on the LBSU campus is afforded by the Fine Arts Affiliates. Now entering its 11th year, the Affiliates are a cultural liaison between the School of Fine Arts and the community. Persons interested in its activities, which include programs, tours, lectures, recitals, exhibit and theater announcements, are invited to membership.

Forthcoming events include a campus picnic with tour of the university's monumental sculptures in October, a preview of the Art Department's annual Christmas sale in December and a trip and tour in February of the Claremont Galleries, featuring the graphic art of Francisco Goya.

Mrs. Samuel C. Cameron is president of Affiliates and Mrs. H. Parker Markle is program chairman.

WHEN LONG Beach Art Association begins its series of lecture programs Tuesday, artist and printmaker Janet Wheeler will speak and demonstrate a unique method of printmaking she has developed.

The program, open to the public, will take place at 7:30 p.m. in the association gallery, 800 E. Ocean Blvd. A $1 fee will be charged non-members.

Mrs. Wheeler holds degrees from Southeast Missouri State College, University of Aukland, New Zealand, and Long Beach State University.

She is a member of the Los Angeles Printmaking Society and the Los Angeles Art Association. Her work has been exhibited widely and she is the recipient of numerous awards.

Some of her work is on display at the gallery through Sept. 29.

TWO AREA artists, Raymond Page of Long Beach and Mrs. Tomoko Saito Gherardi, are exhibiting their latest oils at the Parkhurst Royal Collection Gallery aboard the Queen Mary.

Mrs. Gherardi, who came to the U.S. 15 years ago as a surgical nurse, concentrates on floral subjects, although her talents extend to other areas as well. Page exhibits sea and landscapes in oil on masonite.

SOUTHERN California Community Artists, Inc., an art group which meets monthly in Cypress, has announced its August competition winners. They include Sherry Blackburn, Frank Madonna and Florene Latenlere, advanced; Pat Meyers, regular category, and Betty Moulton, honorable mention.

IF PLANS call for a trip to Washington, D.C. this fall, something new can be added to the list of must-sees. It is the Smithsonian Institution's new Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden opening Oct. 4, which brings to the nation's capital one of the country's most comprehensive collections of 20th century art.

Almost every major art trend and style that has evolved in this century and the latter part of the 19th century is represented with works by leading painters and sculptors.

Works by European and American artists are exhibited side by side to show how they have influenced and interacted with one another. Cubism, Abstract, Expressionism, Op and Minimal Art are a few of the art movements represented.

For the year-long inaugural exhibition the entire museum, three floors and outdoor plaza and sculpture garden will be devoted to a look at the breadth and depth of the museum's permanent collection which numbers more than 6,000 paintings and sculptures, many of which have never before been publicly exhibited.

Included are works in every medium by such masters as Rodin, Moore, Picasso, Matisse, David Smith, Calder and others.

The museum is the result of a gift to the nation in 1966 of the private art collection assembled over a 40-year period by Joseph H. Hirshhorn. The Latvia-born Hirshhorn began collecting when he was an 18-year-old stockbroker on Wall Street. He amassed much of his fortune through financial investments and uranium mining.

The new museum will be open from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. daily except Christmas. No admission is charged.

A 71-YEAR-OLD artist known for his mobiles and stabiles, toys, jewelry and wire sculpture, has now turned to tapestry design. He is Alexander Calder, one of the artists represented in the new Hirshhorn Museum.

A group of his tapestries, woven in the Aubusson region of France, are being shown through Sept. 30 at the Esther Robles Gallery, Los Angeles. While the tapestries have been shown in several museums in various parts of the United States during the past year, this is the first showing in Los Angeles.

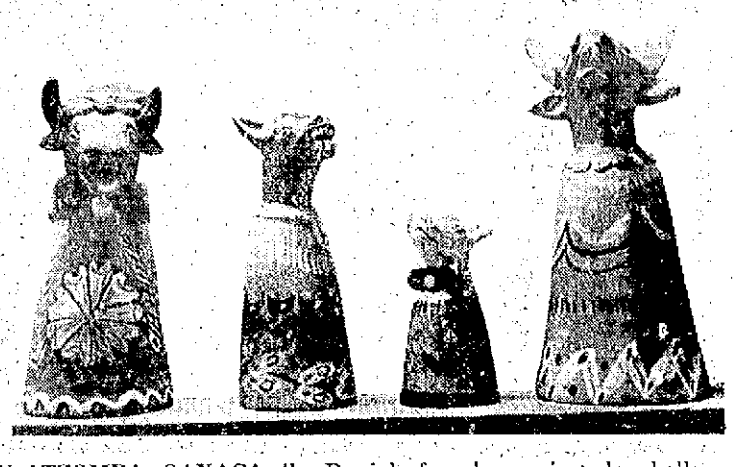

FROM EYE specialist to artist is not a big jump. Herman Weiss, an eye specialist for 40 years in Los Angeles, painted oils during his practice and now, upon retirement, has taken up etching, wood and linoleum cuts.

An exhibition of his graphics may be seen at the Jacqueline Anhalt Gallery in Los Angeles through Oct. 4.

In the etching process he uses ophthalmological instruments and dental probes, and the telescopic spectacles which he formerly used in eye surgery provide magnification as he incises fine lines in the metal plates.

EFFORTS TO improve design across the whole creative spectrum from engineering to handicrafts will be discussed by Sir Paul Reilly, director of the Design Council of Great Britain, in a free lecture Sept. 23 at 8 p.m. in Bing Theater of the Los Angeles County Museum of Art, 5905 Wilshire Blvd.

IN ATZOMPA, OAXACA, the Daniels found amusing clay bells with animal heads. Designs vary according to the artisan's mood and talent, but ever present are the vibrant colors typical of Mexico.

Variety of stage productions beckon area theater goers

Laura Killingsworth and Marvin Cloyd, longtime Long Beach stage favorites, return to the footlights this fall with a Studio Theater production entitled "Two in Review."

The 96-seat theater is part of the Community Theater complex at 5021 E. Anaheim St. The production will be a benefit for the acquisition fund of the studio where new young talent is trained.

Included in the review will be short scenes from "Private Lives," "The Great Sebastians" and "Taming of the Shrew."

Musical portions by the talented duo will span musical comedy, contemporary music and opera. Pianists Rose Bishop and David Dalke will accompany.

Performances will take place Nov. 24 and Dec. 1, 4, 8, 11, 13 and 14 at 8 p.m. Advance reservations by individuals or groups should be made with Lou Weir, Parker Advertising Inc., 609 Deep Valley Dr., Palos Verdes Peninsula.

SUSPENSE is promised by Torrance Community Theater, 1522 Cravens St., Torrance, which is presenting "Night Watch" authored by Lucille Fletcher. The play, directed by Hal Douglas, is running weekends through September and features Yvonne Allen, Paul Teschke, Rene Galleran, Joan Sting, Helen Borst, Rick Ivey, Allen McColl, Roger Girdner and John Ivey.

ANOTHER DUO, this time sisters, is cast in "Bye Bye Birdie," opening Wednesday for a three-week run at Downey Civic Theater.

Joyce Beckett, 12, and Roxann Beckett, 9, of Downey have performed throughout the Southland on stage, television, USOs and private clubs.

Michael Stewart, author of the book, "Bye Bye Birdie," comments, "The pendulum's swung once again and audiences are eager to relive the dizzy, but happy days of the late fifties and early sixties when the dollar was king, when inflation was something that happened in other countries and when all the political and social woes that were about to come our way only lurked on the horizon...So Birdie's back and people are going to the theater to laugh once again. And tap their feet to hummable melodies. And applaud dances that don't end with a pile of corpses on the stage."

The musical, directed by Greg Killingsworth of Long Beach, runs weekends through Oct. 5 All seats are reserved and tickets at $4 each are available at the box office. The entire production will benefit the Long Beach Retarded Children's Foundation, Inc.

GROUP ticket information for Fullerton Civic Light Opera's fourth season may be obtained by writing the company at 1513 W. Ash Ave., Fullerton 92633.

JOYCE BECKETT

ROXANN BECKETT

Season opener is "The Music Man" on Oct. 18 at Plummer Auditorium, Fullerton. To follow are "My Fair Lady" and "Cabaret."

FILM AND television star James Hong heads the cast of "The Year of the Dragon," East-West Players production to open its regular run Oct. 4 following premiere performances Oct. 2 and 3 at the theater, 4424 Santa Monica Blvd., Los Angeles. Hong is a founding member of the theater group.

Set amid the flickering neon excitement of San Francisco's Chinatown, the play reaches across cultural barriers and speaks to audiences of all ages. It takes a revealing, serio-comic look at a sensitive middle-aged man's efforts to reconcile his own world of personal dreams and hopes with complex family ties that touch the heart but exasperate the spirit.

Are you off to see 'Wizard'?

If the lions are only cub size, like these at Lion Country Safari, the Cowardly Lion in "The Wizard of Oz" pumps a braver heart. That's Robert Kevorkian of Laguna Beach beneath the shaggy mane. Giving him courage to mingle with his kind is lyric soprano Dana Swenson of Santa Monica, who portrays Dorothy in the Lyric Opera Association of Orange County musical production of the famous classic. Final performances are Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. in Irvine Bowl, Laguna Beach. The cast of 200 includes the Long Beach Junior Concert Band as the Oz Band. Dance and choral director is Cris Timmons and the professional orchestra is conducted by David Hubler. Feature roles include Hollywood actress-comedienne Cass Daley as the Wicked Witch, Ray Kalanquin as the Scarecrow and James Whitson as the Tin Woodman. Tickets are on sale at the Irvine Bowl box office, 650 Laguna Canyon Road, or by phoning the box office from 1 to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 1 to 9 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays.

Hollywood playhouses tell openings

Plays by Eudora Welty and Robert Houston open Sept. 26 when Theater Vanguard, 9014 Melrose Ave., West Hollywood, presents Two by La Mama Hollywood, west coast arm of La Mama ETC in New York.

Welty's "Petrified Man" is a dramatization of her short story which illuminates the contrasting lives of two ordinary women in a brief period of time.

Houston's "Death of a Doll" is a bizarre tragicomedy of two women living vicariously through their puppets.

Both plays star Marian Mercer and Jacque Lynn Colton.

"LUMPKIN," a musical based on the Oliver Goldsmith famous comedy romp; "She Stoops to Conquer," opens Friday at the Shakespeare Society of America's Globe Theater, 1107 N. Kings Road, West Hollywood.

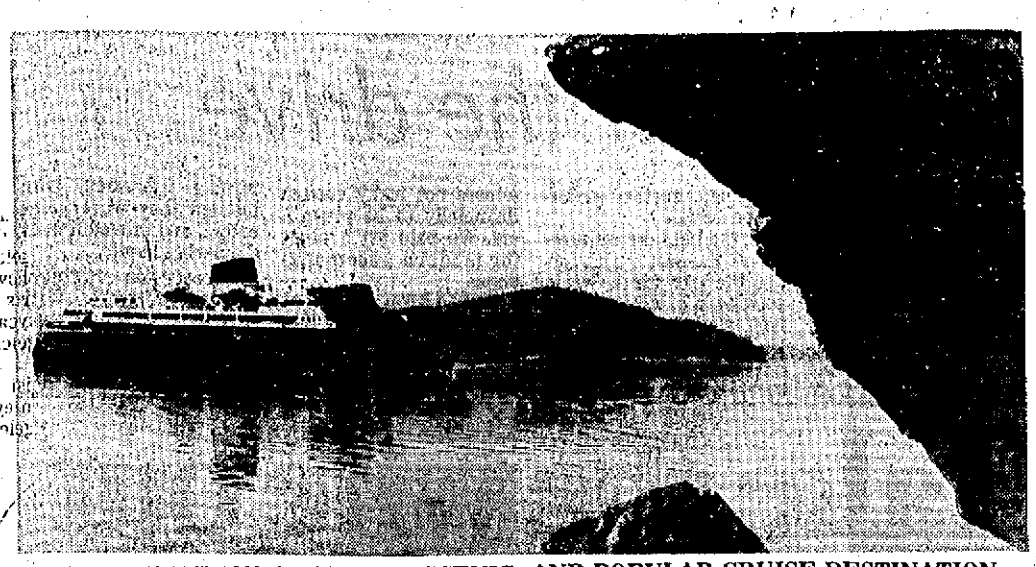

Starring are Jeff Redford in the title role, Carol Kristy and John Fink. William Glover directs and original score is by Jill Williams.

Performances are at 8:30 p.m. Thursdays through Sundays.

'Seesaw' ends

Originally announced to close Sept. 22, the musical "Seesaw" at the Music Center's Ahmanson Theater will end its run instead today with a 2:30 p.m. matinee and evening performance at 8:30. Lucie Arnaz, John Gavin and Tommy Tune star.

ALASKA'S INLAND PASSAGE A SCENIC AND POPULAR CRUISE DESTINATION

Ship out for Alaska

By JOYCE CHRISTENSEN
Life/style Editor

Thinking Alaska? Great!
Thinking cruise? Greatest!
Thinking 1974? Too late.

You see, Alaska has this habit of closing down for the winter (must have learned it from the polar bears) to replenish its glaciers.

But it's not too early to start thinking Alaska in 1975. Everyone else is. Californians seem to be leading the parade to the Inland Passage. Of 520 passengers aboard the memorable maiden voyage to Alaska of the Royal Viking Star, more than 400 were from the Golden State.

There's a magnificent array of cruises available — many sailing right here from Los Angeles harbor — and others more mini in nature sailing from Canada.

But a word of caution. After a cruise to Alaska, saying you have "seen" Alaska is about as true as traveling to the tip of Baja and saying you have "seen" Mexico.

It's impossible to comprehend the enormousness of our 49th state — twice the size of Texas — with a total population equal to that of the City of Long Beach.

A TYPICAL CRUISE from Los Angeles Harbor will make its first stop in San Francisco to load or unload passengers and you'll probably have adequate time to stroll down to Fisherman's Wharf or take a night out on the town. The Night Club tour is a good investment. Three drinks, three good shows, bus transportation and no waiting in line.

Then on to Victoria or Vancouver, Canada, probably the only "dangerous" ports of call on your itinerary when it comes to your wallet (if you stay out of the ship's gift shop, that is) because of the availability and abundance of beautiful woolens, china and other things British.

Alaska, on the other hand, has little to offer the curio collector with the exception of some really fine (and expensive) ivory carvings. Fur parkas, too, but in this age of ecology, they're a bit of a no no. Too warm for California, anyway. Another typically Alaskan artifact is the totem pole, and if you're interested in one for your yard, wait until your visit to Sitka and order one at the Sitka National Historical Monument. It will take several months, will cost about $100 a foot, and it will be authentic.

While Alaska may not be a shopper's paradise, only the Fjords of Norway can rival the stark ruggedness of its terrain and only the coral reefs of Bora Bora come close to the incredible blues that dance on the face of the glaciers.

Your first port of call in Alaska most likely will be its capital city, Juneau, which calls itself "the largest city in the U.S.A.," taking in 3,108 square miles. Accessible only by water or air, its days as the capital are numbered.

Things you'll want to see and do in Juneau are a visit to the Mendenhall Glacier (you'll see many as beautiful, but this is your first) and to the Red Dog Saloon on the city's colorful main street. However, by the time you return from your trip to the glacier, the ship's crew may have discovered the Red Dog and you'll do well to even plant a foot on the sawdust-covered floor, let alone a weary behind on a bar stool. If you happen to be a member of Elks, you might visit there. Friendly atmosphere, and the first drink is on the house.

THEN ON TO SKAGWAY where, if time allows, take the narrow gauge railroad to Lake Bennett for lunch. Enroute, you'll see breathtaking scenery (crossing some of the trestles is a little breathtaking, too!) and a view of the trail used by miners during Alaska's gold rush. If your days aboard ship have put you in a mood for a martini before lunch, take a flask. Lunch is family style and there is no bar at Lake Bennett. Only beauty and good food.

Probably the most picturesque city on most Alaskan cruise itineraries is Sitka, founded by the Russians, with signs of Russian architecture dotting the landscape.

You'll want to visit the Sitka National Historical Park (mentioned earlier) and walk its self-guiding trail through lush greenery and trees and the wonderful smells of the woods.

Plan to be back at the Visitor Center for the slamon bake luncheon at noon where you'll have the most delicious (and perhaps the only) salmon of the trip. You'll be entertained by a group of Sitka housewives who perform authentic Russian dances. Take your camera along, of course.

HIGHLIGHT of the cruise, however, both for camera buffs and scenery enthusiasts will be Glacier Bay National Monument. A forest ranger will be aboard as you cruise amid ice bergs, pointing out sights of interest and giving a history of the area. Please don't ask the captain to blow the ship's whistle so you can see its tonal power break away the face of a glacier. The practice is frowned upon today and thinking skippers simply do not do it.

What to expect when you're not in port or cruising Glacier Bay? Vistas of wooded country and blue, blue water from any window or deck chair you choose. And food, from sun-up to sun-up, movies, bingo, entertainment, dancing, costume parties, black tie balls, swimming (advised for polar bears or stout hearts), exciting people and an unwinding of tension that makes you ready to sign up for your next cruise before the ship even returns to port.

Travel films

Dwight Long's Armchair Adventures, oldest travel film series in the Southland, begins Oct. 18 with "Hong Kong" in Royce Hall, UCLA. Ken Armstrong is narrator.

Other films include "Scotland" with Bill Madsen; "The Pacific Northwest" with Don Cooper; "Israel" with William Stockdale, and "Denmark" with Philip Walker. All are in widescreen and color.

New Las Vegas rail route opens

Train services between Los Angeles and Las Vegas, long awaited by travelers of the two cities, will make its inaugural run Friday with "Uncle Miltie" Berle aboard as "guest conductor."

Berle will be the first of a list of famous personalities to ride the "Celebrity Train," as the train will become known. Service on the AMTRAK operated train will be three times weekly with scheduled departures from Los Angeles at 2:00 p.m. every Friday, Sunday and Wednesday.

"I'm a real nut for trains," Berle said. "It is really an honor to be selected as the first to ride this very important train."

Las Vegas Charter Service, Inc., a private corporation has chartered the train from AMTRAK on a long-term contract. Jack Melvin, president of the corporation, has been a key public relations and casino executive in Las Vegas for over two decades.

He saw the urgent need for the train when the energy crisis struck and immediately began negotiating with AMTRAK to link train service between the two cities once again.

"The response has been tremendous," Melvin pointed out. "We have booked over 2,000 reservations since the first announcement."

Time for the train will be approximately 7 ½ hours. At the present, speed laws in California and Nevada makes a trip from Los Angeles to Las Vegas approximately 6 hours.

"The Las Vegas Celebrity Train" has tickets offices in Hollywood and at all AMTRAK offices in Southern California. Prices include round-trip transportation, lodging at strip and downtown major hotels, and a free champagne party at the Union Depot prior to every departure and another upon leaving Las Vegas.

TRAVELING WITH DELAPLANE

Blooming Mexico

By STAN DELAPLANE
Cuernavaca, Mexico

Even ten years ago, this was a sleepy little town. At 5,000 feet it's always spring. We left our cars on the plaza with the cop. Sat in the sun with a cold beer and had our shoes shined.

The superhighway made it popular — (an hour-and-a-half from Mexico City) — and expensive. There are parking meters. An underground garage next to the ancient palace built by Cortez.

And trim girl cops in powder blue miniskirts direct traffic that oozes slowly around the plaza looking for a parking place. The shoeshine boys are still here but the price has gone up — from a peso (8 cents) to two pesos.

The mariachis' Mass starts at 11 in the Cathedral where Cortez built the first church. Mariachis are the street musicians of Mexico — a trumpet and guitars.

They play the church music here. And the old shady courtyard outside is a Sunday street fair of merchants with bright-colored Indian crafts.

Bargain and buy at the last minute. The asking price on the way into church goes down to half on the way out. (Records of the Mariachis' Mass on sale in the courtyard.)

The garden restaurant Las Mananitas I'd rate in the first five in all Mexico. It's not inexpensive — lunch for four tagged me $64. but it's worth it.

A Hertz car for a week hit me for $292, driving from Guadalajara. A Ford Galaxy goes for $25 a day and 25 cents a mile. (U.S. price, $16.99 and 17 cents.)

There's no more flowery town in Mexico. Every whitewashed wall is awash with purple bougainvillea. There are parasols of flame trees.

travel

Chinese-red tulipan de las Indias. Orange llamarada. Lirios and bandera de Mexico.

An American here said: "We hire gardeners to cut back the flowers, not to plant them."

"Let me know if you run into anything interesting to make for our Mexican parties . . ."

At Las Mananitas with the drinks they brought a bowl of fresh pineapple wedges in a little brown sauce. The taste was salty and a little peppery. We guessed it as soy sauce and ginger.

But not so. "Maggi sauce, lemon juice and salt," said the waiter. Now Maggi sauce (for meats and soup) is popular in Mexico but not so easy to find here. Also our Maggi sauce is not pepper-hot. Mexico has two kinds: mild and peppery. So you add a few drops of tabasco to the Maggi you buy here.

For straight tequila drinking, Mexicans put a few drops of Maggi in the glass before they pour the tequila. Adds a nice flavor.

"What do you tip bellboys in Mexican hotels?"

I gauge these "quarter-type" tips on the price of a shoeshine or a bottle of local beer in the store: Thus, two pesos — 16 cents per bag. But not less than five pesos for the opening run.

Mexicans tip 10 percent in restaurants, rather than our 15 percent. (Which seems to have risen to 20 percent — or the American waiter puts a thumb in the soup.) Nothing brings more angry mail than advice on tipping — except telling people how to make a martini.

Thanksgiving tour set

Princess Cruises has arranged a Thanksgiving cruise this year with a special "down home" country touch.

America's favorite "pea-picker," Tennessee Ernie Ford, will be the featured entertainer aboard the Island Princess this November 15, when the ship departs from Los Angeles on a 14-day cruise to the Mexican Riviera.

Ports of call on the cruise are Mazatlan, Manzanillo, Acapulco, Zihuatanejo, Puerto Vallarta and Cabo San Lucas.

For those wishing to take a portion of the cruise and spend more time in Mexico, Princess Tours, a division of Princess Cruises, offers attractive air-sea and sea-air programs with deluxe land arrangements.

Full information on the "Tennessee Ernie Ford" Thanksgiving cruise can be obtained from travel agents or Princess Cruises, 3435 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles, Ca. 90010.

Little-seen sights worth the drive travel

By LES RODNEY
Staff Writer

You can live in this incredibly varied state a long time without seeing all of its sights. On this vacation we caught up with a few we had missed.

Notably Twin Lakes, a gorgeous hunk of the Sierras near Bridgeport, and then, almost across the state, 20-mile long Clear Lake, little known to Southern Californians. Plus some old-fashioned roads between the two.

Leaving with exquisite timing at 3:30 one Tuesday afternoon, we just beat the late, great traffic on the San Diego Freeway, hit the Mojave desert in our air-conditionless car when the heat was waning, and made it comfortably to a motel, swim, drink, dinner, stroll and night's sleep in pretty little Lone Pine. Feeling unhurried and vacationy, the next morning it was up Route 395 past Bishop and Lee Vining to Bridgeport, elevation 6,467.

THIS IS A TOWN which most folks breeze on through, if they don't stop for gas. May I suggest—nay, urge—that you park, stroll a few steps to the ancient Mono County Courthouse, and then to one of the most fascinating collections of turn-of-the-century nostalgia you will ever see, housed in the former frame schoolhouse (no charge).

From Bridgeport, it's so long to 395, and 11 miles southwest you're at Twin Lakes, fishin' and hikin' country. We spent four days there in a spacious housekeeping cabin we had reserved by phone. ($23 a day.) Trout? Yes, sir. For our farewell brunch, we shaked, baked and fried up 10 of the beauties, some caught by the family fisherperson, which ain't me, others donated by a skilled user of salmon eggs who had caught his limit three times and was tired of trout. Ho, hum.

Yours truly enjoyed two memorable hikes, starting from Mono Village at the edge of the upper lake. One a half-day (both ways) climb to Barney Lake, one of those breathtaking Sierra gems sitting perfectly framed by the mountains, the other a longer trudge to within hallooing distance of 12,264-foot white topped Matterhorn Peak on the northern edge of Yosemite National Park.

Talk about contrast. From the uncluttered naturalness of Twin Lakes to the madhouse of Lake Tahoe's south shore, confirming every negative thing we had heard. Culture shock is bad enough, then add financial shock. You might know that any joint which gives you a sumptuous buffet for $3.95 confidently expects to get it back five-fold, at least, when you wander stupidly into the gaming maw.

Though a long look down at green-blue Emerald Bay the next day on the way out of Tahoe almost made it worth while.

SUPERHIGHWAY 80 took us over Donner Pass, where you try unsuccessfully to conjure up the fearful trip of yesteryear, then we branched off onto Route 20, one of the casual roads from the days when driving there was the event, not just getting there.

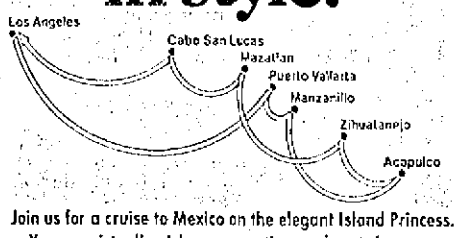

20 crosses California east to west on a line well above Sacramento. It rambles through Nevada City, which boasts some vintage hotels with great bars on its main drag. It continues through Rough and Ready, Smartville, Grass Valley, Marysville, Yuba City, charming Colusa and finally winds to Clear Lake. (If you were driving to Clear Lake from the San Francisco area, you would take Route 29 north from Calistoga, another picturesque drive.)

At the big lake we turned off the motor and forgot the car for a week, socking in at Konocti Harbor, where the Plumbers Union, would you believe, has built a handsome resort—open to cash customers not lucky enough financially to be plumbers. We paid $21 a night for modern accomodations.

There's a variety of fish caught in Clear Lake too, though not the trout of Twin Lakes. Catfish seemed popular with returning fishermen, who insisted they were great eating, and proved it over the barbecue pits.

Variety on variety, that's California. Will have to make it next year to Mac Epley's little known northeast corner at Fort Bidwell.

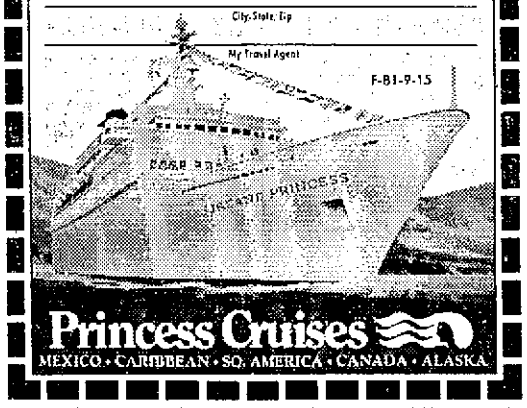

See Mexico in style!

Join us for a cruise to Mexico on the elegant Island Princess. You can virtually pick your own time and ports because we sail in winter, spring and fall. Choose a 7 day cruise to fascinating Puerto Vallarta, Mazatlan and Cabo San Lucas. Add exciting Acapulco for a 10, 11 or 12 day cruise. Include Manzanillo and Zihuatanejo for a 14 day escape. Or fly one way, cruise the other for 5 to 7 day vacations to Acapulco, including several ports of call. You can also add a Princess Tour to your cruise and explore inland Mexico cities. And why not plan to celebrate the holidays with a Princess? On Thanksgiving, Tennessee Ernie Ford will be your guest host. There'll be special festivities on Christmas and New Year's, too. We leave Los Angeles Nov. 15, Dec. 13 and Dec. 27 for our 14 day Holiday Cruises. All the way you'll enjoy our complete floating resort. The cuisine is superb. The service, incomparable...and Italian. Call your travel agent now. Registry: Norway.

PENNY-WISE TRAVELER

Checking the facts about traveling

By JANE MORSE

Want to know how to cut corners in New Orleans? What to wear in Vancouver? Where to go if you run out of money in Nassau?

Someday there'll be Dial-An-Answer hooked up to a wondrous, never-fail machine that will whirl out answers to all such travel questions. Meanwhile, let's say thanks that there are four good sources presently plugged in.

By using travel agents, transportation companies, tourist offices or the public library—one or all—there are few touristic mysteries you can't solve.

I'd hit the library first. The bigger the library the better. Their card files under the heading of "Travel" and every destination you can think of will get you off in the best directions. At the same time, try to get your hands on the "Reference Guide for Travelers" by J.A. Neal.

This chunky piece of work was published in 1969 so it's not much help for price problems (and few things are with changes bursting forth like kernels in a hot corn popper), but it does lay out, country by country, most background books and guidebooks in existence prior to that year. In no time, you'll be over your eyebrows in facts.

REACH NEXT for the World Travel Directory. Updated and reprinted annually, this one lists all the magazines and newspapers that publish travel information plus thousands of organizations in the travel business. That's how you find out who runs the ferryboats to Nova Scotia and how to reach them, who rents recreational vehicles in Spain, who has river-boat cruises on the Mississippi.

Airlines, shiplines, car-rental companies, sightseeing firms, they're all there. With these names and addresses, you can comparison shop by post card.

The WTD is also the quick and easy route to knowing almost all there is to know about passport and visa requirements, immunization, customs regulations, weather and foreign exchange.

From the WTD also pluck the addresses of another bunch of problem-solvers: tourist offices. The U.S.-based tourist offices of foreign countries and those representing each of the United States are the ones that can supply you with fair-to-fantastic lists of hotels and restaurants and their prices as well as news of discounts and money-saving tips, what's happening when in the way of fairs, festivals and cultural events.

All you have to do is ask—but do so at least a few weeks ahead of your plan-making deadline, say who you are, where you intend to go, what you might be up to, when and for how long. Don't say "Send me everything;" that's so vague that they'll be vague right back to you.

BE EQUALLY pointed in your questions when and if you contact transportation companies as well. The air and rail carriers can spell out everything you've always wanted to know about facilities at the terminals you'll be using; for example, which ones have money-changing services and when they're open, which feature nurseries or hotels on the premises, what kind of bus or limo service there is to town and how much it costs. They can also tell you about extra-on-board services such as meals, movies, games or toys available for children.

International airlines in particular seem to compete with one another to see who can give you the most in the way of free literature. Want to know how to handle yourself anywhere in the world, what to take, how to pack, what to tip? Whatever your destination, the airline going there has probably written a booklet covering the subject and will hand it over free for the asking.

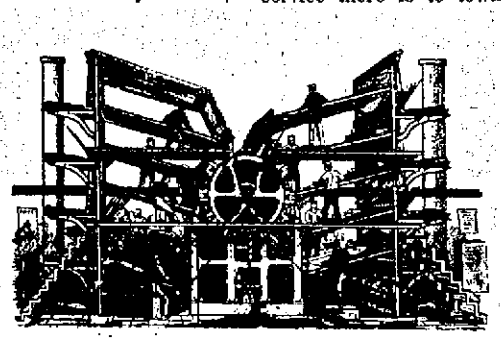

travel

Travel agents can do all this looking up and checking for you, but it's not very friendly of you to take up much of their time if you have no intention of buying from them. If you're budget-minded, say so and ask if they're willing to handle such business. Many agents will tell you right back that they don't deal in anything less than Grade-A hotels and that you really won't like anything less. They may be right.

YOU MAY have an unrealistic idea of what a budget hotel is (and even what budget travel is), but if you're not convinced go elsewhere.

Be advised, though, that travel agents do not deal in all kinds of travel everywhere; therefore, the "shopping" they do in your behalf generally will be limited to hotels, car-rental companies and other suppliers that pay commission. Get that straightened out before you make any decisions, of course, and also bear in mind that although their services are, for the most part, free, there are some things they charge for.

Fair is asking one or more travel agents for tour brochures or catalogues. Unfair is picking their brains for price information and then buying directly from the company. You'll get better attention if you go in person rather than try to commune over the phone. Best of all, go to them after doing your preliminary Sherlock work elsewhere. Digging beforehand not only provides answers but leads you to ask the right questions, namely the ones that will leave more dollars in your pockets.

MOTOR LOG TO SANTA BARBARA BILTMORE

Mercedes is very special

Story and Photos
By BILL EMERY
Associate Auto Editor

It may sound superlative, but there are no substitutes for superiority and quality. Driving one of the most sophisticated and over-engineered luxury sedans made today, we took a week-end Motor Log trip to Santa Barbara and visited one of the world's most beautiful hotels.

The car: a 1974 Mercedes Benz 450 SE four-door sedan borrowed from Palmer Import Motors at 3300 Atlantic Ave. in Long Beach. The hotel: The Santa Barbara Biltmore, a luxurious estate located on 21 acres fronting the Pacific Ocean in Montecito, an international social colony in Santa Barbara.

The best or nothing . . . this has been the goal at Mercedes-Benz in the development, construction and production of these prestige automobiles since before the turn of the century.

And when you buy the best, you expect to pay more for quality. How much more is conjecture, however, the initial price check on a Mercedes-Benz, whether it's the 280 economy model or the 450 SLC $20,000 model can leave one mentally crippled even to consider driving one in traffic.

Even if you don't know a sway bar from an overhead camshaft, a few minutes in a Mercedes-Benz 450 SE will tell you that you are driving or riding in something very special. And, the more time spent in the car under varied conditions, the more you discover the true sophistication denied to most other passenger cars.

MERCEDES-BENZ claims they are not competing with other makes . . . only themselves. The engineers rule over the designers, marketing wizards, cost accountants and public opinion experts.

These stubborn perfectionists insist that if a man can afford to invest thousands of dollars in an automobile, he is entitled to get more than a status symbol.

The 450 SE four-door sedan is a fascinating machine in comparison with other cars in its size and class. It will out sport a sports car in many respects. There is an unbelievable feeling of control running in a tight turn, hitting an unexpected deep dip or plunging over a series of potholes.

And, most cars, combining any two of the above mentioned conditions will tend to drift out of control. For some strange reason, known only to the MB engineers, probably, the Mercedes-Benz thrives on a challenge to try and make it exceed its commitment to function. Its handling characteristics were really designed fit for a racing car.

In 88 years of self-competition, this motorcar builder has always been years ahead in safety and convenience innovations. To describe the car in itself in detail is not nearly as impressive as the constant discoveries of the little perfections that keep cropping up the longer you drive the car. One thing sure, a Mercedes-Benz is built to outlast its warranty and payments for years to come.

ARRIVING AT the Biltmore, which was formally opened in 1927, one is immediately impressed with the Spanish-style architecture in a lush garden setting with the towering Santa Ynez mountains in the background and a quarter-mile private beach and the Pacific Ocean out front.

The 21-acre resort features one and two-story buildings and cottages with rooms of generous proportions designed with the simplicity of the Padres, Basque and Iberian influences. It is as new and convenient as if the hotel had just been built, yet distinctly different and with a personality intrigue that appeals to international travelers.

The Biltmore caters to a clientel who appreciate and can afford the finest.

Since 1953, the Santa Barbara Biltmore and Coral Casino restaurants have been under the direct supervision of eminent French chef, Jacques Le Borgne. The cuisine is varied and excellent and attracts epicures from all over the Southland for both Continental and American dishes served in the elegant dining room and in the well-protected La Marina Patio.

HOTEL GUESTS have the choice of two swimming pools. One is Olympic size and faces the ocean at the entrance to the private quarter-mile beach. The Coral Casino Beach and Cabana Club offers lockers, dressing rooms, cabanas, cocktails and formal dining.

The Biltmore goes to extremes to offer guests unobtrusive service. Telephone operators are instructed to call each guest by name, the beds are all extra long and wide and have the finest Beauty Rest or Serta Perfect Sleeper mattresses with three Wamsutta supercale sheets on each bed . . . one covering a superior all-wool blanket and two on the bed.

Extra large family-sized bath soap, oversized towels and large adjustable shower head are a few of the special touches found in the spacious rooms.

EVERY ROOM has outside exposures and an outlook to the ocean, mountains or gardens. Many open on romantic Spanish balconies while some have private patios, living rooms tastefully decorated with hand-built tables, dressers and standing cabinets. The more elaborate suites offer fireplaces and furnishings reminiscent to the days of the Dons.

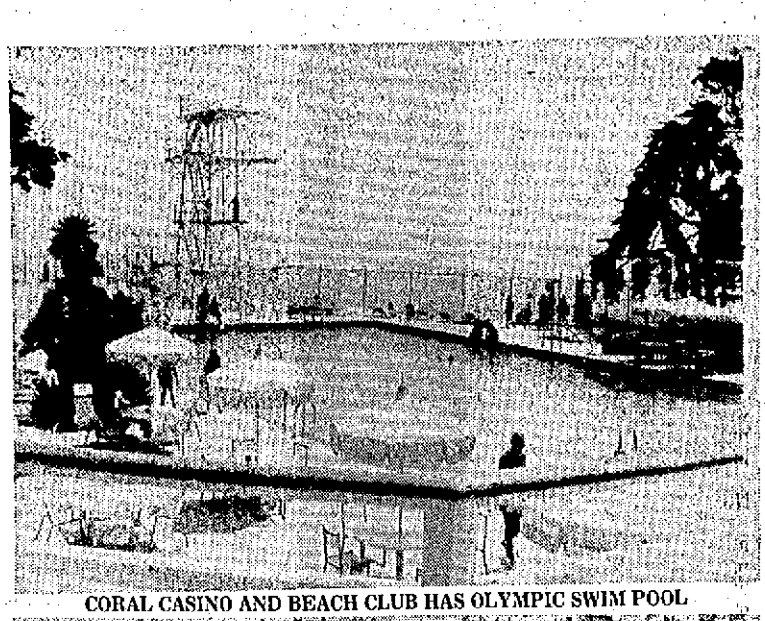

There is dancing on the week end and strolling musicians play while diners enjoy their evening meal.

A scenic drive to 15 points of interest in Santa Barbara called the "Red Tile Tour" is like a walk through old California. Santa Barbara's Old Mission, founded in 1786, is a must for area visitors.

The luxury of the Santa Barbara Biltmore together with the luxury of the Mercedes-Benz 450 SE makes a combination unbeatable the world over.

According to the automobile industry's most authoritative sources, all domestic cars depreciate faster than a Mercedes-Benz. Even after five years, the average Mercedes-Benz retains over 50 percent of its initial price. And some particularly desirable models show nearly 100 percent. After 3 years, Mercedes-Benz has a better resale value than any car made in America. Any car.

USC shocked by Arkansas

By LOEL SCHRADER
Staff Writer

LITTLE ROCK—There will be a short pause for a message from USC's football team:

"Sorry, folks, we're not No. 1."

The dreadful happenings of a Saturday night in Little Rock were a nightmare, something out of Orson Welles' frightening "War of the Worlds," an evening to forget.

Arkansas capitalized on nearly every Trojan mistake—and there were many—as it achieved a 22-7 upset before a record "Wooooo, pig, sooooie" crowd of 54,622 at War Memorial Stadium.

The Razorbacks achieved every wish from their Wishbone offense and their defense harassed USC quarterback Pat Haden into four interceptions in as dreary an opener as the Trojans have experienced since they lost to Georgia Tech, 27-7, in 1961.

But the Trojans hadn't entered that season with the acclaim of a fifth-place, pre-season ranking and the plaudits of their coach, John McKay, who had said the Trojans had a chance for a national championship.

"We threw poorly, tackled poorly, blocked poorly and were coached poorly," said a disheartened McKay when the massacre ended.

"Otherwise, we were a perfect team," he added, momentarily regaining his sense of humor.

Haden, who didn't complete a pass until the final play of the third quarter, pointed squarely at himself in assessing blame for USC's disastrous performance.

"I threw the ball very, very badly," he said. "I'm the reason we lost. My interceptions had everything to do with their scoring."

He gulped a couple of times to re-establish his composure.

Pointing to his teammates, who were dressing in silence, the Trojan quarterback said: "I let a lot of guys down on this team tonight."

Actually, USC's entire offense was pathetic, and established the credibility of McKay, who had said the Trojans weren't ready for a game because the badly bruised offense hadn't had an opportunity to scrimmage together.

USC's only points resulted from a 106-yard kickoff return by Anthony Davis 15 seconds after Arkansas had taken a 7-0 lead in the first quarter.

It was the fourth kickoff touchdown of his career, but this was the longest, beating by nine yards his previous record of 97 in one of two spectacular runs against Notre Dame in 1972.

McKay had been proud of USC's ability to handle a Wishbone offense. The Trojans had yielded only 40 points in their last six efforts against the option offense, including a seven-point performance against fleet and powerful Oklahoma last season.

The Razorbacks seemed

USC quarterback Pat Haden locked horns with Arkansas linebacker Dennis Winston in Little Rock Saturday night and came out second best although he didn't actually lose his head over play. But Troy did lose, suffering a 22-7 upset as Haden was beset by an off-target performance.

52,970 see Reds win, 4-2

Dodger lead cut to 1 1/2

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

The Cincinnati Reds arrived at Dodger Stadium Friday night hell-bent on sweeping the three-game showdown series with the Dodgers.

They're now two-thirds of the way toward completing their mission after making it two in a row Saturday night, winning 4-2 to disappoint another sellout mob of 52,970.

But it's not over with, the Reds contend.

"We've still got to win Sunday," insisted Pete Rose, Cincinnati's dynamo leftfielder, after the Reds shot to within 1½ games of the Dodgers in the National League West. It's the Dodgers' shortest advantage since 'way back on May 8, when they led Houston by one game.

"We've played a whole week and gained exactly one game," Rose said. "The Dodgers still are in first place. They're at the controls.

"But," he warned, "we've got the momentum."

Johnny Bench, the Reds' catcher, said that winning the first two games of the series keeps Cincinnati solidly in the race.

DODGER OF DAY

BILL RUSSELL had two of the Dodgers' five hits in 4-2 loss to the Reds.

"We'd have been in real trouble if we'd lost two," he said.

But the Reds have won two and can really slap on the pressure with a victory in today's game.

"I'm concerned, of course," said Dodger manager Walter Alston. "I've been concerned for some time.

"It's discouraging to lose two in a row. But we've bounced back before. If we win we're in good shape. If we don't, we still lead by a half game."

It was a leadoff home run in the fourth inning by Tony Perez, his 27th of the season and third in as many games against the Dodgers, that was the decisive blow.

It broke a 2-2 tie and enabled lefthander Don Gullett, with late-inning help from Clay Carroll, to record his 17th victory.

He received a slight cushion in the eighth inning when Joe Morgan swatted a bases-empty homer off Mike Marshall. It was Morgan's 21st homer — seven of them against the O'Malleys.

"The pressure is still on us," said Cincinnati's little second baseman. "We've still got to do it Sunday."

If the pressure is on the Reds, as little Joe suggests, the defending divisional champs have a funny way of showing it.

They popped out to a 2-0 lead in the first inning, with a good deal of help from the Dodgers' second baseman, Dave Lopes, who made two errors on the same play. Then, when the Dodgers tied the game, the Reds quickly un-tied it.

Perez hit his homer to lead off the fourth inning, the fourth of six hits surrendered by loser Geoff Zahn, now 3-5, but certainly the most damaging.

"We came here to win all three and we've still got one more to go," Perez said later. "We've never let ourselves get down, not once all season. If get Sunday's game then we'll be in a good position to go on and win it all."

DICK ALLEN RETIRING

CHICAGO (UPI)—Dick Allen, a $225,000-a-year major league superstar and the American League's leading home run hitter, stunned his teammates and the Chicago White Sox management Saturday night by tearfully announcing his retirement from baseball.

Allen, a talented but moody athlete and the highest paid player in baseball, gave no reasons for suddenly quitting a game that pays him $1,308 per day during the season, but general manager Roland Hemond, who heard the news shortly before game time, had what he thought was the "best guess."

"I think it's because he had a great disappointment that the team did not win (the Western Division). Allen came here to do a job, and for him that means everything," Hemond said.

Allen hit 32 home runs this season, tops in the league, had a .303 batting average and drove in 88 runs.

Snake-bitten LBSU bows to late NI rally, 16-14

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

DeKALB, Ill. — Jim Gilbert kicked a 29-yard field goal with 25 seconds remaining Saturday to complete a nine-point, fourth-quarter rally that gave host Northern Illinois University a 16-14 victory over Long Beach State.

"It looks like Long Beach is still snakebitten," coach Wayne Howard said after seeing nearly everything go wrong for his charges after they had established an early 14-0 lead.

Long Beach scored in the first period when wide receiver Dan Jones won an aerial wrestling match with an NIU defender and landed in the end zone with a 25-yard pass from quarterback Bob Dulich.

The 49ers made it 14-0 in the second stanza when Dulich slipped four yards over right tackle for a touchdown after Stanford Brewer's imitation of Jones' reception had netted LBSU 35 yards. John Wagner kicked both conversions.

But there was trouble ahead for Howard's troops. The misfortunes included:

—Two bad snaps from center in punting situations.

—Twelve penalties for 84 yards, mostly in critical situations.

—A lost fumble when the 49ers were driving for what would have been the deciding touchdown.

Long Beach survived the first bad snap with a loss of 24 yards, but the second one, which Wagner tried to run with, cost the 49ers seven points.

The sophomore from LACC fumbled when he was tackled for a 26-yard loss and Northern Illinois' Pete Kammholz gleefully grabbed the ball out of the air and ran 25 yards to put his team back into the contest, 14-7, 5:35 before the half.

Most of the 8,428 spectators in Huskie Stadium spent the third quarter trying to get a glimpse of 49er booster Rick Bryson, whom they thought was actor Robert Redford, while the teams toiled through the 15 minutes that was to ultimately decide the game.

Neither team scored in the third period, but it was the events that transpired then that evened NIU's record at 1-1 and forced Long Beach to endure its 12th defeat in its last 15 games.

"We thought it was crucial that we take the wind in the third quarter," Howard explained, noting that the 49ers had kicked off to open the final half with a 25-mph wind at their backs.

"We wanted to score in the third quarter and put them away," continued Howard. "With the wind at our backs we felt we could get a good kickoff, hold them, get the short punt and maybe push one in."

The plan nearly worked. The 49ers did get a good

Second-stringer rallies Huskies

SEATTLE (UPI)—Dennis Fitzpatrick came off the bench in the fourth quarter to engineer a 48-yard scoring drive that gave Washington a 21-17 victory over Cincinnati Saturday.

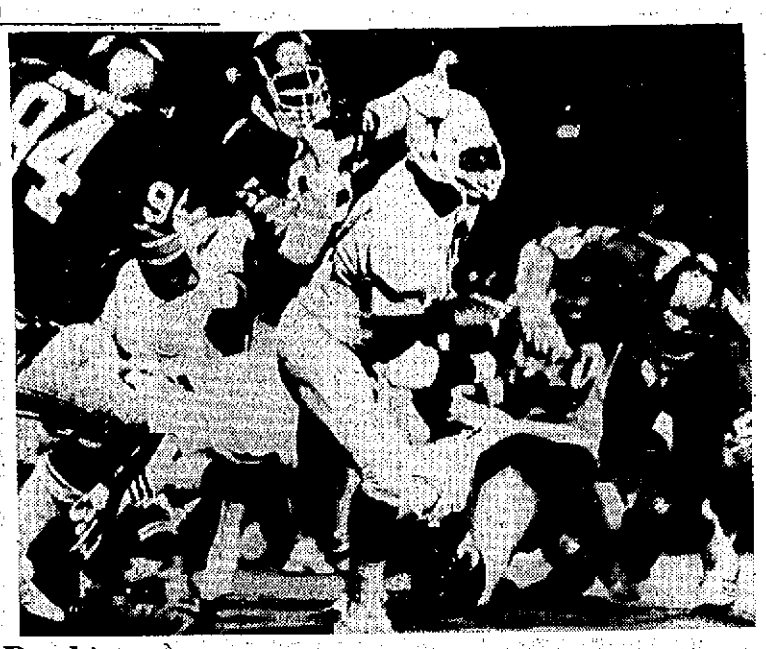

But Washington still had to fight off a last-minute Cincinnati bid that was set up when Bill Fowler recovered Chris Rowland's fumble on Washington's 38. The Bearcats then worked it down to the Washington 27 but failed to connect on three consecutive pass attempts.

Fitzpatrick, the second-string Washington quarterback, flipped a 27-yard pass to Ken Conley to put the ball on the Bearcat two. Fitzpatrick then carried the ball in for the winning score.

The Bearcats jumped off to an early lead when quarterback Henry Miller fired a 34-yard touchdown pass to flanker Harold Lee. Washington tied it up late in the first period on a 19-yard pass from Rowland to tight end Robin Earl.

Reserve QB sparks Texas to 42-19 romp

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — Texas's 10th-ranked Longhorns, charged up by reserve quarterback Mike Pressley after a sluggish start, exploded for 21 points in the second period and went on to rout Boston College 42-19 Saturday night in a 1974 football opener.

Taking over after starting quarterback Marty Akins suffered a concussion early in the second quarter, Presley was a one-man gang in rallying the Longhorns.

The junior speedster with a rifle-like arm capped a 95-yard march by scoring on a short run and then set up two more touchdowns, moving Texas into an insurmountable 21-3 halftime lead.

Don Burrisk plunged for the second touchdown and Graylon Wyatt passed 12 yards to Tommy Ingram for another.

BC narrowed the count on Fred Steinfort's second field goal in the third period, but Texas pulled off some razzledazzle to return the ensuing kickoff 95 yards for a touchdown. Raymond Clayborn, the third player to handle the ball, sprinted 90 yards for the score.

With all-America Roosevelt Leaks watching from the sidelines with a weak knee, Texas managed just one first down and a net of 14 yards in falling behind 3-0 in the opening 15 minutes. The Eagles were mismatched the rest of the way.

DODGERS-

Reds' pilot, is looking even beyond today's finale.

"We've got a long way to go," Sparky said, choosing his words carefully. "We've got a lot of games to play. Even if we win Sunday — or even if don't win — a lot of things can happen.

"Already I've been wrong so many times. I said in the spring that 93 wins would win it. Well, the Dodgers have already won 91. Then I said 100 would probably do it. That's wrong, too. Now I don't know. We've just go to go out and win every day."

Rose led off the Reds' first inning with a grounder to Lopes who booted the ball. One error. After recovering the ball he threw late — and wild — to first. Another error.

Morgan doubled Rose home from second and then scored himself on a single by Perez to make it 2-0.

The Dodgers got even with single runs in the second and third innings.

Steve Garvay doubled to lead off the second, took third on a wild pitch and then scored on Joe Ferguson's sacrifice fly that Rose caught against the bullpen gate in leftfield.

In the third Steve Yeager singled to start the inning, got to second when Zahn grounded out and came home on a single to center by Bill Buckner.

That lasted less than an inning. Perez homered in the fourth, a towering fly that fell into the seats along the leftfield line.

Mike Marshall entered the game in the fifth inning, his earliest appearance since April 8 — the day Hank Aaron hit No. 715 in Atlanta when Iron Mike took over in the fourth inning.

Fourth ... fifth ... it really didn't matter. Morgan nailed him for a homer in the eigth, the second time in a week little Joe has homered off Marshall.

DODGER DOPE: Jimmy Wynn was back in the starting lineup after spending the day in bed because of infected tonsils. "I'm a little dizzy," he saidd, "but, heck, you gotta play now. Maybe I'll take a day or two off next week if this thing persists, but no more days off against the Reds."

The Dodgers, who'll surpass the 2,300,000 mark today, have played before four million fans, home and away.

Mike Marshall, who missed two days in a row, must have felt neglected. He threw on the sidelines and then pitched batting practice before Saturday night's game. He made his 95th appearance Saturday night and undoubtedly will pitch in his 100th game sometime during the homestand.

Don Sutton (15-9 shoots for his sixth win in a row and 10th in his last 11 decisions today when he faces the Reds' Fred Norman (11-11) in the series finale at 1:15 p.m. Andy Messersmith will pitch Monday night against the Astros.

Pitt wins by a foot

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Kicker Carson Long booted a 39-yard field goal early in the third quarter and 13th-ranked Pittsburgh made it stand up for a 9-6 victory over Florida State Saturday night in the season opener for both teams.

Florida State suffered its 13th successive loss despite holding Pittsburgh all-America sophomore halfback Tony Dorsett to 81 yards, only the third time in his college career that he has been held to under 100 yards.

Quarterback Bill Daniels took up the offensive slack for Pittsburgh with his passing, completing nine of 14 attempts for 125 yards.

Dorsett scored the Pittsburgh touchdown on a one-yard run at the end of a three-play, 17-yard drive late in the second period. The score was set up on a fumble by Florida State's No. 2 quarterback, Steve Mathieson.

Houston gets draw on Rice

HOUSTON (AP) — Donnie (Quick Draw) McGraw scored the longest touchdown in University of Houston history, a 91—yard sprint run in the first quarter Saturday night, to rocket 19th-ranked Houston to a 21-0 victory over crosstown rival Rice.

McGraw, who rushed for over 100 yards for the fifth game in a row with 178 yards on 20 carries, took a pitchout from quarterback David Husmann and shot down the sideline on a clearing block by tight end Marty Watts with only four minutes gone in the game.

LSU veer routs Colorado, 42-14

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Brad Davis ran for two touchdowns and Louisiana State University wore down Colorado with its new veer offense en route to a 42-14 victory Saturday night.

The ninth-ranked Tigers built a 35-0 lead before allowing Colorado a pair of fourth-quarter touchdowns, one of them coming on a blocked punt.

LSU also got touchdowns from its other two first-string runners, running back Steve Rogers and quarterback Paul Broussard. Adding Tiger scores were sophomore running back Terry Robiskie and quarterback Carl Otis Trimble.

It was an impressive debut for the new offense, installed by Coach Charles McClendon because of his large stable of quality running backs. It was the most points scored by LSU in an opening game since the Tigers beat Rice, 42-0, in 1945.

It was also the season opener for Colorado under new Coach Bill Mallory.

Despite the LSU domination, only two of the Tigers' six touchdowns resulted from sustained drives. The others stemmed from fumble recoveries in Colorado's territory or from long runs—a 55-yarder by Brian Zeringue and a 58-yard scramble by Trimble.

Wolfpack rips Duke

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Flanker Don Buckey caught two touchdown passes Saturday night as 16th-ranked North Carolina State, scoring in every quarter, rolled to a 35-21 Atlantic Coast Conference win over Duke.

The Wolfpack, defending ACC champion, upped its 1974 record to 2-0 and dampened Duke hopes of improving on last year's dismal 2-8-1 record with its methodical pounding of the Blue Devils.

Buckey grabbed a 67-yard scoring pass from his twin brother Dave, the North Carolina State quarterback, in the second quarter and scored again in the third quarter on a 24-yard pass from fullback Stan Fritts.

Fritts, a workhorse of the Wolfpack ground attack, also scored on a one-yard smash.

Rebs stun Missouri

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Senior quarterback Kenny Lyons built a fire under the Mississippi offense Saturday night and guided the Rebels new Veer offense to a 10-0 upset victory over Missouri.

Lyons' broke a scoreless deadlock in the third period when he engineered a 71-yard drive for the game's only touchdown. He completed four key passes for 28 yards and sneaked the final yard for the score.

Missouri never threatened seriously. Sticking mostly to a ground attack, the Tigers showed their biggest offensive threat in the first quarter, when quarterback Ray Smith moved Missouri to the Ole Miss 39.

Kansas pins Wash. State

SPOKANE (UPI)—The Kansas Jayhawks tallied two second-quarter touchdowns then beat back a late surge by Washington State to escape with a 14-7 victory over the Cougars Saturday night.

The Jayhawks' first touchdown came on a 31-yard burst by fullback Robert Miller, capping an 86-yard drive in five plays at the start of the second quarter.

Kansas' second score followed a 45-yard drive in seven plays with quarterback Scott McMichaels going over from the one.

Kansas' first point-after failed and the Jayhawks went for two the second time around with McMichaels connecting on a pass to Miller to make it 14-0.

The Cougars came flying back in the fourth period with senior quarterback Chuck Peek relying almost exclusively on fullback Andrew Jones. Jones carried on eight of 14 plays in a 53-yard drive and scored on a one-yard plunge.

Harrell's scamper KOs UTEP

EL PASO (AP)—Tailback Willard Harrell scampered 44 yards with 1:38 left in the game to give Pacific a 17-14 victory over Texas-El Paso in a non-conference game Saturday night.

The run climaxed a battle that saw the lead change hands three times in the fourth quarter.

Pacific went into the second half on top, 3-0, but the Miners drove 98 yards to take the lead when quarterback Bobby McKinley tossed a 10-yard pass to fullback Don Willis for the touchdown.

Then Pacific quarterback Steve Towne drilled a 40-yard strike to Steve Gill to put Pacific ahead again, 10-7.

UTEP drove 80 yards in six plays and freshman tailback Michael Belew capped the march with a six-yard run making it 14-10 for UTEP.

But then Harrell dashed UTEP's hopes with his 44-yard winning romp. Harrell finished the game with 146 yards.

49ERS LOSE—

kickoff, they held Northern Illinois and got a relatively short punt. The good things ended there.

The 49ers were nailed with a five-yard penalty on first down and never got untracked.

When the third period had ended, the Huskies had run 21 plays to the 49ers' nine, and only a fumble recovery by Willie Scott on the LB 6 kept NIU from getting its second touchdown.

NIU's dominance of that 15 minutes meant that the last quarter would be played on Long Beach's side of the 50-yard line with the wind on the side of the Huskies.

The hosts, who have not lost in three meetings with Long Beach, cut the advantage to 14-13 with 10:26 to play when reserve quarterback Bob Greglunas ran an option to his left, cut up over tackle and sprinted 31 unchallenged yards for the touchdown.

The Huskies went for two points on the conversion, but Gary Balch blocked Greglunas' pass and the 49ers had a precarious 14-13 lead that they would protect for 10 minutes.

"I always play to win," NIU coach Jerry Ipoliti said of his decision to go for two.

"Besides, with the wind at our backs, we felt that we were just giving ourselves another chance to win. We knew the odds were good that we would get at least one more chance for a field goal," added Ipoliti, who had another edge in making that choice.

"I'd like to play Long Beach every week," he smiled. "We seem to have pretty good luck against them."

Things certainly went the Huskies' way in the final minutes.

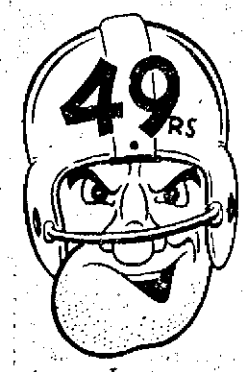

Greglunas couldn't answer the call, so Ipoliti sent in reserve QB Gerry Golsteyn and the junior rifled a 15-yard pass to a well-defended Gary Hosier to spark the drive that led to Gilbert's field goal.

The Huskies were also fortunate that Dan Jennings was able to recover his own fumble of a pitchout for a six-yard loss on the play before Gilbert came on to boom his game-winning kick.

Howard was particularly pleased with the play of Dulich and tailback Tommie Nathan.

Dulich, a transfer from the University of San Diego, where he was a Division III all-America in 1973, completed 10 of 12 passes for 107 yards. The 5-foot-10 senior also carried 13 times for a net of 20 yards while doing a confident job of running the 49er office.

Nathan carried the ball 24 times and netted 111 yards to move into eighth place among LBSU career rushers with 798 yards.

Fry fails by a point in revenge try, 7-6

IRVING, Tex (AP) — Southern Methodist quarterback Ricky Wesson squirmed six yards for a touchdown in the third quarter Saturday night and Clint Hackney kicked the deciding point to give the Mustangs a hard-earned 7-6 victory over North Texas State, which was seeking revenge for coach Hayden Fry.

Fry was fired two years ago at SMU and the game before 27,183 in Texas Stadium was scheduled by him when he was athletic director at SMU. North Texas threatened in the waning moments, moving to the SMU 33-yard line before an ineligible receiver penalty put them out of field goal range.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

'Expert' predicts Rams will lose 3

Some of the big people in the Ram organization shot angry darts toward this corner last week after it was chronicled here that Chuck Knox's men would romp into the Super Bowl.

It was all done in fun (!), you know, but anyway the Ram people can sit back and luxuriate today in the knowledge that in this big country there is someone who doesn't think the Knoxmen are invincible.

The Football News editor predicts the Rams will lose three games this season, while winning "only" 11, a little different from the HHH prediction that the Knoxmen would sail through their first 10 games and perhaps encounter a land mine in only one of their last four jousts.

Sadly, however, for low-key Ram biggies, that editor also envisions the Rams in the Super Bowl along with Miami, even though the Rams and Dolphins would finish the regular season with identical 11-3 records as Oakland and Dallas.

This being the last hour for preseason analysis, here's how that other chap crystal-balls the 1974 NL chase.

1. MIAMI (11-3) —Don't count out the champions even if Shula has a few problems.

2. Rams (1-3)—Have great offensive thrust. Seem even better than last year.

3. Oakland (11-3)—This perennial contender offers biggest threat to Miami's AFC domination.

4. Dallas (11-3)—This is a perpetual winner. Cowboys should edge Redskins again.

5. Pittsburgh (10-4)—Steelers have regrouped toward third consecutive playoff appearance.

6. Minnesota (9-5)—Vikings may not be able to repeat fast 1973 start, but have well-rounded team.

7. WASHINGTON (9-5) — Don't sell George Allen short, but 9-5 is about right for these oldtimers.

8. Atlanta (9-5)—Falcons showed improvement last season but missed the playoffs. Maybe this year.

9. Cincinnati (9-5)—Could upset the applecart. A lot of good experienced talent.

10. Buffalo (9-5)—Bills super offensive machine. O. J. to roll again.

11. Denver (9-5)—Broncos should move up the ladder after successful 1973 season.

12. Detroit (8-6)—Lions move up in last year at old stadium, but they won't catch the Vikings.

13. Cleveland (7-7)—Browns always seem to have creditable team, but no playoff spot this time.

14. KANSAS CITY (6-8) — Chiefs are slipping, but Hank Stram should have them somewhat respectable.

15. Philadelphia (6-8)—Eagles stared to show promise last season and Bergey will improve defense.

16. Baltimore (6-8)—Colts to move up the ladder. A building team.

17. Green Bay (5-9)—Coach Dan Devine is on the hot seat to produce a winner in Packerland.

18. San Francisco (5-9)—49ers slipped badly last year after three consecutive division wins. Problems remain.

19. N. Y. Jets (5-9)—Charlie Winner has his work cut out for him with this outfit. Slight improvement.

20. NEW ORLEANS (5-9) — Saint fans have been over-patient, but this record is best we can expect.

21. N. Y. Giants (5-9)—New coach may rally troops from last year's disaster.

22. New England (5-9)—Chuck Fairbanks is building fast, but tough schedule will hurt.

23. St. Louis (4-10)—It has been a long dry spell for Cardinals and 1974 looks pretty bad.

24. Houston (3-11)—Oilers to triple victory total this time, but still far out of it.

25. Chicago (2-12)—Bears have fallen to deepest depths and no one expects much from this one-time powerhouse.

26. San Diego (2-12)—Chargers have the honor of getting the top draft choice next year.

A BREAKDOWN OF THE PROJECTED results would see these final standings:

NFC	AFC
Western Divisions
Rams (11-3)	Raiders (11-3)
Falcons (9-5)	Broncos (9-5)
49ers (5-9)	Chiefs (6-8)
Saints (5-9)	Chargers (2-12)
Central Divisions
Vikings (9-5)	Steelers (10-4)
Lions (8-6)	Bengals (9-5)
Packers (5-9)	Browns (7-7)
Bears (2-12)	Oilers (3-11)
Eastern Divisions
Cowboys (11-3)	Dolphins (11-3)
Redskins (9-5)	Bills (9-5)
Eagles (6-8)	Colts (6-8)
Giants (5-9)	Jets (5-9)
Cardinals (4-10)	Patriots (5-9)

IF ALL GOES as forecast, all 1973 divisional champs will repeat (the Steelers and Bengals tied at 10-4 last season).

Two things stand out in the projected forecast. Even though the Rams, Dolphins and Vikings had 12-2 records last season, each is expected to have a worse mark this year.

No team with less than a 10-4 record last year made the playoffs, but this time a 9-5 team (Minnesota) could win its division, while five other 9-5 clubs are wild card possibilities.

Based on the forecast, playoffs would find Washington vs. the Rams at the Coliseum and Dallas at Minnesota. Miami would be at Oakland with Denver (Buffalo) at Pittsburgh.

If Atlanta wins the NFC wild card shot instead of the Redskins, the Rams would host Dallas and Minnesota the Falcons.

Shaw lets his records do talking

"I try not to react to outsiders. If I lost, it wouldn't bug me unless I hadn't given it 100 per cent."—Tim Shaw.

RICH ROBERTS

The headline in this newspaper read, "Swim star to speak," which was news in itself because the star referred to was Tim Shaw.

Shaw's appearance last week before the International Sports Forum at Hoefly's did not arouse comparisons to William Jennings Bryan, but neither did it totally support recent publicity portraying him as "painfully shy," swimming's answer to the Sphinx, or suspicion that he suffered from a permanent case of lockjaw.

"It didn't come on suddenly," Shaw says. "It's just that nobody knew about it. I've always been this way."

Even before he set world freestyle records for 200, 400 and 1,500 meters in the National AAU meet at Concord, Calif., three weeks ago, then led the U.S. team to victory over East Germany a week later.

SHAW IS, according to Long Beach Swim Club coach Dick Jochums, "the most overpowering swimmer in the world today." But out of the water he is like a lot of other people who don't believe in opening their mouths unless they are hungry or have something to say.

"That's exactly the way I am," says Shaw, who found that even eating can get him into trouble.

"At Concord they asked me what I'd eaten before setting the records. I told them hamburgers. So the next day there was a big article about how I was powered by hamburgers."

It's just that modern journalistic trends of in-depth interviews and introspective studies of the superstars have conditioned us to expect them to be as articulate as they are talented.

Last week's public speaking role was only the second of Shaw's life, which is two more than most 16-year-olds have had to endure. He was 45 minutes late, apparently postponing the obligation to savor a few extra moments of the solitude he finds in surfing.

"I had to do another speech at our club banquet last October," Shaw says, "telling about my trip to Yugoslavia with the U.S. team. I don't like to put a formal feeling on it, but I could talk about it all day if I was just at the beach with some people.

"It's good to let people know we have a club, because it needs the support, but I don't think it helps me personally."

IN SHORT, SHAW is the antithesis of Mark Spitz, the only other swimmer that currently holds three world records. Shaw contemplates no commercials for electric shavers, because he is hardly old enough to use one, and if he ever wins seven Olympic gold medals he has no intentions of selling exclusive poster rights for $5,000.

TIM SHAW...antithesis of Spitz

He tolerantly signs autographs, although he thinks "they're kind of stupid," and in all ways seems determined to lead as normal a life as the people who envy his achievements.

He also has a sense of humor. Jochums points out that Shaw, a senior at Wilson High this year, has "a 3.3 grade-point average."

"It's 3.65," Shaw says with a faint smile.

Asked if it's his prospects for the 1976 Olympics that drive him, he replies, "Yeah, that and, uh . . . " — pointing at the back of Jochums' head.

JOCHUMS SAYS that Shaw hasn't changed since the first time he was asked for his autograph.

"It was in the junior nationals at Hershey when I was 14," Tim says. "A little kid asked me. I think I'd finished ninth. My coach said there would be a lot more after that. But I try not to react at all to outsiders. I'm just trying to improve my times."

Jochums describes Shaw as being "inside himself."

"I think he means," Tim says, "that I can analyze my own problems and how I feel and how I should feel and how fast I should be going. That's what I'm doing this season.

"It's really a mental sport, getting psyched up, then getting down . . . like when you lose a race, the next one is easier to lose, and pretty soon you're talking to yourself."

SHAW EXPERIENCES plenty of emotional ups and downs, but not always in competition.

"A lot," he says, "especially during the season. I feel bad when I work out and don't get with it . . . just kind of go in there and slack off."

Not after a loss?

"It wouldn't bug me unless I hadn't given it 100 per cent. I wouldn't care if I'd placed fourth in the nationals, if I could step out of the pool and still say I did my best."

Nor does he get particularly high after winning — or even setting a world record. In the 1,500, he says, "I was just glad it was over.

"I'm happy then, but the real 'up' is mainly when I do a good series in a workout and I'm in the locker room and we're talking and stuff and I know I worked out hard.

"I don't even mean good times. Sometimes I'll debate with myself when I'm working out — like on a 3,000 meter I'll be mad that I have to do it, but about halfway through I want to just start working my muscles, and all of a sudden I'm picking up the pace. Then the two hours can go by really fast."

AFTER THE TWO hours — the last of three daily workouts when Shaw is in intensive training — he feels he's given swimming all the time it deserves. He wouldn't swim if Jochums demanded more.

"Younger, I probably would have, because I wouldn't have known any better. That's the problem. All these little kids with some coach like that may be Olympic potential at 12, but at 13 they're just wiped out mentally.

"I read an article about this kid who was 10 or 12 and breaking all sorts of records. He was doing harder workouts than I was."

Timothy Andrew Shaw really didn't take swimming seriously until he was 14 — "April, 1972, when he'd been goofing off for a long time and one of our other good swimmers, Bruce Furniss, beat him," says Jochums. "Now I have to yell at him only once a year."

Most of the time Shaw is out of earshot, surfing with his older brother at Huntington Beach or skiing with his family at Mammoth. His father teaches math at La Mirada High, his mother is a foreign language instructor at Poly.

Today's accomplishments were incomprehensible 11 years ago when they took their shy 5-year-old to Mayfair Park pool to enroll him in a Lakewood city learn-to-swim program.

"You go through the guppies, minnows and the last one is the dolphins when you have to swim 20 laps," Shaw recalls.

"I couldn't do it. I was too scared."

ARKANSAS HUMBLES TROY—

to gather momentum from the Haden interceptions and fumbles by Davis and sophomore fullback Ricky Bell.

USC had taken the opening kickoff and driven 53 yards to the Arkansas 12 when Haden threw to tight end Jim Obradovich in a crowd at the 2, and the ball was intercepted by the Razorbacks' Floyd Hogan, who returned it 66 yards to the Trojan 32 before being knocked out of bounds by Haden.

Three plays later, halfback Ike Forte, a junior college transfer from Tyler, Texas, took an option pitch and raced 27 yards for a touchdown. Freshman Steve Little kicked the extra point.

Davis evened it quickly with his kickoff return, outrunning Arkansas' Muskie Harris the last 50 of his yards. Chris Limahelu's kick tied the score at 7-7.

Davis fumbled midway in the second quarter at the Trojan 28, and, in eight plays, the Razorbacks drove to the USC 4, from where Little kicked a 22-yard field goal that gave Arkansas a 10-7 halftime lead.

The third quarter was traumatic for the Trojans, who didn't achieve a first down. But they did make their fourth turnover when defensive back Tommy Harris intercepted a Haden pass at the Arkansas 35.

The Razorbacks, who tried only two passes all night and the one completion lost 11 yards, sliced and slashed 16 times on the ground before quarterback Mark Miller sneaked the final yard of a 65-yard drive to give Arkansas a 17-7 lead.

Four minutes later, Arkansas forged another break, Hogan registering his second interception when Haden threw high over the head of split end Johnny McKay.

He ran 24 yards with the interception to the USC 25, and, with the aid of a personal foul on the Trojans' Charles Phillips, the Razorbacks punched to the three in six plays, Little capping the effort with a 20-yard field goal which gave the Razorbacks a 20-7 margin.

They were handed two more points in the fourth quarter when Haden, fading into the end zone for a pass attempt, stepped over the end line for a safety.

"I thought I was still inbounds, but I guess I wasn't," he said. "Wasn't that great of me?"

Obradovich, who had caught a touchdown pass for the Trojans on a broken play in the second quarter only to have it called back because of clip, thought Arkansas' three-man rush deprived USC of its passing game.

"We couldn't get open, but the rush was so great Pat couldn't see us," said the Trojan tight end. "It wasn't his fault. We just hadn't scrimmage before."

McKay was disgusted but gracious.

"Arkansas just kicked hell out of us," he said. "Their team was a lot better than ours was."

He paused. "Did they throw a pass?"

Told the Razorbacks had attempted two, he snorted:

"That shows how really bad we are."

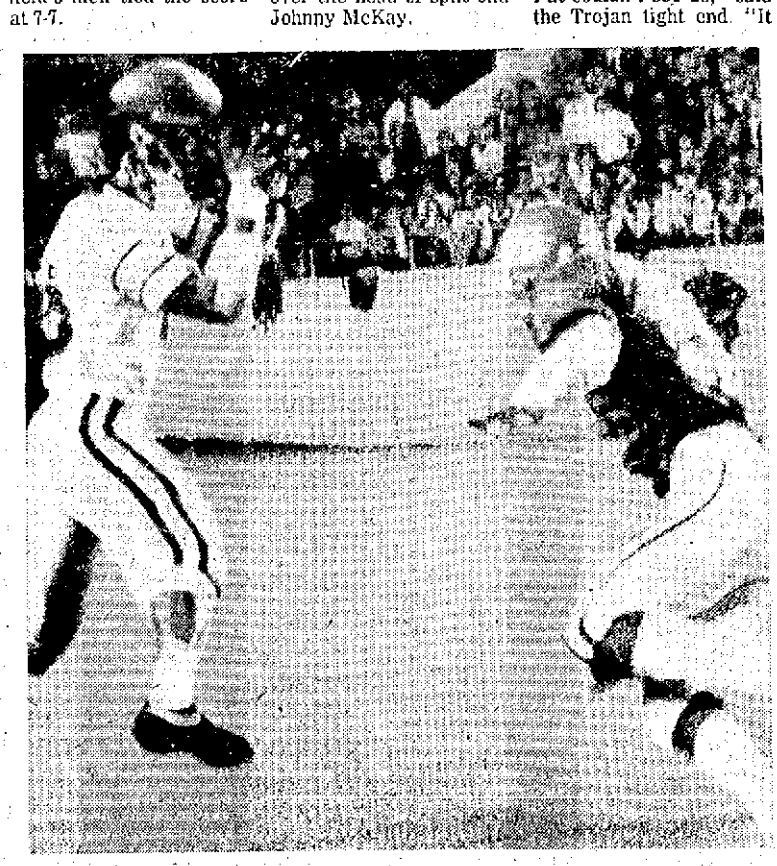

No one disagreed with him. Not when his team's offense had failed to produce a touchdown for the first time since losing, 3-0, to Oregon State in 1967.

Indeed, the Trojans were bad, probably worse than their coach had described them.

But his son, Johnny, struck an optimistic note.

Looking around to make certain his father wasn't within listening distance, young McKay said:

"I guarantee you, we'll win the rest of them."

Jim Farmer scored on a two-yard run and Gary Bernard kicked a 29-yard field goal in the second quarter as Azusa Pacific whipped University of San Diego, 15-7, Saturday.

Farmer, an NAIA all-America last year, gained 143 yards in 27 carries from his tailback position.

Arizona built a 14-0 lead in the second quarter and San Diego State was unable to catch up, as both teams went cold offensively for the rest of the game.

Each team turned the ball over four times and those mistakes, combined with penalties, stopped offensive drives throughout the second half.

Trojans fail to impress happy Hogs

By C. WILLIAM LAPWORTH
Special Correspondent

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — It was not an upset of epic proportions.

USC had been favored by 14 to 16 points, depending upon where the money was placed, and Arkansas was 20th in the nation in last week's Associated Press poll.

But Arkansas' 22-7 victory over fifth-ranked USC Saturday night set off a firestorm in the Razorbacks' dressing quarters.

"Richard Wood (USC linebacker) talked up a lot," said one of the White tornadoes, Barnabas (Marsh, a fullback, is the other). "That surprised me. I just expected him to be tougher than he was.

Wood had come into the game with the reputation of a two-time all-America, but White was unimpressed with The Batman and the rest of the Trojan entourage.

"I didn't really see any one outstanding man on their defense," he added. "They were all about average. Their inside defensive line was weak.

"After I crossed the line of scrimmage, there was nothing but wide-open spaces."

ANOTHER running back, Ike Forte, agreed.

"It was simple, he said. "Our offensive line just wiped out their defensive line. We just moved the ball on them. I was disappointed in Richard Wood. I was expecting him to be a lot meaner than he was."

Linebacker Dennis Winston, a thunderbolt who scrambled everything offensively for the Trojans, was more charitable.

"They were OK offensively . . . just average," he said.

But he expressed admiration for USC quarterback Pat Haden and tailback Anthony Davis.

"I will say Haden is a great quarterback," he said. "He is the best scrambler I've ever faced. I also was impressed with Anthony Davis.

"He is everything they said he was. He is hard to bring down."

COACH FRANK BROYLES was ecstatic.

"This is a great thrill," he bubbled. "I guess it is as big a thrill as we've had in a long time. A lot of credit should go to the defense.

"When the offense made a mistake, the defense came in and didn't let Southern Cal score."

He had special praise for the Razorback secondary, which threw a parachute over Haden's receivers.

"I just can't say enough for those guys in the secondary," said Broyles, who had lost to the Trojans the past two season. "They did the best job I've seen done since I've been at Arkansas.

"Winston did a fantastic job and we gave him the game ball."

The veteran Arkansas coach looked spent.

"I'm ready to go home and go to bed," he said.

He faced the prospect of the most satisfying slumber in a long time.

Bear unhappy after scary Alabama win

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI)—Richard Todd, a punter who replaced the injured Gary Rutledge at quarterback for second-ranked Alabama, gambled and won Saturday because Maryland's specialty team was asleep.

Hanging on to a 21-16 lead early in the fourth quarter, Todd dropped back to kick on a fourth and five situation at his own 25 and instead ran for a first down through a surprised Terp line, preserving the lead and the game. Alabama won, 21-16.

Alabama coach Bear Bryant, returning to Maryland where he began his coaching career in 1945, said of the narrow victory: "There is a big difference in winning a game and beating someone. We won the game but we sure didn't beat them. They whipped us all over the field."

After allowing Calvin Culliver to run over them for 154 of his 169 yards and two touchdowns in the first half Maryland's defense stiffened in the second half, limiting Culliver to 15 yards. With momentum apparently headed in Maryland's direction, Todd used the fake punt to keep the ball away from the fired-up Terps.

"Todd ran on fourth down on his own," Bryant said. "We really hadn't practiced it as such. I'll tell you one thing I never would have done it if I had been him."

Todd accounted for the final and decisive Crimson Tide touchdown in the third period after Maryland quarterback Ben Kinard fumbled at the 39. Todd ran for 19 yards, passed to Joe Dale Harris at the nine and then scored from the seven.

Griffin sets OSU mark as Bucks roll

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Junior running back Archie Griffin set an Ohio State career rushing record Saturday in leading the nationally ranked Buckeyes to a 34-19 Big Ten Conference victory over Minnesota.

Griffin, who gained 133 yards on 26 carries and now has 2,577 yards during his OSU career, and junior quarterback Cornelius Greene, sparked the Buckeyes' 499-yard offensive performance.

Greene, who passed and ran for 213 yards, scored two touchdowns while fullbacks Pete Johnson and Champ Henson each scored once.

Minnesota struck suddenly in the fourth quarter for 16 points and moved to within 29-19 before Greene sealed the victory with a 57-yard scoring run.

A 10-yard run by Griffin on the opening series of the game climaxed a 77-yard drive as the Buckeyes moved into a 7-0 advantage.

After exchanging punts, Minnesota's Steve Goldberg booted a 52-yard field goal to pull the Gophers within 7-3. Goldberg's kick broke a school record of 48 yards, a mark he set two years ago.

A 37-yard pass from Greene to David Hazel set up a four-yard touchdown by 250-pound sophomore fullback Pete Johnson early in the second quarter.

Henson's 37-yard touchdown burst four minutes later and the third successful conversion by Tom Skladany shoved the fourth-ranked Buckeyes into a 21-3 lead.

Neal Colzie swiped a Tony Dungy pass on the third play of the second half and Greene swept around his own left end from a yard out six plays later to move the Buckeyes into a 28-3 lead.

Soph QB sparks Florida past Cal

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Sophomore Jimmy Fisher brought Florida from behind three times Saturday for a 21-17 victory over the California Golden Bears.

Fisher threw a 19-yard pass to wide receiver Lee McGriff for one touchdown and set up another with a 27-yard toss to McGriff. Jimmy Dubose slammed five yards for that touchdown with 2:20 on the clock.

The sharp passing of Steve Bartkowski and hard running of Chuck Muncie gave California a strong attack.

Bartokowski threw a 17-yard touchdown pass to Muncie and Muncie smashed three yards for a go-ahead TD with nine minutes left in the fourth period.

Georgia bullies Beavers, 48-35

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Glynn Harrison scored two touchdowns, one on a 52-yard run, and rushed for 100 yards Saturday as Georgia opened its season with a 48-35 victory over Oregon State.

The Bulldogs bolted to a 20-0 lead and held leads of three touchdowns or more three other times in hot, muggy weather.

Oregon State staged brief rallies behind the sparkling play of quarterback Alvin White, who set up touchdowns with passes of 59 and 66 yards, scored another on a one-yard run and passed 35 yards for another score.

Harrison's other touchdown came on a 12-yard pass from Dicky Clark.

The Bulldogs opened the offensive outburst late in the first period ona 28-yard pass by halfback Horace King to Butch Box. Then, within a 90-second span of the second period, the Bulldogs suddenly held a 20-0 edge on a two-yard run by reserve quarterback Matt Robinson and a 31-yard pass interception return by Steve Taylor.

It was then that White completed his two long passes to set up touchdowns as the Beavers, 0-2, trimmed the lead to 20-14.

Georgia's other scoring came on a one-yard run by Clark and a 35-yard pass from Robinson to Steve Davis.

Charlie Smith scored twice for the Beavers and Ray Taroli once, all on short runs.

Michigan wins without Franklin

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Substitute quarterback Mark Elzinga threw a 10-yard touchdown pass to Gil Chapman and ran one yard for another to pace sixth-ranked Michigan to a 24-7 victory over Iowa Saturday.

Fullback Chuck Heater scored the other Michigan touchdown.

The Wolverines played without star quarterback Dennis Franklin, who was suffering from a virus and didn't dress.

Elzinga was the starter after the surprise announcement about Franklin's illness.

Elzinga guided Michigan 71 yards in nine plays with the team's first possession and Heater, a senior converted from tailback, climaxed the drive with a two-yard scoring run.

Elzinga scored on a one-yard sneak five minutes later to conclude the 10-play march after Don Dufek intercepted a Rob Fink pass at the Iowa 45.

The Hawkeyes, 0-11 last year and making their debut under new coach Bob Commings, did a pretty good job of thwarting Michigan's offense most of the rest of the game.

The TD pass to Chapman came at 11:07 of the third quarter. Michigan had marched 63 yards in eight plays.

The Wolverines added a 30-yard field goal by Mike Lantry in the fourth quarter.

The Hawkeyes averted a shutout when Rod Wellington dove over from the one with 0:54 remaining to climax an 80-yard march.

Spartans 'Baggett' with ease

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Quarterback Charlie Baggett threw two touchdown bombs Saturday and scored another on the ground in a 41-7 Michigan State rout over Big Ten rival Northwestern.

The Spartans' once-dormant offense exploded for three scores in the second quarter — one third as many as it scored all last season — to turn a 7-0 deficit into a 21-7 halftime advantage.

Baggett tossed a 57-yard scoring pass to flankerback Mike Jones midway through the second quarter and connected on a 44-yard touchdown pass to split end Mike Herd three minutes into the fourth quarter.

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) — Wisconsin, held to a pair of field goals in the first half, broke tailback Ron Pollard loose for two third quarter touchdowns Saturday and scored a 28-14 Big 10 victory over Purdue.

The Badgers dominated except in the fourth quarter when Purdue scored its only touchdowns — the last on a 64-yard bomb from quarterback Mike Terrizzi to speedster Jarry Burton.

N. Carolina runners clobber Ohio, 42-7

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—Alternating tailbacks Boom Boom Betterson and Mike Voight helped North Carolina whip Ohio U., 42-7, in the season's opener for both schools Saturday.

Betterson, a stocky junior, took the opening kickoff 70 yards and wound up the day scoring three touchdowns. He alternated with sophomore Voight, who scored once.

The Tar Heels showed depth at quarterback, using senior Chris Kupec and sophomore Bill Paschall with equal effectiveness. Kupec, the better passer of the two, scored North Carolina's first touchdown on a keeper after Betterson's long return put the Tar Heels in scoring position. He capped the scoring with a 73-yard touchdown heave to Jimmy Jerome.

Middies block Cavalier surge

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) —Junior quarterback Phil Poirier ran for one touchdown and threw for a second, but it was an alert Navy defense that scored twice and turned back a furious fourth-quarter Virginia surge Saturday to give the Middies a 35-28 victory.

Poirier hit flanker Robin Ameen midway in the first quarter for a 22-yard score, then capped a 56-yard drive himself with a one-yard run in building a 13-0 Middies' lead.

The Navy defense got a touchdown when linebacker Randy Hutcherson blocked a Virginia punt on the first play of the second quarter and linebacker Tom Gardner pounced on the ball in the end zone.

Huskers Humming: Rout Oregon, 61-7

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Crafty Dave Humm threw two touchdown passes and ran for another score to lead Nebraska's seventh-ranked Cornhuskers to a 61-7 victory over Oregon Saturday in the season opener for both teams.

The Huskers scored the first four times they had the ball as Oregon was unable to cope with Humm's hot passing and the ball carrying of fullback Tony Davis and I-back John O'Leary.

Oregon's lone score came with 3:46 remaining in the game as quarterback Norval Turner scored on a three-yard run to cap an eight-play drive that began on the Ducks' 22.

Wingback Don Westbrook put the Huskers on the scoreboard for the first time, tallying on a 22-yard reverse and then Humm took to the air, hitting Westbrook with a 34-yard scoring pass five minutes later.

Humm then connected with tight end Larry Mushinskie with a 36-yard scoring toss and it gave the Cornhusker quarterback 32 career touchdowns, tying the school record set by Jerry Tagge.

Next, Nebraska's vaunted "blackshirt" defense went to work on the Ducks, as they pushed Oregon from its own 23 back to the nine-yard line in three plays.

Tackle Ron Pruitt jarred the ball from running back Rick Kane and middle guard John Lee pounced on the ball in the end zone for a safety.

The Huskers took the ensuing kickoff and mounted a 12-play drive from their own 16-yard line that climaxed with Humm scoring on a quarterback sneak.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Quarterback Fred Fisher directed two long touchdown drives and halfback Lonnie Sadler scored on a 59-yard run Saturday to lead Vanderbilt to a 28-6 victory over frustrated Chattanooga.

Pepper's Wishbone chokes S. Carolina

ATLANTA (AP)—Elusive Danny Myers scored three touchdowns and raced for more than 100 yards in guiding Georgia Tech's Wishbone offense to a 35-20 victory over South Carolina Saturday night.

Myers, a junior who played defensive back a year ago, scored on a pair of one-yard plunges and a 33-yard scamper in helping Tech coach Pepper Rodgers to his initial victory at his alma mater.

Tech is now 1-1 after losing its opener to Notre Dame Monday. Sophomore David Sims was Tech's leading ground gainer, barreling for 126 yards while Myers finished with 107. Sims added a two-yard touchdown run while Pat Moriarty scored on a seven-yard run for the Yellow Jackets.

Tulane wins

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Place kicker David Falgoust kicked a nine-yard field goal with 15 seconds remaining to give Tulane a 17-16 victory over Southwestern Louisiana Saturday night.

Falgoust's desperation field goal was overshadowed by slender sophomore place kicker Rafael Septien of USL, who booted field goals of 50, 49 and 33 yards.

Look ragged in beating Baylor, 28-11

Sooners: Stuttering start

Combined News Services

NORMAN, Okla. — Barry Switzer found a silver lining Saturday in his No. 1-ranked Oklahoma Sooners' mistake-filled 28-11 victory over out-manned but fired-up Baylor.

"Actually, I think our performance today will help us down the road more than a big win would have," Switzer said after a rubbery-legged Joe Washington led the Sooners to 21-point fourth-period outburst to seal the victory.

'Really," Switzer jested, "that was our game plan—to make all our mistakes of the season today and get them over with."

Switzer was not happy with four lost fumbles and 62 yards in penalties which halted several Sooner scoring opportunities. But he was delighted with the spectacular performance of Washington.

Washington picked up where he left off last year as the Big Eight's leading rusher by bouncing off tacklers for 156 yards in 17 carries, an average of more than nine yards per try.

"Joe Washington showed he's one of the best, if not the best, who has ever played here," Switzer said of the Port Arthur, Tex. speedster who had a 65-yard punt return for an apparent touchdown nullified by a clipping penalty. He also nearly went all the way on a 49-yard dash before finally scoring on a nine-yard romp in the final period.

Washington had a career-high rushing total but he said he "didn't perform as well as usual. The blocking was so good and that was the reason for the big yardage output."

Baylor was a four-touchdown underdog but trailed only 7-5 at the end of the third period.

But the Sooners stopped fumbling the ball and put the game away with three quick touchdowns in the final period, one on Washington's nine-yard burst.

Halfback Grant Burget raced 28 yards to score on the Sooners' first possession, quarterback Steve Davis plunged over from the one on the first play of the fourth quarter, and split end Tinker Owens wrapped it up with a seven-yard dash on an end-around.

Baylor scored its only touchdown on a three-yard pass from Neal Jeffrey to tailback Steve Beaird late in the last quarter. The Bears picked up two points on a safety after Oklahoma cornerback Tony Peters fumbled an intereception in the end zone and got a 39-yard field goal from David Hicks.

Rocky Mountain high for Ram-Bronco clash

By RICH ROBERTS
Staff Writer

DENVER — John Ralston says, "We should be undefeated and win the Super Bowl."

Chuck Knox says, "I've never talked about that, not one time."

He won't even mention the words "Super Bowl."

But if Knox's Rams aren't in New Orleans in January and Ralston's Brouncos are, most of the nation's (ahom) experts will be exposed as frauds.

It's a clash of contrasting coaching philosophies as well as good football teams in Mile High Stadium today. The Rams are favored by eight points in what could be the first step to Super Bowl IX for either club—or both.

"Heck," Ralston profanes, "we should have been there two years ago. We're behind schedule."

It's as clear as Colorado air that Ralston has the city and the Broncos on a Rocky Mountain high. As he sold successive Rose Bowl victories to underdog Stanford teams in 1971 and '72, he has sold the city a $25 million bond issues and his players the Super Bowl.

"We've got our team all together," says Floyd Little, the Broncos' Pro Bowl running back. "We stayed out on strike as a unit and we are in camp as a unit. We do everything together, including making plans for the Super Bowl together."

The bond issue that passed narrowly five days ago was for another expansion of the stadium, this time from 51,706 to 75,000 in 1976. Earlier this week only a few scattered seats remained for the Dec. 8 game with the Houston Oilers, hardly the premier attraction of the league. So the Broncos are assured of their fifth sellout season in a row, meaning that all home games will be on local TV.

A cold front carrying snow flurries passed through in mid-week, but forecasts were for temperatures in the 70s today.

The one sobering note was the death early Friday of Knox's mother, who had suffered a stroke during training camp. Instead of returning to Los Angeles with the team after the game, the coach will fly to Pittsburgh for the funeral.

For the weekend, then, he devoted his attention to the game.

"I know Denver is going to be an emotionally charged, fired-up football team," Knox says. "We'll have to play the best game we've played so far to win."

He hopes the point gets across to his players. It would be easy to take the Broncos lightly, considering that it took them 14 years to produce their first winning season — 7-5-2 last year, missing a playoff berth only because of a 21-17 lose to Oakland on the final Sunday.

ROBERTS' ROUSER
Rams 17, Denver 13

Beyond that, the Broncos haven't lost a home opener since 1968 and did upset Tommy Prothro's Rams, 16-10, in the Coliseum two years ago.

Knox's special assistant, Jack Faulkner, American Football League coach of the year for a 7-7 record in 1962, followed his old club through the entire preseason and the more he saw, the more he was impressed.

A 4-2 pre-season (the Rams were 5-1) included wins over Minnesota, San Francisco, Green Bay and. New England between losses to the New York Jets and Atlanta, although it should be noted that the loss to the Jets and the win over the Viking were played with rookies and free agents. No Bronco crossed the strike lines.

But it was a costly preseason, Two of Denver's '74 Pro Bowlers, wide receiver Haven Moses and defensive tackle Paul Smith, sustained injuries that left their participation doubtful today.

Also, running back Bob Anderson broke an ankle last week after the Broncos had traded Joe Dawkins.

So alongside Little, Ralston will start Jon Keyworth, a rookie out of Colorado U. who was drafted sixth by Washington, acquired in a trade, then led the Broncos' in pre-season rushing with 332 yards, averaging 5.2.

The Denver offense is directed by quarterback Charley Johnson, a 14-year pro who threw touchdowns to all-pro tight end Riley Odons and wide receiver Billy Van Heusen to build a 14-3 lead over Atlanta last week, then, while knocked slightly silly he threw an interception that the Falcons' Tom Hayes returned 62 yards for a 20-14 win.

Johnson, Odons and Moses gave the Broncos the best passing game in the American Conference last season, but the club also was last in pass defense.

This is where John Hadl will test Denver, probably trying to shake Harold Jackson loose on 5-7 cornerback Calvin Jones, the second-year pro from the University of Washington who once planned, to transfer to Long Beach State.

Among the Rams, all-pro outside linebacker Isiah Robertson, all-rookie cornerback Eddie McMillan and backup running back Cullen Bryant have nagging injuries but all are expected to play, with the possible exception of McMillan, who would be replaced by Al Clark. Backup defensive tackle Bill Nelson has a broken foot.

Of more concern is the lack of spark shown in pre-season by Lawrence McCutcheon, who averaged 5.2 yards while rushing to 1,097 last season but was down to 3.5 this summer.

But McCutcheon played his college ball at Colorado State in nearby Fort Collins, so the mile-high air might provide the needed rejuvenation.

The Rams may need some of that Rocky Mountain high themselves.

Gonzales and Sedgman win

Pancho Gonzales posted a 6-4, 6-4 win over Hugh Stewart and Frank Sedgman defeated Tom Brown 6-4, 6-3 Saturday in opening round matches of the $15,000 Grand Masters tennis tournament, a prelude to the 48th Pacific Southwest Open.

In other first-round action between players 45 years and over, Pancho Segura trimmed Vic Seixas 6-2, 6-3 and Torben Ulrich was a 6-4, 7-6 winner over Sven Davidson.

The Grand Masters will continue today and Monday.

'HAMMER' IS AXED BY ABC

Fred (The Hammer) Williamson, confirming that he has been fired as a commentator on ABC Monday night National Football League telecasts, shrugged off the action Saturday and said, "I was just passing through."

The former defensive backfield star said the first he heard of his firing was on the news Friday night.

Williamsonconfirmed reports from industry sources that he will no longer join commentators Howard Cosell and Frank Gifford on the Monday night series. He said he was notified about being dropped from his spot as commentator "the typical way ABC has been doing it for the last couple of years—rumor."

"I had been complaining about what was happening in the booth. They (ABC) said they knew of my discontent and that I was busy with other areas of my career," Williamson said.

He said there had been disagreements between himself and Howard Cosell—"their (ABC's) verbal god." However, he declined to give details of the disagreements.

GAME OF THE WEEK
Atlanta 17, Dallas 13

This may be an autopsy-turvy year in the National Football League...a year for strange happenings, such as Atlanta whippping Dallas.

There are many signals that the problem-plagued Cowboys are beginning a recession.

Dallas won the last game between the pair, 13-0 in 1970, and holds a 4-0 series lead. This afternoon, change that to 4-1.

On with the forecast!

Redbirds nesting in first

Combined News Services

Bake McBride banged out four hits, stole three bases and drove in a run Saturday as the St. Louis Cardinals thrashed the Philadelphia Phillies, 9-2, and jumped into first place in the National League East.

The Cardinal victory, coupled with Pittsburgh's 17-2 pratfall at Montreal, enabled the Redbirds to take command by one-half game.

McBride's single ignited a four-run outburst by St. Louis in the second inning. After two walks loaded the bases, Lou Brock singled in a pair of runs and scored himself when centerfielder Bill Robinson let the ball skip behind him for a three-base error. Brock also stole his 107th base.

Larry Lintz drove in four runs while Mike Jorgensen and Barry Foote chased home three apiece to pace the Expo rout, their sixth successive victory. Pittsburgh pitchers also doled out 13 walks.

Dusty Baker singled in the tie-breaking run and Dave Johnson's single delivered two more as Atlanta scored four times in the eighth inning to pound San Diego, 7-3. Hank Aaron hammered his 18th homer of the year and the 731st of his career for the Braves.

Both divisional races heated up in the American League, too.

Former Angel Bob Oliver and Brooks Robinson drove in two runs apiece as the Baltimore Orioles ripped Cleveland, 7-1, and moved to within one and one-half games of the New York Yankees in the East. The Orioles also posted an 8-6 victory over the Indians in the completion of a game suspended by curfew Friday night.

Tommy Davis homered in each game for Baltimore.

The Yanks, aided by four homers, outslugged the Detroit Tigers, 10-7. Bobby Murcer, Elliott Maddox, Lou Piniella and Graig Nettles hit home runs for New York. Al Kaline had three hits for the Tigers — including his 12th homer — leaving him nine hits shy of the 3,000 plateau.

Boston fell 2½ games behind when Billy Champion fired a two-hitter and helped the Milwaukee Brewers to a 3-1 victory. It was only Champion's second complete game of the season.

The Texas Rangers moved to within four games of Oakland in the West when they battered the A's 8-3 behind Jackie Brown's seven-hitter. It was the fifth win for the Rangers in their last six meetings with Oakland.

Burroughs bows in HR contest

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI)—Oakland A's outfielder Reggie Jackson defeated Texas Ranger Jeff Burroughs in a home run hitting contest honoring Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves prior to Saturday night's A's-Rangers game.

Jackson hit five home runs — two in sudden death overtime — to Burroughs' four.

Stanford coach irate after loss

Christiansen smells a rat

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI)—Coach Jack Christiansen didn't think the officiating was bad in Stanford's 24-20 loss Saturday to seventh-ranked Penn State.

"I thought it stunk," said the Cardinals' head coach.

It was a pass interference call against Stanford that enabled Penn State to save face before a national television audience. Minutes earlier, Stanford and a young quarterback playing his first varsity game nearly blew the favored Nittany Lions out of Beaver Stadium.

	Stanford	Penn State
First downs	21	19
Rushes-yards	37-87	61-226
Passing yards	301	123
Return yards	11	79
Passes	2-51-2	9-17-2
Punts	7-40	6-39
Fumbles-lost	3-2	1-1
Penalties-yards	5-52	7-54

Penn State coach Joe Paterno was a little more generous.

"The officials certainly had a lot of bang-bang calls, tough calls," Paterno said. "The interference call was legitimate, but I thought it was a tough game to officiate and that the officials did a pretty good job."

Substitute tailback Woody Petchel scored Penn State's winning touchdown on a one-yard dive with 2:19 remaining. It came on the very next play after the disputed pass interference call against Stanford.

Penn State barely extended its string of consecutive home victories to 21 games after 18th-ranked Standford scored 10 points in the closing minutes to take a 20-17 lead with 5:13 to play.

Sophomore quarterback Mike Cordova, setting two Beaver Stadium records and tying another, passed for over 300 yards and both Stanford touchdowns while Mike Langford kicked two Cardinal field goals.

In addition to Petchel's one-yard dive, following an 80-yard desperation drive, Penn State also scored on a six-yard pass from Tom Shuman to fullback Tom Donchez, a one-yard run by tailback Walt Addie and a 22-yard field goal by Chris Bahr.

Nicklaus scrambles to tie

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, once five strokes behind, scrambled back with a wildly erratic 70 and tied Johnny Miller for the third-round lead Saturday in the $300,000 World Open Golf Tourament.

Nicklaus had six birdies and five bogeys in his one-under-par effort over the difficult, demanding 7,007-yard No. 2 course at the Pinehurst Country Club.

Miller, meanwhile, blew 10 strokes higher than his fantastic round of 63 in Friday's second round. He went to a 73 and was dropped back into a share of the lead at 209, only four-under-par.

Former Masters champion Charles Coody and Australian Bruce Devlin were next at 211. Each matched par 71 in the hot, muggy weather.

The group at 212 included Bob Murphy, Gene Littler, Frank Beard and another Australian, David Graham. Murphy and Littler had 73s in the generally high scoring, Graham 74 and Beard a 75.

PGA champion Lee Trevino had a 73 and appeared to be out of contention at 214, five shots back going into Sunday's final round for the biggest prize in golf this year, $60,000.

Arnold Palmer and Gary Player failed to qualify for the final two rounds.

Veteran Tom Weiskopf, after two rounds of 72, was disqualified when it was found he had walked off the 18th green after missing a three-foot putt Friday without signing his score card. It was the second stroke of misfortune for Weiskopf in recent weeks. Earlier Friday it was revealed he had been fined $1,000 for quitting the Westchester Classic after 16 holes of the second round.

Jane Blalock leads by 2 strokes in Fort Worth

FORT WORTH (AP) — Triple winner Jane Blalock dismissed early misfortunes Saturday to fashion a par-71 and retain the lead after two rounds in the $40,000 Charity Golf Classic.

The controversial Florida shotmaker with the perky ponytail rode her 69-71—140 to a two-stroke lead over a trio of challengers at even-par 142 on the soggy 6,721-yard Woodhaven Country Club course.

That group included Sandra Spuzich, Murle Breer and defending champion Sandra Haynie.

Miss Breer's 69 was the best score of the gloomy, overcast afternoon. The playing conditions were vastly improved from the windy, chilly misty situation that greeted the tour players Friday.

Long Beach's Laura Baugh shot a 74 and was far out of it at 151.

Miss Spuzich and Miss Haynie carved out 72 and, along with Miss Breer, were a stroke in front of Sue Roberts, whose 71 left her alone at 143.

The field was trimmed to the low 60 players and ties for today's final round.

Long shots still in contention include Lenore Beserra, 72-72— 144 and a trio at 145: Judy Rankin, 70-75; JoAnn Washam 74-71 and Mary Mills 73-72.

Cherry River speeds to upset at Pomona

With a display of early speed that left many of his rivals gasping for air and a courageous finish that brought him close to the track record, Cherry River scored an upset victory in the $16,830 Governor's Cup Saturday at the L.A. county fairgrounds in Pomona.

With 41-year-old Frank Inda in the saddle, Cherry River ran the six-furlongs in 1:09 4/5, one-fifth of a second off the track record set in 1968 by the brilliant Kissin' George. Cherry River became the only other horse ever to break 1:10 on the half-mile oval.

Cherry River returned $14.40, $8.40 and $4.40 to his backers in the crowd of 19,162 after hitting the finish a half-length in front of the much-improved Billy Club, a 14-1 shot. Tragic Isle, the even-money favorite, was another two and one-quarter lengths back in third place. The attendance was 1,200 more than the opening Saturday in 1973.

When Eternal Banner, a $12,500 claimer, won the preceding race in 1:10 4/5, it was apparent that the Pomona oval was "super fast." Just how fast was even more evident as Cherry River hung up fractional times of :21 1/5, :44 2/5 and :56 3/5 in the Governor's Cup.

Cherry River, who races in the silks of trainer Douglas Oliver, has always shown brilliant speed, and it was no surprise that he led the field to the first turn.

He was under heavy pressure throughout, though, as he went around the first turn with King Of The Blues a head behind him along the rail and Little Mustard another half-length back in third.

King Of The Blues, making his first start in more than a year, was still closest to Cherry River as they neared the far turn, but Billy Club on the outside and Tragic Isle on the inside began offering their challenges.

Turning into the stretch Tragic Isle swung to the outside as Billy Club became the only serious threat to Cherry River's lead. Although closing the gap in the final furlong, Billy Club was unable to muster enough speed to catch the winner.

Champions triumph for Unser

CAMBRIDGE JUNCTION, Mich. (UPI)—Bobby Unser of Albuquerque outdueled a classy field of world Grand Prix and stock car aces Saturday to win the second International Race of Champions by a half car length over Cale Yarborough of Timmonsville, S.C.

Unser averaged 153.690 mph for the 50 laps around the two-mile oval at the Michigan International Speedway but managed to outlast Yarborough in a fierce bumper to bumper battle.

David Pearson of Spartanburg, S.C., who won the Yankee 400 race here last month, finished third with Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala., fourth. George Follmer of Arcadia was fifth.

The IROC series now moves to Riverside International Raceway.

Before the IROC event, Foyt took the pole position in qualifications for the U.S. Auto Club championship series, the Norton 250, by clocking 201.286 mph. It was the fastest USAC pole time this season.

Namath listed as 'probable'

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Jets informed the National Football League Saturday that quarterback Joe Namath is suffering from a stiff right knee and is only a probable starter for today's opening game against Kansas City.

Namath's knee is swollen and quite stiff, a spokesman for the team said.

Big Spruce wins Marlboro Cup

NEW YORK (UPI) — Big Spruce, a specialist in winning the big ones, charged to the front along the rail in the stretch at Belmont Park Saturday to win the $250,000 Marlboro Cup by almost three lengths.

With jockey Mike Hole in the saddle, the dark bay son of Herbager laid claim to the handicap championship of the year by his stirring victory over nine of the best horses in America.

Arbees Boy was second in the second running of the mile and an eighth classic. The colt was 2 3-4 lengths behind the winner and 1 1-4 lengths ahead of third place Forego, the highweight in the field with 126 pounds.

Big Spruce, winning for only the second time in eight races this year, carried only 120 pounds. He carried it with authority and he carried it over the distance in the fast time of 1:46. 3-5, even though the track still was wet from heavy overnight rains.

A year ago in the inaugurual running, Secretariat set a world record of 1:45 2-5 in winning the race.

Big Spruce, owned by Elmendorf Farm, picked up a winner's purse of $150,000 to raise his earnings for the year to $288,020. His lifetime bankroll now stands at $607,972.

Big Spruce was well played by the crowd of 49,179 and paid $12.80, $6.60 and $4.80 across the board. He scored his previous victory this year in the Governor Handicap two weeks ago, earning an invitation to run in the Marlboro.

Arbees Boy paid $7.20 and $4.40 while Forego returned $4.00.

Prince Dantan finished fourth, followed by True Knight, Holding Pattern, Prove Out, Tri Jet, Plunk and Infuriator. Hatchet Man was scratched because the track was sloppy.

Milk Bowl kicks off prep football season

The PTA-ponsored Milk Bowl Game kicks off the Long Beach high school football season for the 27th year in a row Wednesday night at Veterans Stadium.

Five 12-minute games involving Jordan, Lakewood, Millikan, Poly and Wilson enable each school to play twice.

First kickoff is at 7 matching Poly and Lakewood followed by Wilson vs. Millikan, Jordan vs. Poly, Lakewood vs. Wilson and Millikan vs. Jordan.

Each school will be allowed only two time outs per quarter with a five-minute break between games. Opening ceremonies,featuring the five marching bands, drill teams and pep groups, begin at 6:45.

After three years of playing on Saturday, the game returns to a mid-week date for the first time since 1970 when a record crowd of 18,391 turned out.

This year's game comes just two nights prior to the beginning of the regular season.

Money raised from the game provides needy school-age children in the district with adequate food, clothing and required medical and dental care.

"No other fund-raising event helps so many children in Long Beach as the Milk Bowl does each year," says Mrs. Reed Williams, president of the Long Beach Council of parents and teachers.

Tickets priced at $2 (adults) and $1 children) go on sale at all LBUSD schools Monday.

AMERICA'S CUP YACHTS STYMIED AGAIN

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)— The third race of the America's Cup international yachting series was abandoned for the second day in a row Saturday, this time because of a curfew.

The American defender Courageous was far in the lead over Southern Cross, the Australian challenger, when the 5:40 p.m. shutdown time came with the two yachts still well out in the course.

Rules of the New York Yacht Club, which govern the series for yachting's ultimate prize, require that each race be concluded within 5½ hours after it has started.

Minutes after the time limit expired, the two yachts were asked if they would be ready to race again today.

The crew of Courageous promptly signaled that they would be ready. Southern Cross replied, "No," thus requesting the first "lay day" of the series. Each crew is allowed two such "lay days."

That means the third race will be held Monday, unless either crew asks for another "lay day" or in case of bad weather.

Saturday's race, over a 24.3-mile course seven miles outside . Newport Harbor had started with far better conditions prevailing than was the case Friday, when fog forced a postponement before the signal gun had sounded.

But midway up the first leg, a starting wind of 12 knots out of the northwest suddenly shifted to the southwest—a turnaround of almost 100 degrees—and then abruptly dropped to almost nil.

It required Courageous, winner of the first two outings by impressive margins, almost one hour and 40 minutes to complete the first leg, normally a less than 45-minute ride for the American boat.

Conditions became successively worse as the two 12-meter sloops beat around in the ocean trying to find enough movable air to keep in motion.

Courageous, which led by a monumental three minutes at the first marker, lost a bit of it during a "drifting" second leg, but added some additional comfort in the second and third legs.

She was floating around more than 12 minutes in front when time ran out.

Bullfights close out season today

Manolo Martinez and Eloy Cavazos are the headline toreros today for the last scheduled corrida of the season at Tijuana's downtown arena, 4 p.m.

The Monterrey bullfighters have been the stars of current Tijuana season, Martinez believed by many to be the No. 1 torero. Cavazos, who stands only 5-feet-2, has been outstanding with the sword.

Robert Stack's back as star of new movie for TV

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

There are times — though perhaps not too often — when Robert Stack wonders why he ever went into acting.

"When you're middle-aged like I am — or whatever age I'm considered — you figure it's time you had a plaque or a sign outside your door, like a doctor," the famous actor said. "People should be coming to you — for your services. You shouldn't have to go to them."

Added Stack: "You don't know how it feels to have your agent phone you and say you're being considered for a role." The emphasis was on "considered."

"But don't get me wrong — I like acting," Bob went on. "And I've got to admit it beats driving a truck or doing a lot of other things."

STACK STARRED for four years in one of the best known series in television history, "The Untouchables," and won an Emmy for his performance as federal crimebuster Eliot Ness in the violent Roaring Twenties in Chicago. A few years earlier, he had received an Oscar nomination as best supporting actor in the role of a psychotic young man in the 1956 movie "Written on the Wind," one of dozens he has been in.

His movie career got under way before World War II, and he was one of the first film stars to get into television. In his latest series, from 1968 to 1971, Bob starred with Gene Barry and Tony Franciosa in rotating segments of NBC's "The Name of the Game," which pioneered the 90-minute drama series concept on the tube. His role was that of Dan Farrell, ex-FBI agent turned crime magazine editor.

But to many TV viewers around the globe, Stack will always be Eliot Ness of "The Untouchables," which aired on ABC from 1959 to 1963 and is still being shown in syndication.

"AN ACTOR'S LIFE is just one big gamble after another," Stack told me as we discussed his career at lunch recently in the Polo Lounge at the Beverly Hills Hotel. "You're always having to make a decision on taking a particular role or not. And, of course, you don't always make the right decision.

"I was offered the starring role in both 'Mannix' and 'Hawaii Five-0,' which are still going strong.

"On the other hand, I wasn't the first choice as Eliot Ness — I was only the third choice. Van Heflin and Van Johnson were the first two choices."

Bob would not rule out a new TV series if the right role comes along, and he gets many feelers. Doing a series today wouldn't be anything near the grind "The Untouchables" was; in those days they turned out 30 episodes a year.

HE'LL BE SEEN soon — on Tuesday night, Sept. 24 — in an "NBC World Premiere Movie" titled "The Strange and Deadly Occurrence."

It's a mystery-thriller with Stack as the star and Vera Miles, L. Q. Jones, Herb Edelman, Dena Dietrich and Margaret Willock co-starring. Bob plays an ordinary guy, the head of a family, who moves with his wife (Miss Miles) and daughter (Miss Willock) into a house in a remote area. Soon, strange and inexplicable things begin to happen to terrify the family.

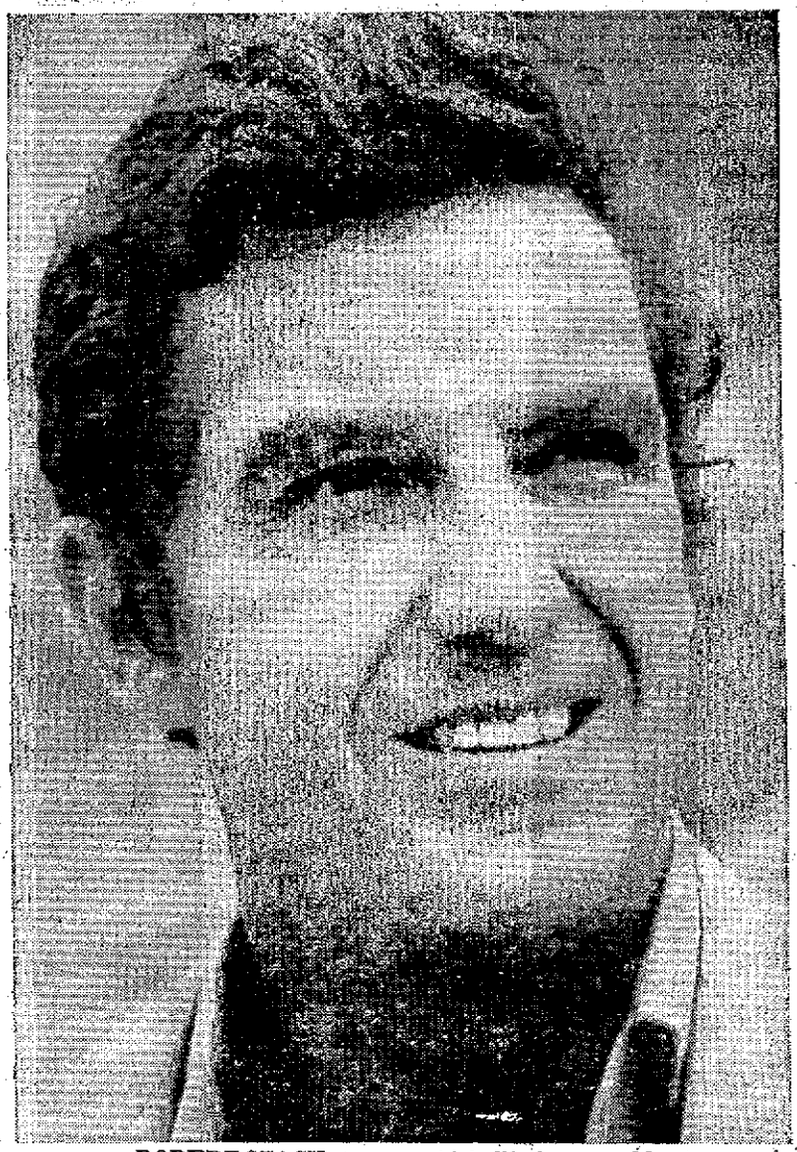

There's an atmosphere of the supernatural to the film, but I couldn't tell you how it comes out if I wanted to. Bob said there were two different endings considered and that he hadn't seen the final version himself and isn't sure how it comes out.

I trust he'll watch it on TV to find out.

BOB'S FAVORITE movie role, he told me on questioning, was the one for which he gained an Academy Award nomination in "Written on the Wind," with Oscar-winning Dorothy Malone (he lost out to Anthony Quinn in "Lust for Life").

His other movies for the theater have included "The Bullfighter and the Lady," "The High and the Mighty," "Fighter Squadron," "Bwana Devil," "Mr. Music," "Miss Tatlock's Millions," "Good Morning Miss Dove," "John Paul Jones," "Last Voyage" and "The Caretakers."

In his first film, titled "First Love," Bob got to kiss Deanna Durbin, and he recalls that, in those days, "they put a stopwatch on you — you couldn't kiss for more than three seconds." After his screen career was interrupted by four years of service in the Navy in World War II, he played in "A Date With Judy" with Elizabeth Taylor and Jane Powell.

ROBERT STACK . . . an actor's life is a gamble

"If you look real fast, you can see me with Elizabeth in a scene from that movie in "That's Entertainment," the actor pointed out.

Another of his early films was "To Be or Not to Be," in which Carole Lombard starred. "She had been my first 'ideal woman' as a boy," Stack recalled. "She lived at my mother's Tahoe home while she was getting a divorce from William Powell. I was 12 at the time, and she treated me like a man — that is, she talked to me like a man."

A fifth-generation Californian from a prominent Los Angeles family, Bob grew up knowing Hollywood notables. Mack Sennett bounced him on his knee as a tot and Will Rogers was a close friend of Bob's father. Through his skeet shooting — he was a national champion at 16 — Stack got to know Clark Gable and Gary Cooper well.

In 1956, Stack, who for years was known as one of Hollywood's most eligible bachelors, married actress Rosemarie Bowe; he was 36 and she was 23. They reside in Bel Air and have a teenage son and a teen-age daughter. This past summer, Bob and Rosemarie performed together on the stage back East in the comedy "6 Rms Riv Vu."

Mrs. Stack is an avid tennis player and Bob also plays (they have a court), but he is even more of a golfer; just recently, he played an exhibition match with Arnold Palmer, astronaut Eugene Cernan and a Texas pro in Houston.

After Stack and I left the Beverly Hills Hotel and he was heading for his car he ran across Zsa Zsa Gabor, who was just arriving. They hugged and kissed each other, in the manner of entertainers.

All I can say is, he didn't look a bit untouchable.

Lucy can't stay idle, does a special

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press International

Lucille Ball was just another tenant now at the studio she once owned and she was working without her alter ego, the wacky redhead who made her a star — Lucy.

The irrepressible Miss Ball gave no sign of sentiment.

She was back on Stage 19 in Hollywood where she starred in the "Lucy" shows for more years than she cares to count. Only it's Paramount Studios now, formerly Desilu. And it's Lucille Ball, actress, when the name on the door once read Lucille Ball, president.

"When I came back here some people thought I was going to buy the studio again," Lucille said. "No way. But it was fun being the owner for 12 years."

SHE WAS sitting in her yellow and green portable dressing room which she has rolled along to Universal Studios — where the "Lucy" show was filmed for three years — and to Warner Bros. for two years where she starred in the movie version of "Mame."

Now Lucille is starring in her first hour-long special under her new contract with CBS-TV, "Happy Anniversary and Goodbye."

It's really a short movie co-starring Art Carney, Nanette Fabray and Peter Marshall. Lucille will be playing a matron fed up with her marriage. There won't be a trace of zany Lucy in her performance.

FOR THE PAST six months Lucille hasn't faced a camera, what with the completion of "Mame" and demise of her weekly show. Inactivity has given her the jumps and fidgets.

"After three weeks I got edgy," she said. "This is the first real vacation I've taken in 20 years and I didn't like it. How can you take a vacation from a vacation? I needed to get back to work.

"I learned to play backgammon and became a fiend at it. I read a million books. Then I moved away from Universal, cut back my production staff and disposed of 20 years of wardrobe.

"CUTTING OFF some people who had worked with me for 20 years was agony. Then I went on a house-cleaning and gardening binge. I cleaned every nook and cranny and pruned every shrub on the property.

"For six weeks I almost killed myself physically. Thank God this good script came along. I've never wanted to work so badly in my life.

"There will be no such thing as retirement for me. I couldn't stand it. I have to keep busy no matter what, even if it meant opening an employment office.

"This is the first non-Lucy show I've done on television since Bob Hope and I did 'His and Hers' more than a dozen years ago.

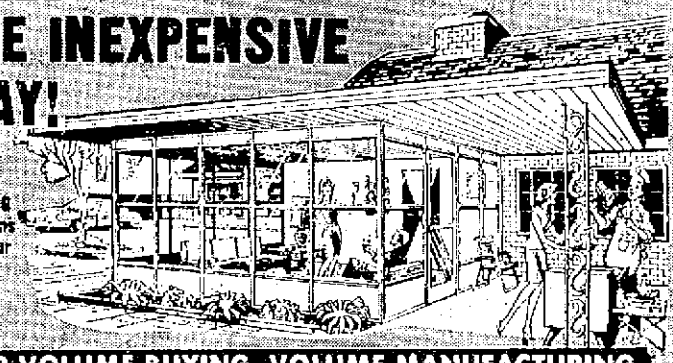

"THERE wasn't a trace of Lucy in 'Mame' and there won't be a sign of her in this special. The real trauma in getting back to work is not having Gale Gordon (her cranky co-star) with me. This is the first season in years without him and I really feel the loss."

LUCILLE BALL

With or without Lucy, Gale Gordon or anyone else, Lucille Ball is indestructible, as home viewers will see for themselves Nov. 19 when her special is aired.

Andy Williams would like to do new variety series

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Andy Williams has this weird idea. He'd like to return to the grind of a weekly variety show on TV, probably do it in New York, do it live and not sing as much as he did during his old series on NBC.

The Iowa-born singer, lean and tanned at 43, discussed all this heresy while in Fun City to do an NBC special — it aired Sept. 7 — which the network says is a pilot for a possible midseason series.

Williams, who got into the singing business at an early age with brothers Bob, Dick and Don, had his own weekly music show on NBC from 1962 to 1967, but since then has gone the NBC specials route.

WHY GO BACK to the old grind?

"Well," he grinned, "I think it'd be interesting to do it and I'd just like to try it. I don't think it'd be as hard as doing the old series where I had to rehearse all week."

Williams, still as casual and relaxed as a yawn, said the series he has in mind wouldn't resemble his old show. For one thing, it wouldn't have a staff of singers and dancers — "we'd hire 'em as we need 'em."

It should be as up-to-the-minute as possible — which is why he says he'd rather do it live instead of taping it several weeks in advance — in both song material, guest artists and comedy.

ANDY WILLIAMS

"I'D LIKE to have the number one recording act of the week on and the comedy — I don't mean standup comedy, old routines — should be about what's happening in the newspapers that week, or the day before or even the day of the show," he said.

"I think that if it works out the way I'd like it to, and if we had the money to do it, I'd like to cut away during the show to different places.

"I'd like it if the NBC News department could possibly help us. If, say, the Rolling Stones were on tour in Cleveland and if we got permission to shoot a little of their concert, I'd like to get the NBC affiliate in there with a hand-held camera for the show.

"The whole idea of it is to catch the things people are talking about, and all of it should be new."

DOING THE show live would be more of a hassle, he conceded, "but the immediacy of the thing would be more important than the fact it might not be as slick or smooth as it would be on tape."

Williams, who said he'd continue singing, but not as much as he did on his former series, said the new show "would be a combination of shows.

"It should have the quality of 'That Was the Week That Was,' talking about things that are in the news, what's happening today, and maybe a little bit like the old Jackie Gleason show, in that you do it in a big theater with a live audience."

Williams lives in Beverly Hills, but said he'd probably do the show here even though he used to think, "Why come to New York when you can do it in Los Angeles?"

The singer, who held forth in a suite that overlooked the summer greenery of Central Park, said he didn't know when or if he'd get word from NBC to crank up a midseason series.

4 The Wells Report

6 Glad You Asked That!

8 Ancient Medical Practices
Some 800 to 1,500 years ago Peruvians were doing successful cranial surgery. And some of the results of their trephinations and other procedures are on display in San Diego's Museum of Man in an exhibit called "Mummies, Mayhem and Miseries."

12 Rancho Los Cerritos and the Legend of Uncle Mike
Ghosts are coming alive through Long Beach Public Library's oral history collection, which is creating programs to teach Long Beach area youngsters legends of the past. The story of Rancho Los Cerritos is one of them.

24 Telly Savalas
His ego is as apparent as his shiny dome, but actually Savalas doesn't have a lot to be modest about.

28 The Grading Game
It's A's, B's and F's vs. the written analyses in the constant report card controversy. Would you rather have Junior get a D or hear that he is "not living up to his potential?"

You wouldn't expect our 13.99 slingback to have an elasticized front.

But you'd feel the difference if it didn't.

And you'd feel the difference if it didn't have an adjustable backstrap, either. So it does. And with no sacrifice to fashion. Our slingback is styled in soft leather-look urethane, with many built-in comforts for one reason: we don't want you to feel you're missing anything. And it's all here for just 13.99. In tan, black, grey, navy and red.

Wells Report

Autumn thunder

Now you have reached September, and the days grow short; you can see it. You rise in darkness, and as you drive to work the blood-red sun pulls itself over Saddleback Mountain. Look to the east; the sky is red and gold. It is an omen. It is an omen.

Now come the three months, the thunder of autumn, when the forces of Good will contend with the forces of Evil. Well, maybe not Evil, but at least the forces of Not-so-Good. It is a time when heroes and giants walk the earth.

The forces of Good, of course, can be recognized by their colors — cardinal and gold. Those against whom they contend — Them — can also be recognized by their colors — blue and gold, red and white, green and gold, brown and gold.

It is college football season.

There is no more important time in the year for those of us who believe. These are the months when history will be decided, when the year will be written into the record for better or for worse.

Pick a year — 1939, say. What happened in 1939? Germany invaded Poland and started World War II? Well, yeah, I guess that did happen, too, but that's not what was important.

What was important about 1939 was that a fourth-string quarterback name o' Doyle Nave (I don't know the spelling and 300,000 true believers will correct me) came off the USC bench in the waning minutes of the Rose Bowl game and passed the Trojans to victory over a tough Duke team.

Never in the history of the world have so many owed so much to so few.

What happened in the fall of 1963? Kennedy was assassinated? No, USC's football team — national champions the year before and hoping to repeat — was upset in the Coliseum on a hot, smoggy day by Oklahoma. It took strength of character not to go out and fall on our Trojan sword. Unless you were from Oklahoma U and who would admit that?

There is no explaining the virus that at this time of year affects the Trojan football fan, or for that matter the Bruin fan or Stanford Cardinal fan. It is caught early in life and never cured.

General election time comes in the middle of football season but it is an even bet whether the college football fan can tell you who is running. He can, however, tell you the complete lineups of his college's offensive and defensive first and second teams.

As a Trojan fan I make no apology for this. Everyone, I think, ought to have something about which he cares passionately, but which in the saner recesses of his mind he knows matters only to those who share his belief.

"The UCLA-USC football game is not a matter of life and death," Bruin coach Tommy Prothro once declared, "It is more important than that."

I never agree with a UCLA opinion, but in this case I'll make an exception.

The college football fan is not to be confused with the pro football fan. The latter is not a true believer. He is just a guy, who given an alternative to old movies on television will watch the alternative. He has no commitment, no perception of grace, courage and heroism. He only perceives Howard Cosell. If the Rams aren't on the tube, he'll watch roller derby.

The college fan will watch his team on TV, but only if they are playing away from home. The true triumph or tragedy will emerge, he knows, only on the torn turf of the arena in the shadows of late Saturday afternoon, or in the bright blaze of floodlights on a chilly fall evening.

Watch your team on TV? You might as well stay home and watch church services on Sunday.

It is a fact that few women share the mystique of college football. The pulse rate of wives is seldom affected by the stirring strains of a fight song. The entry of their team onto the field from the locker room does not bring them to their feet. They cannot distinguish down linemen from upfield pass interference.

College football makes wives uneasy. They could understand their husbands comparing the talents of the girls at the office, but not the talents of wide receivers. They feel there must be something unhealthy about paying that much attention to young men who seem to spend a great deal of time slapping each other on the fanny.

Tough. Tough for the wives, that is. We true believers do not expect to be understood. Nor do we have time to explain when it is our team's ball, third down and seven. Let's see, what is our average on third down conversions?

I have wasted my youth and my age on Trojan football, and I will continue to do so as long as I can get to the stadium. I might have been a brain surgeon, a famed lawyer on the defense staff of Richard Nixon, or even the owner of a profitable beer distributorship, but I spent my Saturdays watching the likes of Jon Arnett, Mike Garrett, O.J. Simpson and Pat Haden.

It has been a splendid life. I think it was O.J. Simpson who said, "Once a Trojan, always a Trojan."

Right on, O.J.

Q: Our favorite TV character of all time, Phil Silvers (Sgt. Bilko) looks like the perennial bachelor. Yet I hear he has five daughters. Is this so? Also, in his memoirs, The Laugh Is on Me, does he tell about the feud he had with his best friend, Sinatra? — The Sanders Family, Long Beach, Cal.

A: Phil does reveal how his longtime friendship with Frank came to a sudden halt when Sgt. Bilko was slotted opposite the Sinatra TV show — and stole the ratings. "For 16 years," Phil writes sadly, "I didn't hear from him. As though I had personally arranged the network's time to challenge him." The two men resumed their friendship when Phil was stricken with a stroke and lay, between life and death, in the intensive care unit of St. Clare's Hospital in New York. Phil Silvers does have five daughters, mothered by his second wife, Evelyn Patrick.

Q: Why, in the ads for Buddy Hackett's personal appearance at the Westbury Music Fair did a line of small type say: "No one under the age of 17 admitted?" Doesn't Buddy like to entertain young people? — Pearl Corday, Queens, N.Y.

A: Of course he does — Hackett's always been a buddy to young people. Trouble is some of the rotund raconteur's ribald routines are X-rated — and the showmen who operate the attraction are wise enough not to alienate the family trade.

Q: I think the magic tricks in Henny Youngman's Bar Bets, Bar Jokes and Bar Tricks book are very easy and amusing. About the jokes, which did you think was the funniest? — Mitch Cummins, Baltimore.

A: The one about the delicatessen store owner whose annual return was being examined. "It's not your $6,000 income we challenge," the IRS agent explained. "It's the expenses you deducted for six trips to Israel you made last year." "Oh, that," was the ready response, "I forgot to tell you — we also deliver!"

Q: Is it true that Winston Churchill and Charlie Chaplin had the same middle name? — Mrs. T. Greer, Tulsa, Okla.

A: Yes. Spencer.

Q: Will Gone With the Wind still play theaters after NBC-TV shows it in 1976? — Mrs. Mabel E. Burns, Little Rock, Ark.

A: Definitely. The single network showing will inspire a fresh box-office bonanza for years to come. Leaving no doubt that the cinematic classic will never run out of wind.

Ancient medical practices— the mummies tell the story

By JOANNE NORRIS

It sits there, neatly bandaged, the bandage held in place by several lengths of brown cord. The dark hair is arranged underneath with an all but invisible hairnet to keep the wisps from straying.

The bandaging is expertly done. A piece of cotton is symetrically arranged to cover the top of the head. The pale cloth is stained by what appears to be dried blood. The cord forms a Juliet-style cap.

From beneath the bandage, empty eye sockets peer at the visitor.

The bandaged item is a skull.

Not too remarkable, you say, — except the dressing was placed there 1,500 years ago!

The cotton bandage is still almost white and it's made of material not unlike that used for dressings today. The cord is unfrayed. And if the flesh were in tact, you could imagine it was done by a modern medicine man who'd temporarily run out of adhesive tape, instead of by a Peruvian physician of long ago.

The skull, believed to be the earliest evidence of bandaging in the New World, plus accompanying spines, legs, arms and jawbones and mummies are part of a new exhibit at San Diego's Museum of Man. Colorfully dubbed "Mummies, Mayhem and Miseries," the display of man's remains shows results of diseases and medical treatments, dating back 800 to 1,500 years. Most of the items are from Peru and other parts of South America, beautifully preserved by the bone-dry climate and carefully collected about 1913 by famed physical anthropologist Dr. Alex Hrdlicka. Hrdlicka presented them at the Panama- California Exposition, the raison d'etre for San Diego's Balboa Park, which includes the museum among its attractions.

Joanne Norris is associate editor of Southland Sunday.

The exhibit of 85 articles was previewed for 10 days in August, then gave way to another now. Now it's back on display, arranged from Dr. Hrdlicka's collection by Neil Marshall, a graduate student in zoology at San Diego State College.

It took Marshall about two months to sort through the collection which was mothballed during World War II when it was thought for a time the museum would be needed as a hospital. It was not, but the exhibit stayed tucked away in a nearby garage for 30 years.

Now it's nicely set off by appropriate cultural artifacts and fabrics. Textiles used in the Peruvian mummification process are displayed with the types of mummies they encased. Bowls and instruments used in the popular surgical procedure called trephination, the opening of the skull, also are on hand.

Pervuian mummies are different from their better-known Egyptian counterparts, and young visitors to the exhibit sometimes register surprise. "Where is the mummy, Mummy?" one preschooler actually inquired.

The mummies are there all right, but they are not the cotton-swathed figures youngsters expected.

Whereas the Egyptians used tannin, salts, pitch and asphalt derivatives to preserve their dead, then wrapped them in strips of cotton, the Peruvians depended on a simple drying-out process, brought about by their unusual climate. They used large pieces of material instead of strips after the bodies had been eviscerated. The Incas displayed their mummies in their raiment on ceremonial occasions although other coastal Peruvians buried their dead instead of trying to preserve the remains.

The exhibit includes well-preserved mummies of a young adult female and several children, their legs drawn up in the embryonic posture customary for burial. They came from Lupo, near Huarochiri, Peru, and date from 800 to 1,300 A.D.

Most of the skulls on display are characterized by holes in the head. Some were the result of hand-to-hand combat and others were made quite deliberately in the trephination procedure, an operation practiced on every continent except Australia for at least 40,000 years and probably longer.

No one knows why trephination became so popular, but it was done for a variety of reasons. Pain, swelling, numbness and other discomfort in the head probably led early practitioners to attempt to open the skull to relieve pressure or blood clots.

Marshall said the estimated recovery rate from these procedures was about 60 per cent. And a number of skulls in the exhibit, he adds, show "healed" openings where bone has smoothed out around the cuts.

Some holes were cleanly made with bronze instruments called tumis. Others probably resulted from blows by axe, mace, blunt arrow or sling projectiles. Four types of trephination were practiced in Peru, according to Marshall. One method involved use of the wide-bladed tumi that was scraped repeatedly across the

The hole in the skull at far left, in all likelihood, was made in battle or hand-to-hand combat. It may have been done with a weapon like the small axe shown with it. The mummy of a young female has a startled look caused by the hands-to-face posture which was arranged quite deliberately. The ceramic vase in the lower right photo is an effigy of a deformity that plagued the people of the era. The condition, probably a fungal disease, caused deformations shown in both the effigy and the skull next to it.

The bandage on this Peruvian skull was put there some 1,500 years ago.

skull to make a large hole with gently sloping sides. A second technique was sawing. Four intersecting cuts were made through the cranium and a square of bone — or two — were removed. Another method was drilling holes in a concentric circulation pattern with the partitions between holes broken away. The process was repeated until the right-sized hole was produced.

The fourth method was scribing a groove in an oval pattern through the bone.

With the development of modern surgery, trephination was put aside after thousands of years of at least semi-successful use. Only in parts of Africa and in Yugoslavia, where it's used to ward off evil spirits is it still in practice, Marshall said.

The coastal Peruvians were subject to extensive facial deformations caused by infection from parasitic organisms. The condition may have been a fungal disease such as South American blastomycosis or actinomycosis or American leishmaniasis. In any case, the disease caused the loss of or damage to the nose and upper lip, and the resulting grotesque appearance was represented in effigy. An example of a deformed face on a ceramic vase sits beside a skull showing evidence of the same disease.

One skull has a porous topping, the result of a benign tumor covering the brain. Another has a tumor resulting in a protrusion like a bone spur from the jawbone.

Another ancient jaw, complete with an almost full mouth of healthy-looking teeth, has been cross-sectioned to show a mustard-colored tumor, which originated in the upper layer of the tooth socket. Its growth caused expansion of the bone but apparently stopped and was not associated with the individual's death.

Some of the skulls were deliberately elongated, a process done to increase beauty in the female. A very young girl was subjected to having her head tightly bound with strips of cloth or held between two boards, one at the front and the other at the back, wrapped around with cloth.

Elongated skulls increased beauty

Although the Peruvians did some fairly sophisticated cranial surgery and performed amputations — an example of an amputated arm is on display — they apparently didn't know how to set bones. The breaks were left to knit by themselves and several examples of what happened when they did are on view.

One can't help but wonder how patients endured these amputations and cranial borings? Perhaps their discomfort was eased by coca leaves. Marshall speculates they may have been chewed and the juice spit on the wound to provide a topical anesthetic. Or they may have been rubbed on the wound or, if the patient were conscious, he may have chewed them himself.

The Peruvians were not free of syphilis and it left its marks on skulls and bones. Necrotic lesions, ugly in their result, mar one skull and a lower leg bone in the exhibit.

A crooked spine indicates its owner may have been a paraplegic. The malformed spine apparently was the result of a fracture, although Marshall says some paralysis may have been present at the time of the break. A portion of a pelvis and thigh bone give evidence of a painful arthritic condition, perhaps causing the owner to be glad to meet his maker.

A skull from Bangkok — one of the few non-South American objects — demonstrates the popularity of betel nut chewing. The betel mixture would present a mighty challenge to the hawkers of today's dentrifices. This guy would never have made it in a close-up.

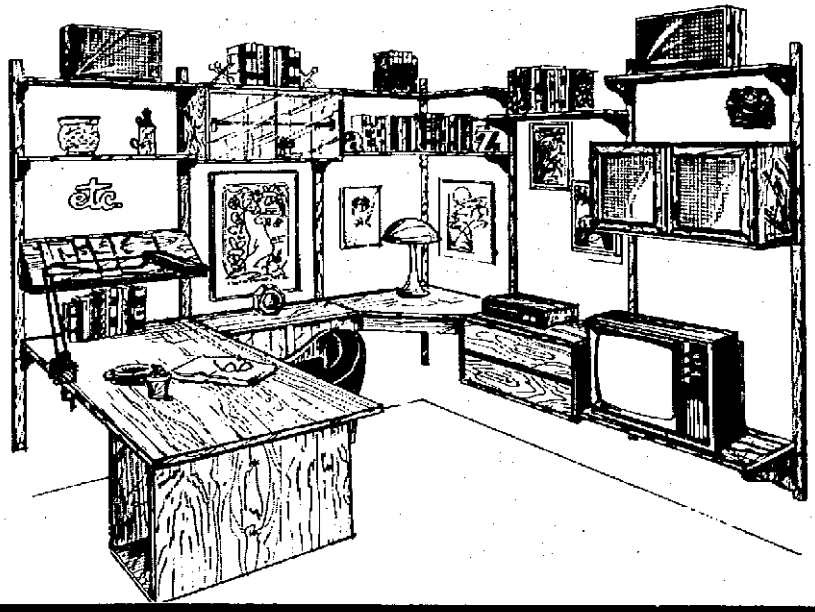

Other teeth show cavities and tartar and calculus deposits. Although there is no sign that cavities were filled to prevent further decay, holes were drilled in teeth and filled with semiprecious stones in the interests of beauty. Colorful grins must have resulted from the jadeite and garnet glowing in front teeth.

A look at the ancient culture of the Peruvians may make the visitor glad he isn't subject to trephination or amputation with just coca leaves to ease his agony. Nevertheless one wonders at the know-how of these primitive peoples. Their textiles are well-designed and lovely. They even mastered tie-dying. No one would hesitate to have them dress a wound. And in cutting holes in people's heads, they apparently saved lives.

A peek at their medical culture is possible at the museum daily from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. for 75 cents for adults, 10 cents for children, 35 cents for students and Wednesdays free for everybody.

The exhibit will continue indefinitely. □

Rancho Los Cerritos

By HELEN L. GILLUM

"Who am I? I am Miguel. Miguel Morillo. On this day, June 1, 1931, I am more than 101 years of age. For me, there will not be another year — perhaps not another day. But I do not care. For the casa I knew and loved is gone. It is gone ... along with the people I knew ... Juan Temple, Jotham Bixby, Juan Caneda ..."

The low, guttural voice trailed away and stopped. Startled, I jerked around and listened. Had I really heard those words or was I only dreaming?

I looked about me where I stood on the brick-paved walkway of Rancho Los Cerritos at 4600 Virginia Rd. in North Long Beach. As a volunteer at the rancho, I had been sitting at the reception desk in the front hall of the historic old adobe house. But on this warm, lazy afternoon, visitors had been few and I had stepped outside to admire the gardens. Then had come that strange voice — almost from out of nowhere, it seemed.

Helen L. Gillum is a Long Beach freelance writer.

Uncle Mike Morillo: a voice from the dead.

I moved farther down the walkway, trying to centralize the sound. But the words drifted away and then were completely obliterated by the roar of a jet overhead.

I was well acquainted with the folklore and legends centering around "Uncle Mike" Morillo, one-time caretaker at the rancho. But he had been dead these many years. For a fleeting moment, I wondered had Uncle Mike's ghost, for some reason or other, returned to Rancho Los Cerritos?

"Of course not," I muttered to myself. "There are no such things as ghosts."

But as to assure me that there were, indeed, such things as ghosts, the strange words burst forth again.

"Yes, I, Miguel Morillo ... baptized at Mission San Juan Capistrano ... descendant of a Spanish soldier ... part unconquerable Cahuilla Indian ..."

In spite of myself, I found the thought creeping in again — was I, a nonbeliever in ghosts and spirits and things supernatural, about to be caught up in the waves of occultism and the paranormal sweeping the country? And at, of all places, Rancho Los Cerritos? And by none other than the ghost of "Uncle Mike" Morillo?

Then I heard another sound — the very human sound of a chair scraping across the floor. And all at once, the source of the ghostly message came to me. Just over my head, at the far end of the upstairs veranda, someone was evidently making a tape recording featuring old Uncle Mike Morillo. Perhaps it was someone putting together a slide program from material contained in the Long Beach Public Library's Oral History collection. Whoever it might be, he was doing a very realistic job of the narration. Some day soon, an audience of school kids or local history buffs would thrill and chill to the half-true, half-mythical stories told by Uncle Mike in days gone by — stories of haunted stairways, ghosts and spirits, mysterious signal fires that flared from the ground at night to mark buried treasure, and of the contract that he, Uncle Mike, had made with the devil long ago.

I pondered again on the Mexican-Indian patriarch, and of how, in spite of his lowly birth and humble station in life, he had held sort of an unofficial dominion over so many people. I thought of how even today, as often as not, it is the memory of Uncle Mike that still dominates conversations at oldtime gatherings — old Mike Morillo, whose life span included working acquaintances with Don Juan Temple, builder of Cerritos ranchhouse in 1844; Jotham Bixby, subsequent owner of the rancho; and Llewellyn Bixby, restorer of the adobe casa in 1930.

Hearing the tape recording reminded me that many present-day Long Beachites are endeavoring to bring alive not only the factual history of Long Beach, but to preserve the folklore and legends surrounding early-day ranchos. The Oral History Project of the Long Beach Public Library, co-sponsored by the Friends of the Library, is doing a good job of this very thing.

Going back to when Long Beach was actually composed of two ranchos — Los Alamitos and Los Cerritos — pioneer residents recount their own past experiences and those of their forebears as told to them long ago. And library personnel and volunteer workers of the Oral History Program tape record these reminiscences for permanent records.

An important segment of the oral history collection concerns Rancho Los Cerritos. Maps and diagrams are being compiled according to traditional and actual descriptions. Details of the old gardens and courtyard and locations of now nonexistent rancho wells are recorded. The former sheepdipping vats and the location of a big, outdoor brick oven are noted on these maps. Even a long-forgotten jail room, complete with chains and leg irons is pinpointed on one of these charts.

And so is the spot in the courtyard where rancho youngsters sat on orange crates in enthralled silence as Uncle Mike told his ghost stories — all about the staircase that was haunted and another stairway, now removed, where, he insisted, a man was murdered long ago. He also told about the "safety" (safe), a hiding place for valuables beneath a window ledge, and about the silver bars that he personally threw into one of the rancho wells, just to get rid of them.

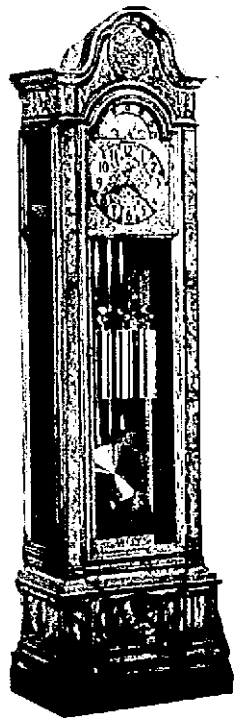

One person interviewed in the Oral History Project was Frank Coronado, a former gardener at Virginia Country Club, adjacent to Rancho Los Cerritos. As a child, Coronado lived with his family on the rancho and he recalls the story of Uncle Mike's committing what to us today would be an unforgiveable sin.

It seems there was a fire over at Rancho San Dominguez, west of the Cerritos. A winery burned down — a winery in which, according to Uncle Mike, silver was hidden or stored. The fire was so hot from the burning alcohol (so the story goes) that it melted all silver. (This all happened back when Juan Temple owned the rancho Coronado said.) After the silver had cooled, young Mike Morillo brought three big chunks of it home to the rancho. But the silver ingots just lay scattered about and Uncle Mike kept stumbling over them.

"And so," concluded Coronado, "Uncle Mike said that he just took those three big chunks of silver and chucked them down a deep bottomless well near a big gum tree."

According to Mrs. Roberta Nichols, rancho curator, attempts to verify this story have been unsuccessful, either as to the existence of the winery or the fire itself. In fact, in view of silver's high melting point — 860 degrees centigrade — it does sound a bit incredible. It is doubtful that the fire — from alcohol or any other fuel — could have generated that much heat.

On the other hand, the legend could contain a shred of truth. Silver and gold bullion were frequently brought down from the mines in the Sierra Nevada; and in those days of no banks or safety deposit vaults, where a better place to store precious metal than in the foundation of a winery? In fact, something like that was suggested in a recent news story. Small crevices beneath tile flooring, hollow birdbath pedestals and concrete statue bases — and backyard burial, as well — were all suggested as hiding places for precious silver ingots — silver being just as carefully hoarded today as it was back in rancho days.

Coronado was asked whether he knew if anyone ever found the silver.

"No, nobody every found it," Coronado replied. "They tried — countless people tried — adventurers — they all heard about the supposed treasures at the Cerritos. The hillsides were always dug up, but Uncle Mike said that they all dug in the wrong places. Of course, many people did bury their gold. Uncle Mike said that the Bixbys used to want to pay him in gold, back when they owned the rancho. But he refused the gold. He said, 'What am I going to do with the gold? What I have got, I've got buried. So has everyone else.'"

Virginia Coronado Babcock, Coronado's sister, was another interviewee. Mrs. Babcock was about two when she and her parents and brothers and sisters moved to the old Cerritos Ranchhouse.

Mrs. Babcock particularly remembered Uncle Mike's puzzling obsession with things devilish. When asked about Uncle Mike's selling his soul to the devil, she laughed and replied, "Oh, he wanted to be the strongest man in California. That is why he made this bargain with the devil. He showed us the little scar on his arm. The devil cut him there to sign the contract, he said. But Uncle Mike told us that when the time came for him to die, he would fight the devil because he, Uncle Mike, wanted to go to heaven. So he had to be very strong in order to win this wrestling bout with the devil.

Another story Uncle Mike insisted was true was that of mysterious flames that burned on now nonexistent hillsides. These flames supposedly erupted out of the ground to indicate places of buried treasure, the old Mexican solemnly declared. Small, spontaneous whirlwinds or "dust devils," were also supposed to reveal the presence of hidden treasure, Uncle Mike said.

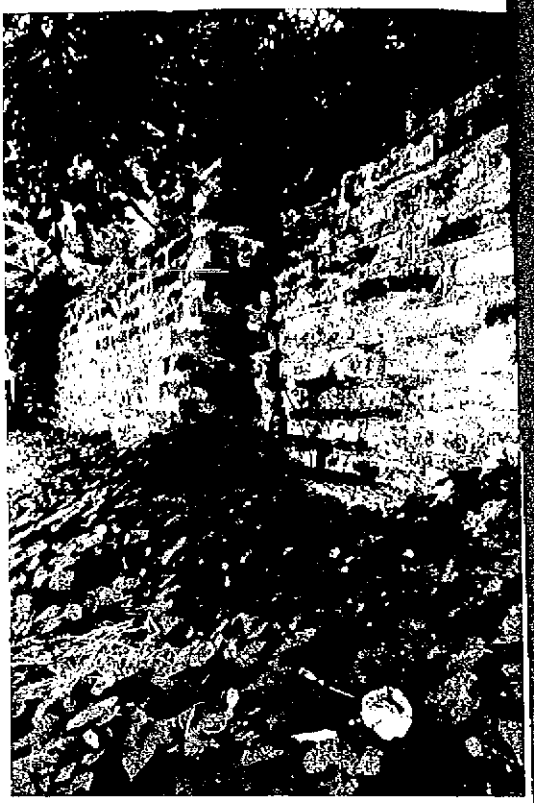

Mike Morillo was born in Capistrano and lived in the Capistrano-Hemet area until he was about 14. He then came to Rancho Los Cerritos where he broke horses and did other chores. His early association with folklore and legends from the old mission and surrounding region might have influenced his preoccupation with things supernatural.

And so we wonder — did Uncle Mike really sell his soul to the devil? Or was he only a hablantin or "blabbermouth," as he, himself, called anyone whom he considered to be overly talkative? Considering the recent upsurge of interest in parapsychology, ESP, occultism and preternatual possession, it might not be so unrealistic to think, after all, that Uncle Mike did indeed fall under some weird spell. Perhaps, like the young victim in the recent motion picture, Uncle Mike would have profited from the ministrations of an exorcist!

However, like the Abominable Snowman, Bigfoot of the Pacific Northwest, flying saucers, spooky fires and lights, those mischievous little ghosts called poltergeists, and other strange phenomena, the truth about Uncle Mike's obsession remains a mystery today. It is his secret — and he is keeping it well — wherever he may be!

On June 19, 1931, Miguel Morillo, aged 101 years, three months and three days, died of heart disease and senility at Clearwater, Calif., now called Paramount. Nieces and nephews who visited him before his death found him tied in bed — hungry, thirsty and begging to be freed. His children who had been caring for him said that he would wander away if not restrained. However, the nieces and nephews untied him and cared for him. Then they said goodbye for the last time.

Did Uncle Mike sell his soul?

And soon Miguel Morillo was free. Surely he mustered enough strength to wrestle the devil for his soul!

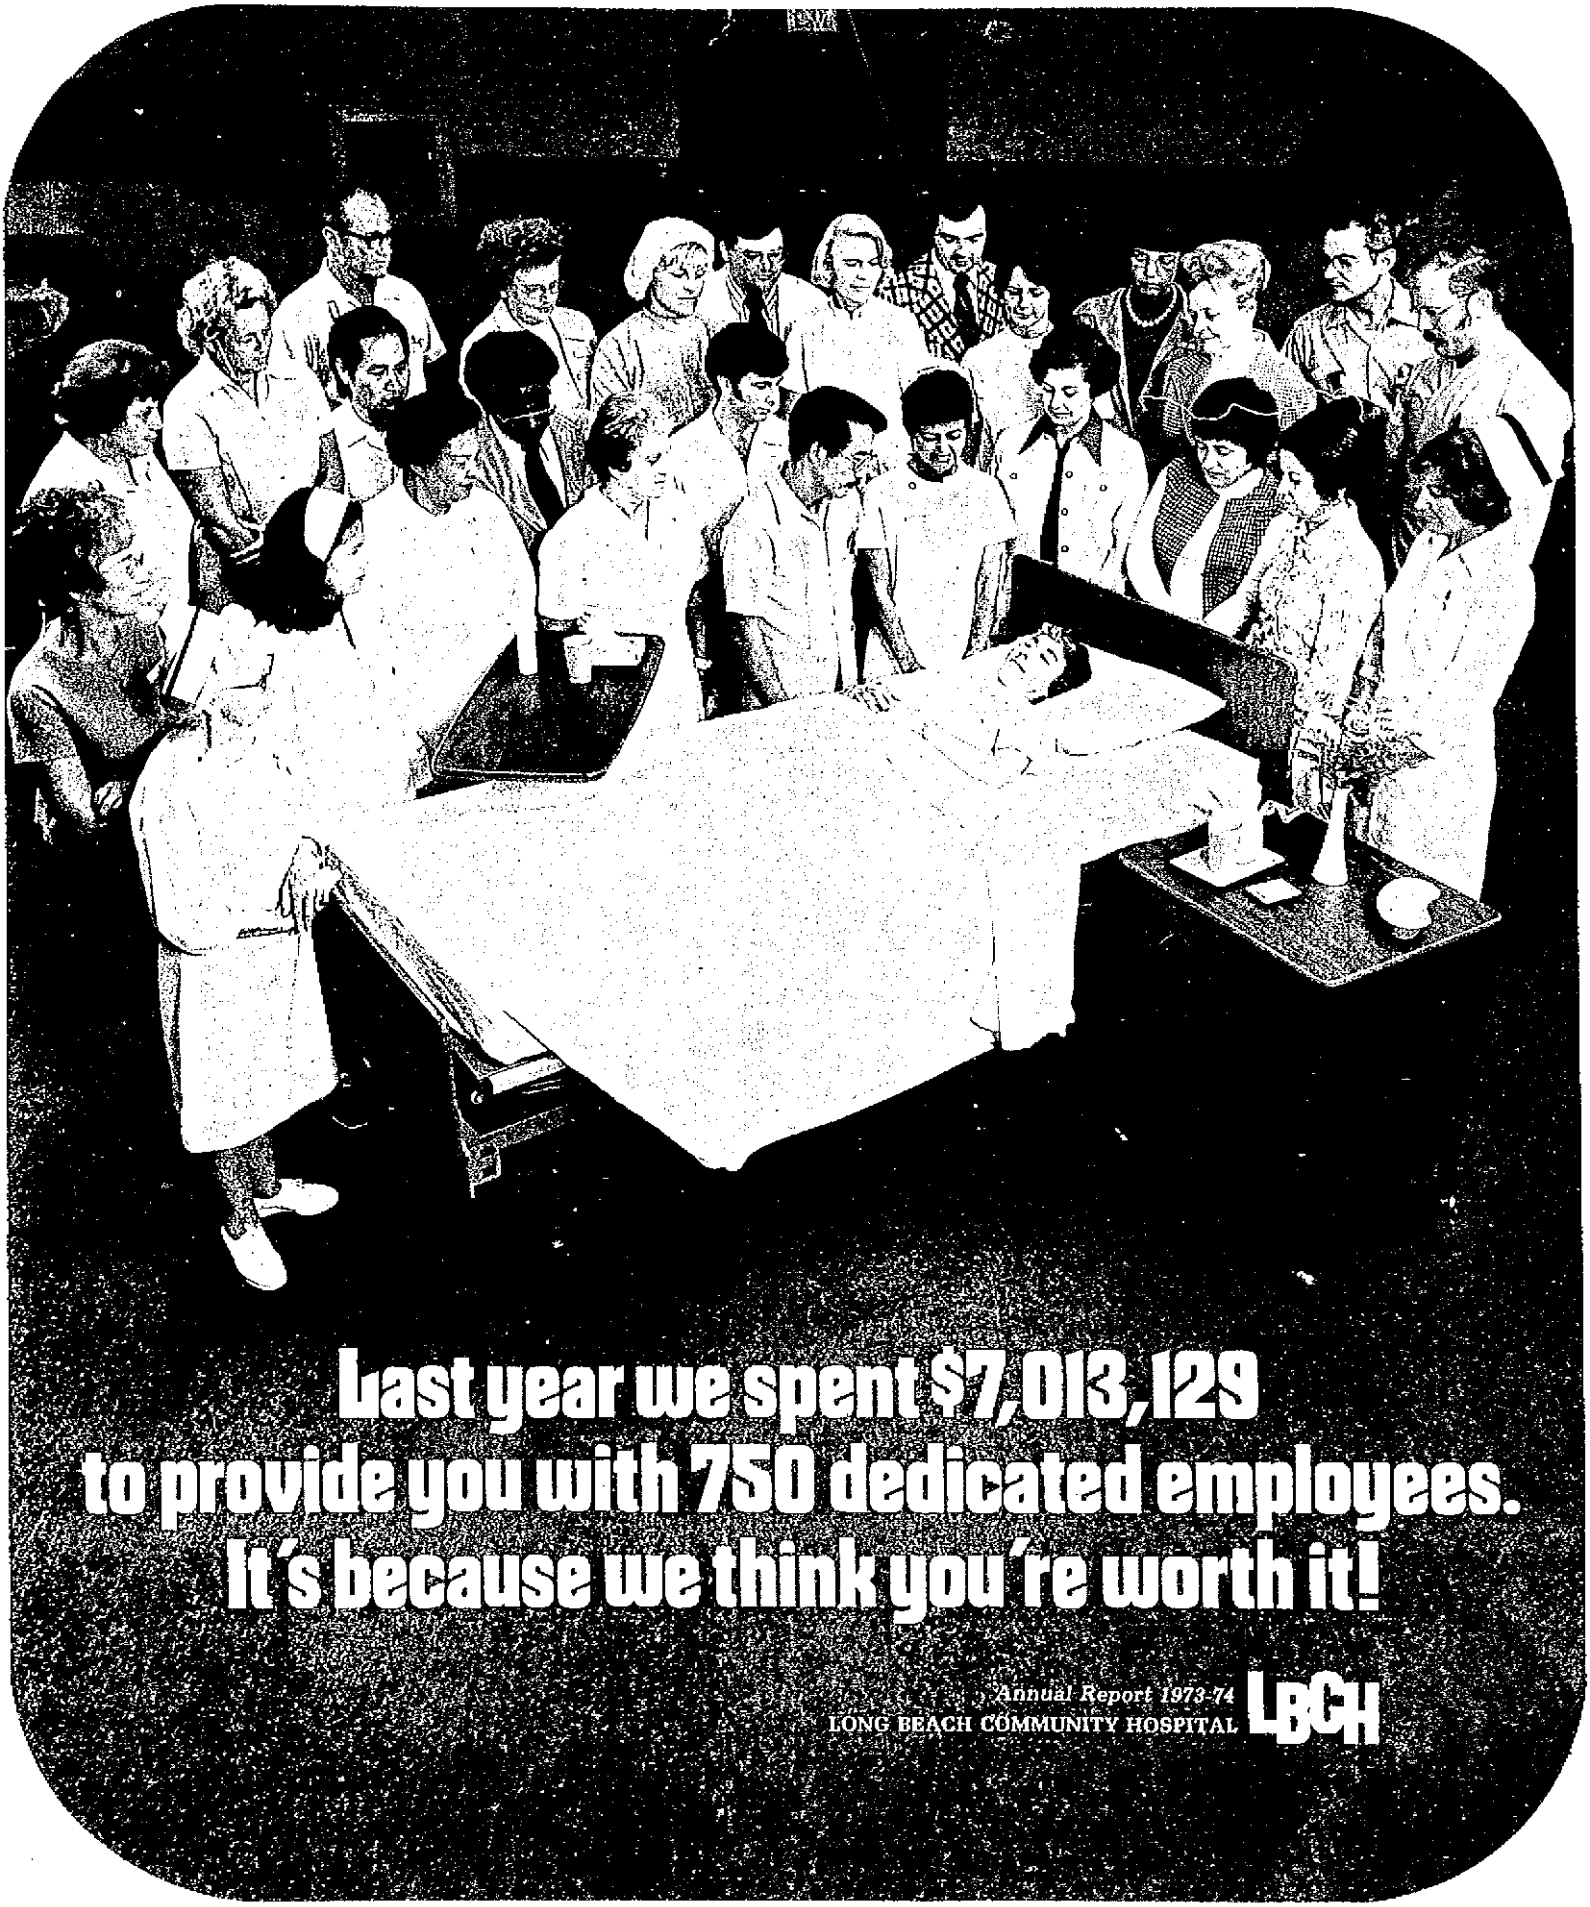

The question is often asked — has any buried treasure ever been recovered at or near Rancho Los Cerritos?

No, nothing spectacular has ever been found, except for a few gold coins and a piece of jewelry or two. And those were found by the Coronado children before the building was restored in 1930. At that time, the real treasure surfaced — Indian artifacts showing that when Don Juan Temple built his adobe house in 1844, he built it on the site of a very old Indian village.

In fact, the terrain of the rancho and of nearby Virginia Country Club has been so altered by grading and landscaping down through the years that it barely resembles its original contour. Los Cerritos is Spanish for little hills and the rancho gained its title from the gently rolling hills in that area. But while smooth, grassy little knolls and hummocks are 23

In fiscal year 1973-74 we also spent $215,305 on the kind of technology that says, "This is contemporary medicine."

Biofeedback: Biofeedback is a method of training — self-control over a variety of physical and psychosomatic disorders. It emphasizes the importance of voluntary control to restore more body functions.

Pulmonary Function: With one visit, our patients can have a complete pulmonary profile with this sophisticated computerized equipment.

SMA 12: This does twelve tests simultaneously at an 86% reduction in patient cost. The only one of its kind in a nonprofit hospital in greater Long Beach, it also serves two other major local hospitals.

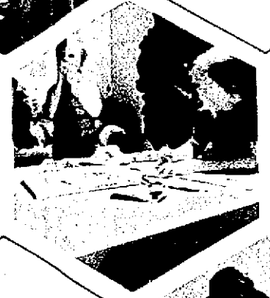

Radiology: An arthrogram is performed on the new radiographic and fluoroscopic X-ray remote control unit, one of a number of new radiological acquisitions.

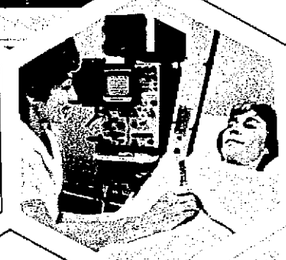

Coronary Care Unit: This unit was designed to give the most sophisticated of care for the patient with heart disease.

Linear Accelerator: The only one of its kind in greater Long Beach and conceded to be the most modern device available for external radiation therapy.

Pediatrics: Given by the Children's Benefit League, this unit cares for the child to age fourteen and offers him a delightful place in which to be.

Ultrasound: A new concept in diagnostic technique. Employs high-frequency sound waves to produce images of internal body organs.

Heart Catheterization Unit: The AngioCOR, invented at Long Beach Community Hospital, is the hub of the Fairfield Heart Diagnostic Unit.

Gamma/Scintillation Camera: In the department of Nuclear Medicine, it produces dynamic studies that illustrate distribution of radioisotopes. An exceptional diagnostic device.

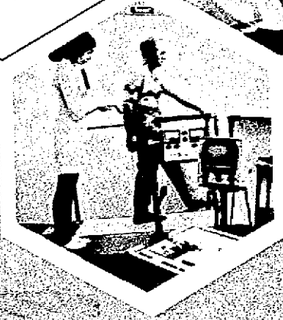

Family Centered Maternity Care: Free classes, father in delivery room, and "rooming-in." A program designed to fulfill the needs of the young.

Senograph-Xeroradiography: A major breakthrough in mammography. Early detection is a keynote in the detection of breast cancer.

Emergency Department: Advanced emergency care practiced on a twenty-four-hour basis by physicians who are experts in emergency medicine.

Treadmill: The electrocardiogram uses exercise stress to detect coronary artery disease.

LBCH LONG BEACH COMMUNITY HOSPITAL

The high cost of hospital care

Because nonprofit hospitals do in reality belong to the communities which they serve, Long Beach Community Hospital has chosen to make its annual report in the most public way possible. Though the preceding pages are very much our story, the story of costs is one which applies to every institution of our kind.

We cannot rightfully deny that the terrible inflation that affects this country is almost double in our industry, but we can safely contend that this double inflation lies within the changes of the quality of health care itself. If the rise has been in fact dramatic, it is simply because of patient needs and the dramatic responses that we have made to those needs.

Health care facilities, until a very recent past, were primarily in the business of providing the kind of care best suited to recuperation. Life expectancy was also significantly lower. Hospital stays are now about half of what they were a scant few years ago. Such things as Coronary Care Units, Radiation Therapy, and Inhalation Therapy were in a yesterday, at best, conjecture, and the vast amounts of costly equipment and the highly skilled professional people needed to operate it were but ideas in the minds of professional dreamers. It is hard to realize that but a decade ago 80% of the drugs now in current use were unheard of, and that one-third of the lab tests essential to the practice of contemporary medicine were unavailable.

As new procedures have been developed, and as people have been trained to make them work, buildings have had to be provided to house them. The cost of remodeling and construction runs perilously high.

Buildings, however, are only buildings. People are what make a hospital, and technology demands that personnel now outnumber the patient slightly more than three to one.

Governmental health programs increase patient cost. We feel strongly that all people are entitled to care, but we should all be aware that such services as Medicare and Medi-Cal are costly to the nonprofit institution. At the present time these programs reimburse only at approximately 85% of the total patient bill. A reasonable guarantee of getting the job done demands that this difference be made up. Necessary too, is the covering of bad debts and the wherewithal of waiting for payment.

For all of this, Long Beach Community Hospital can point with pride at being in the first quartile of the Blue Cross Per Diem Rate Range for the past three consecutive years. This means that our rates are lower than at least 75% of the hospitals in the Harbor area.

Though we must admit that hospital costs are high, we still maintain, in terms of improved services, shorter hospitalization stays, and the return of more people to productive and healthy lives, that we have provided an investment that pays a powerful dividend.

still charming features here, many of them are manmade. Even Uncle Mike's so-called "bottomless" well long ago went dry and was eventually filled in with dirt. And thus it was that Uncle Mike's secret treasure troves and flaming signal lights, if they did exist at all, were destroyed forever in the churned earth and swirling dust thrown up by modern bulldozers.

Another question frequently asked, usually with a sly little smile, is, "Is Rancho Los Cerritos really haunted? I have heard that it is."

Well, no. The rancho is not haunted — unless you count those mysterious footsteps that sound overhead at times when all else is still. Someone has attributed those strange sounds to outside noises reverberating around inside the old adobe building.

There are the lights that flick off and on too. And, for a while, the ribbon on an electric typewriter changed from black to red every time it was left to itself. But these little flub-dubs could be blamed on the old wiring in the house (and surely not on a poltergeist)!

Or could these manifestations merely be Uncle Mike, still trying to convince us earthlings that he never really did keep that contract with the devil?

La Casa de Rancho Los Cerritos is operated by the Long Beach Public Library as a historic museum and historical library. The gardens are maintained by the Park Department House and Gardens are open to the public free of charge Wednesday through Sunday, 1 to 5 p.m. □

Telly Savalas Lover of work, wit and women

By HELEN DORSEY

Aristotle "Telly" Savalas is a man of action. He thinks quickly, answers questions in direct, rapid fashion and has a mind that works at an almost alarming speed.

He was holding court in his posh trailer on the Kojak set, joshing boisterously with his brother, Demosthenes (George), who plays Stavros, his bungling sidekick on the series. Telly is the complete extrovert, supremely confident; he displays none of the jangled nerves often associated with actors. The atmosphere was pure fun house. Telly was the visible source of power and the mood was warm and happy as the brothers Savalas bear-hugged and broke into uproarious laughter.

Telly has been tagged a womanizer and he takes no pains to deny the aptness of the label. He takes boyish pleasure in flirting outrageously and his admiration for women is undisguised.

He made his entry into show business rather late in life (he was 37), having worked earlier for the State Department and ABC News (where he snagged a Peabody Award). He once planned to be a psychiatrist, and would probably have made an excellent one, he reads people very quickly.

He is divorced from his second wife; he talks freely about his daughters, who are 23, 12 and 11. He is deeply attached to his mother, artist Christina Savalas, his sister, Katherine, and his brothers, Socrates, Praxiteles and Demosthenes.

The actor is a man of forceful personality and tremendous energy, who has managed not only to carry off the top ratings for his CBS-TV series, but to write a new screen play and record two albums at the same time. He is a great story teller. He credits his late father, Nicholas, an on-again-off-again millionaire, for his joie de vivre.

Telly Savalas, Greek incarnate, lover of Greece and Greek culture, of family, laughter, work, wit and women, agreed to answer questions.

Let me see the back of your head, please. I've heard that's the best side of your head.

Who told you that?

You did, in the Plaza Hotel.

I was lying! This is the first touch of modesty I've had since I've been in the business.

I've heard you called "The Reluctant Dragon." What does that mean?

Romantically or vocationally?

Start with vocationally.

Well, in the last five years, I ran as fast as I could whenever I heard of a TV series offer. I don't know why. Could I have resented the security of fame and wealth? But then this project came along, and, although I admit going into it half-heartedly, now that I'm committed to it, it's one hundred per cent straight ahead.

What kind of a guy is Kojak?

A man who has been on the force as long as he has must, in order to survive, have some knowledge of human behavior and human values. He has to be diplomatic and psychological in his approach to people. His knowledge of personalities, especially the personalities in his own neighborhood, gives him the edge he needs in his work.

Is he from New York?

Totally. He works in the neighborhood where he grew up. He knows it better than anybody.

Will he have any romantic inclinations?

Well, I've been leaning that way. Let's hope the script writers see it the same way.

Helen Dorsey is a writer for the New York Daily News.

It would make him more interesting, wouldn't it?

Of course! I think it'd by fascinating for somebody pretty to kiss an ugly mug like mine on screen, don't you?

So if Kojak runs across an attractive woman, he might have a romantic encounter?

Sure. If we can entertain that way without creating another Last Tango in Paris, I'm all for it!

Why do you wear dark blue glasses?

Someone gave them to me. They probably stole them. I wear them because I resent my big brown eyes.

You're not a violent person, are you?

I'm a pussycat.

A big tom cat?

You said it, I didn't!

Do you embarrass easily?

No. I just act that way.

Let's talk about your vices. You're known as a bit of a gambler.

When it comes to cards and chips, sure. But if you limit it to that, it's ridiculous. I'm a gambler when it comes to all of life.

Why do you say that?

Well, you mentioned the reluctant dragon. Ten years ago, I dreamed about the time when I'd make $25,000 to $30,000 a year at the top of my profession as an educator, as a teacher, or working for the State Department and taking care of everybody. Then I threw that all away to explore an area where I'd never been before; that to me is being a gambler. I think the excitement of life is its unpredictableness. When you steal that from Telly, then you're going to have a disgruntled reluctant dragon.

With dark blue glasses.

Yes, hiding his big, brown eyes!

I heard you learned to play bridge from Omar Sharif.

No, Burt Lancaster! Omar was after me for a number of years to learn bridge because I used to destroy him playing gin rummy. He'd say, "Telly, you'd make a fine bridge player." I'd say: "Shut up and deal." Then, when I was making a picture with Burt in Mexico, they needed a fourth. There weren't any alternatives in Durango, in the middle of the desert, unless you enjoyed watching the local drunks, so I learned to play bridge. Now, I agree that it's the best card game in the world.

Omar says bridge demands the same concentration as acting.

We're in violent disagreement there. The concentration of an actor is something that I question — particularly since I don't have it myself. We're getting into spontaneity and instinct, which I think are more important than concentration in acting.

Do you enjoy being an original?

I don't know what that means.

That means being yourself.

Well, I'm in pursuit of myself. And, in that pursuit, I go back to the Socratic saying: "Know thyself." I'm not there yet.

Do you think you will ever know yourself?

No.

You once talked about retirement. You said you'd never want to do it because then you'd want to retire from life.

Retirement, God forbid! Retirement suggests to me comforts in all areas, a pattern. And I promise you, I would be dead 10 minutes after I made that decision.

Do you have to keep busy all the time?

No! I think one of the things I like to do most is sleep. Of course, I haven't done it in years. I don't know how to anymore. I really do like to keep busy.

At the things you enjoy doing?

Or enjoy not doing, just as long as it's not planned. That's the unhappy part for me with this series, because I know what I'll be doing for four months.

After the four months go by, what will you do, sleep?

Get on to other things. I wrote a fantastic script. It will blow your mind. It's about the devil. The devil takes the form of a 22-year-old girl, who's on the screen all the time. She's gorgeous, but under all that beauty, I paint something so diabolical it has to frighten you. I took 12 days off and wrote the whole thing. It's ready to go. And I'm ready to make it. I wrote it for the taxi drivers, not for the intelligentsia, although it's there for them, too. I have an uncle who thinks Freud was the greatest gangster who ever lived, greater than Hitler even, with his sexual concepts on how to explain away the human personality. My uncle was head of the psychiatric division at Bellevue in New York, and I wrote him into my script. He's an old man now, 74.

They seem to live late and long in your family.

My grandmother was 111 when she died. My grandfather got married when he was 53, and 24 kids later, my father was born. They had three more after that. He preached that no man should get married before he was 50, because that's the only time he could make a good husband. He proved it.

What kind of man is your uncle?

A man who, at 70-some-odd years, says to me, "Telly, I've been practicing psychiatry for 50 years, and I find at this late stage in my life that the only defense I've ever had against the logic of madness is love. Everything else is total bullshit." That's the kind of man he is. A swinging cat, my uncle. I can't wait to start the movie.

Do you have anyone in mind to play the psychiatrist?

I think I must play him. It would be logical for me to direct, but there's an element of conceit to being both the star and the director. But there's no question, whoever directs it will be someone who is close to me, so that when I'm having my traumas, he'll know how to express them.

Who would you like to direct?

Someone more knowledgeable in the craft than I am — although, I promise you, for actors, there's nobody in the world better at directing than I am.

What made you decide to become a singer?

John Cacavas, the producer, persuaded me. I said, "I don't know anything about music." But then I thought about it for awhile and realized I didn't know anything about acting either. So why not?

Did you sing when you were young?

No, but my brother Gus did. I would go, "Meow, meow," in the background and my mother would say: "Shh, Telly, Gus is singing." So I grew up with an inferiority complex about singing. And then, when John came along, I thought: "To hell with it, I'll make an album." So I did. The only deal I made with John was, if I don't like it, we scrap it. We made it and I liked it. So I sent one to my mother and wrote on it: "Shh, Telly's singing." My payoff for all these years of frustration.

You're not one of those people who live their lives according to a neat, well-laid-out plan, are you?

No, but I'm in awe of them. One of the things I was really impressed with as a kid was when I would be playing with my friends and they would say, "Oops, it's 6:30, I've gotta go home to dinner." It made me envious that other people all got together and ate at 6:30. That was unheard of at my house. We ate when we got home. We ate when we were hungry. I admit, it was an unusual kind of household.

It must have been.

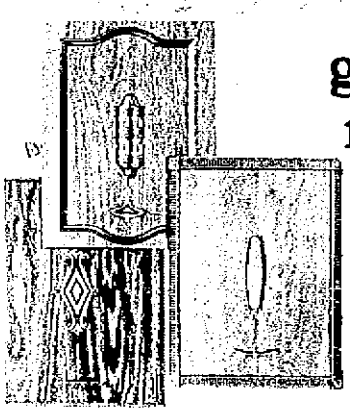

Oh yeah, 24 hours a day, my house went. People used to call it the Hotel! We lived not by plan, but by instinct. I remember when we all grew up and got married, and my father died, my mother sold the house, which was in Garden City, Long Island. After everyone signed all the papers and the deed was closed, everybody was congratulating each other. Then the guy who bought the house said: "Mrs. Savalas, may we have the key?" My mother broke down and cried. She never had a key. To understand this, you have to know what kind of a house it was. It was the greatest place God ever created, let me tell you. Fun! There was always action. We lived in a very private community, where if anybody was seen walking the streets after eight o'clock and he was a stranger, they'd lock him up! At the Savalases we'd be killing each other. But they'd never bother us because they knew it always went on. That's what I mean. We never had a key.

Are things quieter in your house now than when you were growing up?

Not when I'm around! It can't be quiet. Where's the action?

Are the girls all home?

I was married a few times, as you know. Christina goes to Mount Holyoke, back east. The others go to a French school in Los Angeles, the Lycee. They went to French schools in England and in Yugoslavia, and

The millions came and went wherever we've been. The girls are linguists. Christina speaks five languages, better than I speak English. The little ones rattle off French.

Would you encourage your daughters to go into acting?

No. It's a dangerous profession. When I review the last 12 years, even with my attitude and maturity towards life, I still see the pitfalls. What are they? Well, here I was, doing my thing on a more formal basis back east, as far removed from acting as you can get, dreaming about the time when I would make $25,000 a year, then, all of a sudden, I'm thrown into a profession where you make that much in a week. And, you're not sure what for. People keep coming up to you and telling how wonderful you are. Wasn't I wonderful before? It's a hard adjustment. And I can see how failure could do things to you. You've got your ego on the line!

You have to be pretty together to survive in this business.

Oh yeah. You can't start believing it all either. I'm still afraid I'll be exposed as a fraud and be sent home.

On what grounds?

Whatever the grounds are, at least I'll have that alternative. I thank my father for all that. One day he was a millionaire and then he woke up one morning and he didn't have a penny. He took his kids out of private school and put us in the back of a truck and next thing you know, we were peddling cakes on the streets of New York like nothing happened. That's a great man.

When did you quit your job to become an actor?

I never officially quit. And I never will. If this ever closes out or if I blow it, I'll go back to doing what I was doing. Will I tell everyone I used to be a movie star? No. One time there was a review in the paper of a TV show I did and they spelled my name "Tolly Sables." They said I was wonderful. I was heartbroken. All the advertising released on Birdman by United Artists listed me as Tony Savalas! My mother was furious. She went around to all the theaters and crossed it out and corrected the spelling.

What do you enjoy in a woman?

Intelligence, femininity, honesty. To exhaust myself making love to her in every bestial, animalistic and delicate way. And then just lying around and whispering and discovering who I am and who she is.

What bugs you — dishonesty, rudeness, arrogance?

I deal with it all as tools to survive: dishonesty is part of my craft, and I'm getting paid very well for it. We all participate in that area. Absolute truth does not exist.

FAMOUS FOR SERVICE

You told me once that your finest performance was when you had to answer the door for your mother when the milkman came to collect the bill.

That's right.

Do you have a low tolerance level for people who take themselves seriously?

I take myself very seriously. Things I do, I take lightly.

You don't seem to be afraid of much.

That's true. Nothing routine anyway. I fear the things I know nothing about. Loneliness is a fear. I don't mean the absence of individuals. I mean the loneliness within yourself sometimes. I manage to cope with life pretty well. It's those things I don't quite understand that make me lonely sometimes. I could be with a lot of people and still feel lonely.

Do you ever feel crowded around bores?

Bores don't bother me.

Did your father give you your philosophy?

He was the greatest guy that ever lived. He was instinctive and impulsive. There was always something going. He was in pursuit of that impossible dream. It certainly wasn't money. He lost plenty of that and gained plenty of that. Just like all of us did. For him there was not such a thing as "no."

Is there any "no" for you?

"No" is a turn-on for me. A "no" is very appealing because I've got to find out why. And, in the analyzing, the "no's" turn to "yes" or "maybe." "Yes" is very unappealing if it comes right off the bat. I guess the word with the most appeal of all for me, though, is . . . "maybe." □

The grading game

Make sure it does not become a matter of life and death

By GRACE AND FRED M. HECHINGER

When our older son was in first grade, six years ago, the mid-year report by his music teacher informed us, "Paul participates creatively in all class activities, but always on his own terms." Since his interest and talent in music were minimal, it was easy for us to figure out that "his own terms" were unrelated to its practice or appreciation.

More recently, when our younger son embarked on his educational career in nursery school, one of his first report cards told us, "John's usual reaction when a child takes something of his or accidentally hurts him is to scream as if he needs help ... " This seemed a sensible reaction for a not-yet-four-year-old, but we would have been hard-put to rate such behavior on any scale from A to F.

Such examples of the descriptive rather than the letter-grade type of report cards illustrate their intrinsic virtue. In the hand of a skillful and diplomatic teacher, they can tell a good deal without hurting the parents' feelings. "Janie is a lovely child and she is making progress in working up to her potential" is a much nicer way of putting it than "She's going to be a knockout, so why worry if she is a dumb blonde?"

Grace and Fred Hechinger are parents of two report-card aged boys

Intelligent and sensitive teachers turn these essays into gems of helpful analysis. The report on a first grader of our acquaintance included the observation that "he sometimes tends to dominate the conversation and prevent others from sharing it." Surely a helpful hint. Somewhat less enlightening was the cryptic comment by his gym teacher, "Needs help with his ball-handling skills."

No perfect way of handling the thankless chore of reporting children's academic and social progress will ever be devised, certainly no way that makes all parents happy or that satisfies pedagogical progressives and traditionalists alike. The pros and cons of essay reports vs. the more precise grades of A to F or numerical ones from 100 on down can be readily stated:

Supporters of the old-fashioned numerical or alphabetical grading system, which remains in effect in more than 70 per cent of the nation's elementary schools, consider it more precise and objective. "It tells you exactly where your kid stands," said one father. "What was good enough for me is good enough for my children" is a strong factor in education. The persistent report for traditional grading has its roots in the Puritan ethic — and in a fervent belief in the importance of preparing children for the competitiveness of life.

Descriptions degenerate in platitudes or, worse, psycho-pedagogical jargon.

Partisans of the more "progressive," descriptive reports charge that the letter or percentage grades distort the learning process by turning it into a "horse race" of cut-throat competition. Rejecting the "preparation for real life" argument, they say that even in a competitive setting adults are not "graded" in such simplistic terms either on their jobs or in their social behavior. As with all such controversies, the supporters of either side tend to overstate the virtues of their own and the dangers of the opposition's case.

As parental participants in the grading game, we have learned to observe both approaches with amusement rather than passion. On the whole, our experiences have borne out the view of those experts who consider the descriptive report preferable for young children — roughly from nursery to upper elementary school.

Perceptive teachers can help enormously by putting matters into sharper focus. They can even inform parents about things they want to know about their children but don't dare to ask. A mother who had been worrying about her daughter's capacity to get along with other children was reassured by the teacher's report that, "Your daughter is one of the most popular girls in the class."

If such descriptive reports can be goldmines of information, they can also be marvels of incomprehensibility: "Your son's latest work in math has centered on the developing of regrouping in addition as an extension of previously developed basic concepts," or "His abilities have become expanded through his activity and have established a realistic balance in his frustration level."

And what is the parent of a five-year-old truly to make of this comment: "She has shown tremendous strength in coming to terms with her own needs and becoming the activator in meeting them?"

Sometimes descriptive reports provide unintentional insights into the teacher's strengths and weaknesses. For example, a science teacher reported that an eager third grader "participated with a keen interest and a lively curiosity in our science program. He worked conscientiously on his experiments and shared his findings readily with the group." Yet in the same boy's report for shop, his teacher virtually sputtered that he "is quite inattentive, asks for assistance, then wanders off and distracts others."

Grades at so early a stage, particularly when they are shown to the children themselves, can lead to misunderstandings, even to psychic damage. When the administration in our son's school ordered grades to replace the less formal progress reports in the fourth grade, one of his teachers, a revered veteran, simply refused to comply.

"Suppose a child has been doing badly in third grade," she said. "Now I get him and he is making real progress. He is becoming interested and even gaining some confidence in himself. He has improved — by his standards — a great deal. But on the letter scale, he would still be near the bottom. Should I give him a D? I would destroy him and make a mockery of everything I have been trying to do these past six months. I just won't do it."

Bare-bone grades themselves tend to dominate the child's mind to a point where their meaning is no longer clear. Fear of failure becomes more important than pleasure from accomplishment. When New York Times reporter Joseph Lelyveld gave a running account of the activities in the fourth grade at Public School 198 in Manhattan, he offered this glimpse into a child's reaction to the letters on the report card:

"Javier Romero had the harrowed look of one who had just escaped disaster. 'I didn't get no U's' he told his mother. U stands for unsatisfactory; the fact that he had actually done very well — 11 E's for excellent — seemed hardly to have made an impression."

Dorothy Boroughs, the skilled and sensitive teacher of that fourth grade class, seemed realistically aware of the pitfalls of the letter grades. Although she considered herself a strict and demanding teacher, she admitted to being generous when it came to report cards. It is one thing to scold a child for failing to do well in a particular assignment, she said, but quite another matter to make him feel that he is a general failure.

Although there has been a slow trend away from the laconic precision of grades in elementary schools, much of the essay reporting, particularly in large and crowded public schools, tends to become a chore and the descriptions degenerate into platitudes or, worse, psycho-pedagogical jargon.

One school system, in trying to standardize the essay approach (a sure way of undermining its benefits), came up with such formidable descriptions as "Uses acceptable speaking standards. Recounts in order. Shows vocabularly expression" makes one want to hurry back to the old-fashioned A to F.

Quite apart from the relative merits and demerits of the essay report card (and the advantages in the case of young children are considerable), the question remains: At what point does the more precise, more competitive letter or percentage rating become appropriate or preferable? Experts differ over the specific dividing line, but it is fair to say that the transition ought to be made somewhere between junior high and high school.

Adolescents are usually able to handle the more precise evaluations. Academic and intellectual achievements now begin to take precedence over the more informal process of shaping children's capacity to live with each other and with the organized life of school. And a comprehensible code of accomplishments is part of the price to be paid for admission to college or employment.

Adolescents are highly competitive. They usually devise their own codes as to who's ahead — and unless given the grades as a standard of comparison, will do so on the basis of a maximum amount of misinformation. (This is not to say that young children are not competitive. Quite the contrary. When still in kindergarten, our sons were zealously protected from any knowledge about the relative standing in class; yet they regularly came home with detailed information about who was where in the workbooks. When the teachers, in disapproval of such rampant competitiveness, cut the page numbers off the workbooks, the children simply started to count the pages and continued to issue their own communiques.

DIFFERENT TEXTURES do a lot more than just offer variety on the carpeting scene. There is no such thing as a "best" texture for every purpose, and each may function well under special circumstances.

Shag is at or near the top of the popularity poll today, but it is not all things to all persons. Some find it too casual or informal in the very long lengths, and harder to vacuum. Happily there are short shags, too, so there's shag to please any taste. But you may be happier with another texture on stairways, for instance, where all the traffic is concentrated.

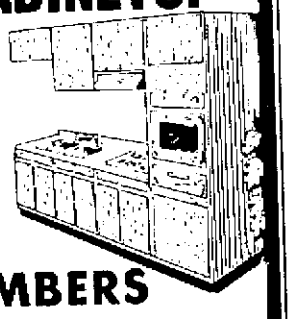

Loops and twists come in all styles and lengths. They make very durable carpet textures, and are thus practical in rooms that take a beating or that have limited traffic lanes because of the room's arrangement or furnishings. But remember that some fibers, such as nylon, wear longer than others, so texture is not the only consideration.

Loops and twists show very little shading. Plushes do. They are like velvets in that characteristic, as they are in general appearance. Rub your hand across velvet or a plush carpet to see what we mean. Many homeowners and designers love this look of shading or shadowing, but others don't. Check your own reaction before choosing plush.

Our showroom displays offer a delightful choice of textures, including many combinations. You won't find better variety or value anywhere . . . or as much assurance of expert carpet counsel at no extra cost. Come in and see!

The short-lived revolution staged against grades by college students during the late 1960s offered convincing proof that adolescent youths find comfort and security in competitive grades. After a brief flirtation with such substitutes as pass/fail and other noncompetitive devices, the students soon started to demand more precise yardsticks. At first, "first with distinction" was added in some instances and before long the majority opted for the traditional rang from A to F or Excellent to Failure.

Another factor serves to draw the line between essay reports for children and traditional grades for adolescents: the explicit teachers' reports on children are intended for the parents' enlightenment. Indeed, they are often meant to goad mother and dad into dealing more realistically with their offspring — ("He's is a boy of exceptional ability, but what he could use most at this point is a slight dose of humility.") But with adolescents, the report card is as much for their own benefit and guidance as for their parents' gratification or despair.

A forthright, written essay critique might be far more traumatic for a teenager than the more impersonal grade. At any rate, teachers of adolescents seem to do best where they transmit their critical observations of a student's work and benavior in face-to-face conferences. "If I were to write down honestly what I think of a student's mediocre performance, I'd lose more friends and arouse more hostility than I ever could with a C," said one high school teacher.

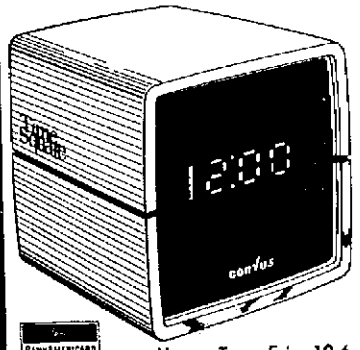

What is important in the use of letter or percentage grades is adherence to scrupulous standards of fairness. Pupils are entitled to evidence, reinforced by teachers' verbal comments, that grades are given thoughtfully rather than mechanically or casually.

Grades

A teacher's entry of "exelent" as the only misspelled word on a student's spelling test can be more disconcerting.

But far worse is the case of a seventh grader who recently received his computer-printout report card which, among A's and B's, contained a mysterious DR opposite social studies. The puzzling entry turned out to stand for "dropped," even though the student had earned an A in social studies for the term. More disturbing, since seventh graders are not allowed to drop social studies, it was evident that those who "processed" the computerized report card had not bothered to read it. Such incidents tend to convince youngsters that their report cards, untouched by human hand, are the product of a remote and impersonal process — always the antithesis of sound education. (When the student received the corrected report, social studies had disappeared from it altogether: The computer had acted on its mistaken DR entry and "finalized" matters in its own fashion.)

Even more important than the form in which report cards are presented is the manner in which they are received. And that remains the parents' prime responsibility. Louise Bates Ames and her associates of the Gesell Institute of Child Development, in their book Stop School Failure, urge parents to be realistic and to accept the fact that not every child is an A or B student. In some instances, they stress, "C is a respectable grade," and they add the warning: "Don't let grades get to be a big issue in your household ... let poor performance be a clue to you that some sort of adjustment is needed. But don't let grades become a matter of life and death." □

School days

By STEVE ELLINGSON

Does mention of a schoolhouse clock bring back a touch of nostalgia? It should because if you were a clockwatcher in those days like most of us, you always looked forward to the hands hitting the Roman numerals that marked the recess hours, lunch and quitting time. Nostalgia for the past is all the rage now and you can relive those "dear old golden rule days" by building the timepiece.

This easily built clock is an exact replica of the original old schoolhouse model. There are no complicated miters. The octagon is cut from a single piece of pine. The moldings used on the pendulum box are readily available from your lumber dealer. Construction time is only about six hours, when you use our easy-to-follow, full-size pattern with step-by-step pictures and instructions.

The clock operates with a cordless pendulum movement, powered by standard batteries (available everywhere). You can stain and varnish the clock to match the finish typical of yesteryear. You may prefer to antique it. The whole thing's a fun project.

To obtain the full-size Schoolhouse Clock Pattern No. 530, send $1.50 (add 25 cents per pattern for airmail delivery) by cash, check or money order to:

GOURMET

by Tedd Thomey

Our question for today, gourmets, is simply this: If you had your choice, would you rather have a fine soup with your French dinner or a fine wine?

Because of inflation, one can't always comfortably afford both. In some French restaurants in Southern California, an extra-course dinner with wine brings a tab that is almost as high as the Eiffel Tower.

Fortunately I am very familiar with a superlative French restaurant in Garden Grove where one can comfortably afford both soup and a splendid house wine, as well as other courses, with dinner. It is LaFayette, 12532 Garden Grove Blvd., two blocks east of Harbor Boulevard, easily reached from the Long Beach area via the Garden Grove Freeway.

LaFayette is owned and operated by two continental chefs who were trained in Europe — Edmond Sarfati who is from France and Pierre Boulenaz who is from Switzerland. Their French dinners are masterpieces of French flavors. They are also quite generous including trays of sea food and vegetable hors d'oeuvres, soup or salad, three superb freshly cooked, garden vegetables and hot French bread.

LaFayette's salad is excellent with chunks of sharp Roquefort. But I prefer Pierre's French onion soup with my dinner because it is the classic kind, unusually rich and delicious. As for LaFayette's bottle wines, champagnes and brandies, they are outstanding, and sensibly priced, but with my dinner I am very happy with a half-liter of the house red burgundy. It is merely $2 and I judge it equivalent to a $7 or $8 wine.

PIERRE BOULENAZ
Superb French onion soup

The dinners at LaFayette are from $4.95 (coq au vin, chicken cooked in wine) to over $8.95 for the specialty entrees. The glorious bouillabaisse, made with fresh fish, is $8.75, served Fridays only. The steaks with wondrous sauces are $7.75. Other entrees include boneless trout with almonds, Dover sole meuniere, red scampi, duckling a l'orange, white medallions of veal, tartar steak, chateaubriand and rack of lamb.

LaFayette, closed Mondays, has a cocktail lounge and a banquet room for 60 called the Washington Room.

GUIDE

ONE OF LONG BEACH'S most scenic locations for a banquet is atop the tall Holiday Inn, Lakewood Boulevard at Willow Street, near the San Diego Freeway.

The inn's Penthouse banquet facilities can accommodate groups as large as 125 to those as small as 10 or 12. The facilities are available for breakfast, luncheon or dinner meetings, serving everything from ham, eggs and omelettes to fancy sea foods, golden chicken, steaks and prime rib au jus.

Reservations for the banquet facilities can be made by phoning Margrit Bachmann, who is the inn's banquet manager and also handles the catering details. She has been on the Long Beach inn's staff for several years. Prices for banquet, reception and party meals are only slightly higher than the regular menu prices in the adjacent Penthouse restaurant.

Menu planning at the inn is under the direction of innkeeper John Dawson and food and beverage director John Gary. Dawson, who is from Montreal, has 20 years experience in the restaurant and hotel field and has been on the staffs of Holiday Inns in Oakland, El Paso and Tucson. Gary, associated with the inns for three years, is a graduate of Oklahoma State University where he majored in hotel and restaurant administration.

Open to the general public as well as inn guests, the Penthouse restaurant has large windows offering unusual views of the city. The food choices are imaginative and the quality is consistently high. For luncheon, there are appetizers and special soups, fancy salads, steak sandwiches and sea food entrees. The dinners, $2.75 to $6.95, emphasize "The Long Beach Catch," a variety of shrimp, trout and scallops creations; spaghetti with meatballs, golden-fried spring chicken, stuffed flounder and the steak for two persons ($11.50). They come with crisp tossed green salad, vegetables and fresh sourdough bread.

The inn's desserts include Bavarian cream pie, traditional cheesecakes and scrumptious hot apple pie with cinnamon ice cream.

Medicine & You

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

Psychosomatic disorders among Americans differ with sex, income and race, a doctor reports.

Dr. John B. Schwab, professor of psychiatry and medicine at the University of Florida school of medicine, Gainesville, cited some examples at a meeting of the Academy of Psychosomatic Medicine.

Among his findings:

Headache, constipation, nervous stomach, weight difficulties and high blood pressure are more frequent in females.

Peptic ulcers and asthma are more frequent in males.

Among younger persons, headaches, diarrhea and nervous stomachs are more common.

Among older persons, indigestion, constipation, high blood pressure, weight difficulties and colitis are more frequent.

More black persons have headaches, stomach-aches, constipation or high blood pressure.

Among white persons, nervous stomach, diarrhea or colitis are the more numerous complaints.

Indigestion, constipation and high blood pressure more frequently affected families with annual incomes below $3,000.

In the $3,000-10,000 group, headache was significantly more common.

In families with incomes above $15,000, diarrhea was significantly more common.

Overall, psychosomatic ailments are the most common among the poor, exploding the myth that psychosomatic illness is a middle-class affliction.

Details appear in Internal Medicine News, a newspaper for physicians.

Lead poisoning, once thought to be mainly an East Coast medical problem, is also present on the West Coast, a new report reveals.

In the East, the high incidence of the disorder has been attributed to eating lead-loaded paint chips in housing built before 1940. (The lead content of interior house paint was reduced by law after that date.)

High blood levels of lead were found in 100 of 4,000 children 1 to 5 screened in a federal project in Los Angeles. Thirty-five required treatment.

Dr. Lillian Lee of the Los Angeles County Community Health Services, and director of the lead project, says:

"The children we're screening resemble those with lead poisoning found in East Coast studies. They're poor, live in the central city, in dilapidated housing, most of which was built before 1940."

But in addition, the Los Angeles children may be affected by taking in dirt contaminated by airborne lead. Says Dr. Lee:

"Car exhaust, a huge source of airborne lead, may contribute to the blood lead levels. And a lot of lead, especially from exterior house paint, falls into the dirt that serves many of these youngsters as a play area."

Dilapidated housing is believed to be the main cause of childhood lead poisoning, Dr. Lee says.

"In the L.A. study the highest incidence of plumbism (lead poisoning) was found in poor children living in poor housing."

Details of the report appear in Medical Tribune, a newspaper for physicians.

Why do people tend to become shorter as they grow older?

A new study suggests at least two factors are at work:

— A loss of water and elasticity of the connective tissue in the spinal area results in a reduction of the intervertebral spaces.

— Curvature of the spine in at least two areas becomes more pronounced with advancing age.

These factors probably account for the reduced stature in the elderly, according to the Journal of the American Geriatrics Society.

The finding is based on a study of 200 hospitalized patients over 45 years old. All recalled their height at age 20. At the time of the study, the subjects showed a significant decrease in body length. This decrease was more pronounced in women.

There are two forms of karate, but only one appears to pose the possibility of injury, a new medical report says.

The harmless type is a form of conditioning, and injuries rarely occur, says Timothy T. Craig, Ph.D., of the American Medical Association's department of sports medicine, Chicago.

In another form, Makiware or thrusting, significant injuries can occur, says Dr. Craig. Occasionally acute injuries result from a single blow.

But more typical is a proliferation of tissue over certain finger bones, caused by repeated trauma. This excessive trauma can result in long-term damage such as nerve damage or arthritis.

When arthritis does occur in Makiware, it is not a "frequent chronic affliction," Dr. Craig says.

WALTER SCOTT'S
Personality Parade

Want the facts? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Want informed opinion? Write Walter Scott, Parade, 733 3rd Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. I have been told that Richard Nixon will be unable to meet his mortgage payment of $243,440 on his San Clemente estate come January. Is that true? Is he broke? Doesn't he have millions in foreign banks?—J.F., Key Biscayne, Fla.

A. Nixon does not have millions in foreign banks. He will receive approximately $80,000 annually in federal pension money, based on his eight months of service in 1942 in the Office of Price Administration; his service of 40 months in the U.S. Navy (1942-46); his four years in the House of Representatives (1947-51); his two years in the U.S. Senate (1951-53); his eight years as Vice President (1953-61); and his five and a half years as President (1969-74).

No man with an annual income of $80,000 for life can be considered broke. In addition Nixon owns property in Key Biscayne, Fla., and Whittier, Calif., and his memoirs if published quickly, are worth in the vicinity of $2 million. Nixon will undoubtedly meet his mortgage payments or restructure them.

QUEEN ELIZABETH AND HER FAVORITE HORSE

Q. The Queen of England who is a horse nut—doesn't she sneak incognito into France to watch her horses run?—Mavis Lamb, New Canaan, Conn.

A. It is impossible for the Queen of England to sneak incognito anywhere. This past June she paid her first private visit to a French racehorse track at Chantilly, 24 miles north of Paris. Her favorite horse, Highclere, was running, and the filly came in first, winning $250,000. The Queen was protected by 30 policemen and detectives, was hosted by Marcel Boussac, 85, the multimillionaire French textile magnate.

Q. How long have actor Robert Mitchum and wife Dorothy been married?—Marjorie Reid, Las Vegas, Nev.

A. Thirty-four years.

SLAP IN THE FACE: DUNAWAY AND POLANSKI

Q. Can you tell me if the story is true that during the filming of Chinatown, actress Faye Dunaway broke a bottle over the head of Roman Polanski, the director? —Anne Evans, Pasadena, Calif.

A. At one point Faye Dunaway slapped Polanski in the face, but she broke no bottle over his head.

Q. I wonder if you can tell me what's happened to David Frost, the guy who used to conduct a talk show on TV.—Myra Dorsey, Durham, N.H.

A. David Frost, 35, who gained recognition in the 1960's on BBC's That Was the Week That Was, is returning to BBC television in London as a "serious" TV commentator. His own series of 30-minute interview shows is to begin tomorrow. He says he will continue to make frequent trips to the U.S. and appear on TV shows here.

Q. Is there any chance that the American people will ever be told the truth about the FBI under the long regime of the late J. Edgar Hoover? Is there any chance that from here on the Congress will watch over the activities of the FBI?—D.E., New York City.

A. There is not much chance that the truth will ever be told of the J. Edgar Hoover regime unless one or more knowledgeable veterans of the FBI such as Clyde Tolson, Mark Felt, Lou Nichols, Alex Rosen, Alan Belmont and William Sullivan write one or more books truthfully recounting their FBI experiences. It is most unlikely that any of these men will write such a book. It is more likely that men like Pat Gray and Clarence Kelley will one day write of what they learned about the FBI under Hoover after Hoover was gone.

Most probably Congress will never again permit any FBI director to enjoy the open-ended dictatorial power of a J. Edgar Hoover.

Q. On Sept. 15, 1972, according to the transcripts, former President Nixon in a conversation with Bob Haldeman and John Dean said of Edward Bennett Williams, the Washington attorney: "I wouldn't want to be in Edward Bennett Williams' position after this election . . . I think we are going to fix the sonofabitch, believe me. We are going to. We've got to, because he's a bad man." In view of the above, why has Gov. John Connally of Texas chosen Williams as the attorney to defend him in the milk support case?—F.F., Dallas, Tex.

A. Connally apparently holds Edward Bennett Williams in a higher light than Nixon did.

Q. Has Jackie Kennedy had her face lifted now that she is 45?—Helen Goldstein, Winnetka, Ill.

A. Women who have had a face-lift say that Jackie bears all the signs of such facial surgery.

JACKIE: 1969

JACKIE: 1974

Q. Which U.S. Senator has the most beautiful wife? —F.R., Seattle, Wash.

A. Beauty lies in the eyes of the beholder. Helen Jackson, wife of Sen. Henry "Scoop" Jackson (D., Wash.); Marvella Bayh, wife of Sen. Birch Bayh (D., Ind.); Joan Kennedy, wife of Sen. Edward Kennedy (D., Mass.)—these are just a few of the attractive Senatorial wives.

The President's natural father (1882-1941), Leslie Lynch King, with the President's stepmother, Margaret Atwood King.

Leslie Lynch King, sitting down, on a hunting trip in Wyoming with his father-in-law, Bill Atwood.

President Gerald Ford, originally named Leslie Lynch King Jr., who very much resembles his natural father.

President Ford's 'Other' Family

by Lloyd Shearer

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Gerald Rudolph Ford, 38th President of the United States, has the most confused family background of any 20th-century American President, one that is sure to turn migrainous any and all of his future biographers.

The President was born on July 14, 1913, in Omaha, Neb., to Dorothy Gardner King of Harvard, Ill., then 21, and Leslie Lynch King, then 30, son of C. H. King, who was reckoned at one time to be "the wealthiest man in Wyoming."

The President was originally christened Leslie Lynch King Jr., after his father, a tall, handsome, sandy-haired wool merchant.

When Leslie Jr. was 2, his parents were divorced. His mother, a strikingly attractive brunette of 23, took him and moved to Grand Rapids, Mich., where she knew people and her parents owned some property. There, a year later, in 1916, she married Gerald R. Ford, a hard-working, widely respected paint salesman who later founded his own enterprise, the Ford Paint and Varnish Company.

Mr. Ford very quickly became fond of his wife's son, adopted the boy, and gave him his name. Thus Leslie Lynch King Jr. became Gerald Rudolph Ford Jr.

Over the years the Fords had three other children, all male, who are the President's half brothers. They are: Thomas Ford, 56, a former member and now a staff analyst of the Michigan Legislature; Richard Ford, 51, manager of the Ford family paint business in Grand Rapids, and Dr. James Ford, 47, an optometrist in Grand Rapids. At 61, President Ford is their "big brother."

They didn't tell him

Until he was 17, Jerry Ford never knew that he was an adopted son. So writes Jerry terHorst, President Ford's press secretary, biographer, and veteran newsman who has covered Ford since 1948. According to terHorst in his book, Gerald Ford and the Future of the Presidency, Ford had no idea that his mother had been divorced, had married again, and that he had been adopted by her second husband, Gerald R. Ford.

TerHorst quotes Ford as saying of his adopted father, "We looked alike, we acted alike, we had the same interests. As far as I was concerned, he was my father."

One afternoon, in the fall of 1930, young Ford learned differently.

That afternoon a tall, broad-shouldered, blue-eyed man walked into Skougis' restaurant on Hall Street across from South High School in Grand Rapids.

Skougis' was a combination ice cream parlor and eatery owned and run by Bill and Marie Skougis. Bill, who died three years ago at 76, had journeyed from Argos, Greece, to settle in Grand Rapids. There, in 1921 he opened his Dairy Shoppe. It developed into a hang-out for the high school kids.

Hire football players

According to Marie Skougis, "My husband was partial to the South High football players. He used to hire several of them to work around the place. One of them was Jerry Ford. We used to give Jerry free meals and about $2 a week for waiting on customers and washing dishes. He was always a nice, neat, polite boy, never spoke too much, but everyone liked him."

The tall, blue-eyed, blond man looked around the restaurant, obviously searching for someone. After a while, spotting Ford who was waiting on a customer, he approached him, smiled, and according to Marie Skougis, said, "Young fellow, my name is Leslie King, and I'm your father. I was married and divorced from your mother many years ago. We used to call you Leslie, too. I wonder if we could talk somewhere for a few minutes."

Mrs. Skougis, who got the details from her husband, says that young Ford then went to him and said, "This man," nodding at King, "claims he's my real father. He'd like to talk to me. Can I be excused for a few minutes?" Skougis said, "Sure." Jerry removed his apron and left the restaurant with the man.

Outside, King introduced young Ford to his wife, a small, dark-haired woman, the former Margaret Atwood of Los Angeles, then pointed to their 4-year-old daughter, Patricia, who was lolling on the grass nearby.

Come out West

Presently, King explained to his son that he lived in Riverton, Wyo., where he had business interests in wool, lumber, and real estate. He said that he had another daughter and another son, and he asked the husky young football star if he would consider joining the King family out West.

Ford's reaction was one compounded of surprise, shock, amazement, anger, hurt. Why hadn't his mother told him the truth about his background? Why hadn't "Dad" Ford told him about the adoption? Why had this man, King, who claimed to be his father waited 15 long years to find his son?

Manifesting superb self-control for a 17-year-old, young Ford asked none of these questions. He would wait and ask his mother many more that night. Instead he declined Leslie King's offer, explaining that he was happy with the life he was living, happy with the life he had known, happy with the love and advantages and guidance his parents had given him.

Leslie King said he could understand and appreciate all that. But why didn't Jerry think about spending a summer or two in Wyoming. He, Leslie, could fix him up with a job at Yellowstone National Park as a seasonal ranger. Jerry Ford said he would think it over. He shook hands with his natural father, then walked back to Skougis' where Bill Skougis warned his wife and the other boys who had overheard Leslie King say to Jerry, "I'm your real father," not to breathe a word about the incident.

A long talk

That memorable night, Jerry Ford and his parents engaged in a heart-to-heart talk. Jerry told them about the visit from this personable man who looked like him and claimed to be his real father, and in turn his parents acknowledged the truth. Later, Mr. and Mrs. Ford told their sons Tom, Dick, and Jim Ford. "I think I was 8 years old," recalls Jim Ford, "when I found out that Jerry had been adopted. It made absolutely no difference to me or to my brothers. He was our big brother. We loved and admired and accepted him and never gave it a second thought."

The next summer Jerry Ford did come out to Wyoming. "And it was in Wyoming," says his half brother Leslie "Bud" Henry King, now manager of the Goodyear Rubber Center in Cookeville, Tenn., "that the family first got to know him. I think he was 19 or 20 at the time, and I, of course, was 10 years younger. We sure liked him, but I'm the only one in the King family who's seen Jerry off and on since he came out to Wyoming so many years ago.

"There are three of us who are related to him by blood," explains Bud King. "I'm his half brother, and I'm 51. Then there's Mrs. Marjorie King Werner of Cumberland, Md., who's 53. She's his half sister. And then there's Patricia King, 49, of Balboa Island, Calif., another half sister who lives with my mother who's 83.

Visits to Michigan

"Our father, the President's natural father, died in Tucson, Ariz., in 1941. He was only 59. For the last 10 years of his life, he suffered from very bad asthma. He was always extremely proud of Jerry and used to see him on his trips to Michigan."

Explains Patricia King, one of President Ford's two half sisters: "Father used to go to Detroit every few years from our home in Riverton, Wyo., to buy a new Lincoln Zephyr. He owned the King Investment Company and a couple of lumber yards in Casper, and in those days a Lincoln Zephyr was befitting a man of his position.

"Whenever he got to Michigan he made a point of looking Jerry up, or so at least he told us. He was pleased that there was a marked resemblance between father and son, and he was very proud of Jerry's athletic ability. I'm only sorry that he never lived to enjoy Jerry's political success. He would have liked that.

A wide-eyed teen-ager

"I think the one who probably remembers Jerry best is my sister Marjorie. She was a high school junior when Jerry last came out to see us in Wyoming. I think that was in 1936."

Mrs. Marjorie Werner, married to Alton Werner, personnel director of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Co. in Cumberland, Md., says: "I sort of hero-worshiped Jerry that summer. He was the big man from Yale. We used to take long walks in Riverton together before he went up to Yellowstone. He was understanding and sympathetic, and I was a wide-eyed teen-ager.

"I've always remembered him with fondness and kindness. He looks just like our father. My brother, Bud, who's been in touch with him from time to time, is coming to visit us this month. He has four children and we have two, and maybe somehow we can all visit the President in the White House. Wouldn't that be a thrill!"

Gerald Ford as a seasonal ranger in Yellowstone National Park during summer of 1936.

At 83 Mrs. Margaret Atwood King Mather suffers from a lapsing memory. She is President Ford's stepmother, and she recalls seeing Ford only three times in her life. "Now, that he's President," Mrs. Mather says, "I don't want to take advantage of what is a purely accidental relationship. But I do remember meeting him that first time in Grand Rapids when 'Daddy' (which is how she refers to her first husband, Leslie King) brought him out from a restaurant and introduced us. Jerry seemed like such a nice young man, and he was, too.

It's been 40 years

"I recall when he came out to visit us in Riverton, Wyo., on two other occasions. But I haven't seen him—well I guess, it was almost 40 years ago in 1936. I believe he worked at Yellowstone Park that summer.

"I'm sorry," she adds that 'Daddy' never lived to enjoy his son's political career, or for that matter that they never got to know each other very well. I don't know how to refer to Jerry—as my stepson or the President or what—I only saw him three times, and when he stayed with us it was only for a few days so I'm just technically his stepmother—anyway I wish President Ford had really gotten to know his father. He was quite a man—very dashing, a bit spoiled but—but quite a fellow."

Margaret Atwood met Leslie Lynch King at a 1919 New Year's party at the Alexandria Hotel in Los Angeles. "It was almost love at first sight," she says. "He was 5 feet 11 or 6 feet, with blond hair and blue eyes. He had the most beautiful smile and he was a wonderful dancer. His father, C. H. King, owned a mansion in Los Angeles, on Manhattan Place and Pico Boulevard. They were quite wealthy, and it was a gorgeous place. My own father was a purchasing agent for the Santa Fe Railroad, and we were comfortable. But certainly we weren't in the same financial class as Charles Henry King.

"He had been a pioneer in the Wyoming Territory, running stage coaches from Omaha. He had helped bring the railroad to Wyoming, and he had set up general stores and banks all along the railroad route in cities like Casper, Douglas, Glen Rock, and many others. He had five children, two sons and three daughters, and probably spoiled them all.

"I know Leslie King, the son I married was spoiled. We went together for about six months, and then one night we eloped to Reno, Nev., and got married. We settled in Riverton, Wyo., where my husband looked after his family interests, wool, lumber, banking, ranch land, things like that.

"Before we got married," Mrs. Mather continues, "'Daddy' told me that he'd been married and divorced and had a small son living with his first wife in the Midwest. But after we were married he never brought up the subject again. I don't know if he ever paid any child-support or alimony or anything. If he did, he certainly kept it secret.

Room in Riverton

"The first time we really discussed his son was that fall of 1929 or 30 when we took the train to Detroit to buy a Lincoln. 'Daddy' said to me, 'I'm going to look up that son of mine. He must be 16 or 17 by now, and I'm going to ask him if he wants to move in with us. How does that sit with you?' I told him it was fine with me. We had a three-bedroom house and plenty of land in Riverton. Why not. But that was really the first time we ever discussed anything about his son.

"I was prepared to take Jerry in with us. We would have enjoyed having him. But he was happy where he was. When eventually Jerry did come out West, Marjorie and Patricia and Bud—they were all quite young—but they were all very happy to have another big brother in the family and 'Daddy'—as I say he was very proud of Jerry and if I recall correctly, we even visited him at Yale one time when Jerry was assistant football coach there. We were thinking of putting Bud in Exeter or some military school."

Gerald Ford and Elizabeth Bloomer, on wedding day, Oct. 15, 1948. The ceremony was held at Grace Episcopal Church, Grand Rapids, Mich.

In 1941, the President's father, Leslie Lynch King, died and was buried in Forest Lawn Cemetery in Glendale, Calif.

Her second marriage

Eight years later, in 1949, his widow, Margaret Atwood King, married Roy Mather, a copy editor on the Los Angeles Times. Mather was aware of Gerald Ford's position as a Congressman and followed it. Mather died in 1954. Since then Mrs. Mather has been living with her daughter, Patricia, in a bungalow on Balboa Island, a few miles north of the Richard Nixon San Clemente estate.

"Never! Never! in my wildest dreams," she exclaimed, "did I think that my stepson would ever become President of the United States. Sometimes as I sit here watching him on television, it's hard for me to believe that he is the same young man who almost 45 years ago walked out of that restaurant in Grand Rapids with 'Daddy.'"

Gout Study Seeks Key to Other Diseases

by Herbert Kupferberg

NEW YORK, N.Y.

What did Alexander the Great, Charlemagne, John Milton, Isaac Newton, Benjamin Franklin, Theodore Roosevelt and Hank Greenberg all have in common?

The answer—in one word—is gout, a crippling disease which everybody laughs at except people who suffer from it.

The approximately one million gout victims in the U.S. don't see anything funny in their affliction. Seizures, which often come upon them in the middle of the night, cause excruciating pain, generally centered in the region of the big toe. "I feel," said the gout-ridden British essayist Sydney Smith, "as if I am walking on my eyeballs."

Gout has been known to man ever since the ancient Egyptians. The Greeks even had a word for it. Hippocrates, their great physician, called it "podagra," from the Greek words pous (foot) and agra (attack).

After suffering from gout for centuries, the human race at last is doing something about it. More progress has been made in its treatment and control during the last 25 years than in the previous 3000. In fact, some of the knowledge gleaned from the study of gout is now being applied to research in such other medical problems as arthritis, diabetes and heart disease.

Pain-free lives

Treatment of gout itself has reached the point where patients can lead normal, pain-free lives with only minimal restrictions on their eating and drinking habits. The old "gout stool," on which sufferers used to rest their throbbing, bandaged foot, is rapidly passing into obsolescence. As for the old jokes ascribing gout to dissipation—the Greeks used to call it the joint offspring of Bacchus, the god of drink, and Aphrodite, the goddess of love—their humor has lost its point since science discovered that the real culprit is something as prosaic as an excess of uric acid in the blood.

Much of the gout research in the U.S. takes place in the Gout Clinic of New York's Mount Sinai Hospital and is conducted by Dr. T'sai-fan Yü, a woman physician who came to the U.S. from China in 1947 expecting to remain for three months' graduate work.

"The reason I stayed on," says Dr. Yü, "is my intense interest in research. Research is a lifetime work. The more we explore, the more unknown phenomena we encounter."

Her favorite disease

Henry Fielding wrote in his novel Tom Jones that "every physician, almost, hath his favorite disease." For Dr. Yü it is gout, which she began studying almost as soon as she got here as an assistant to Dr. Alexander B. Gutman, founder of the Gout Clinic.

Dr. Gutman, who died May 4, 1973, is described by Dr. Yü as one of the most selfless and dedicated physicians she ever knew. "He was an untiring researcher," she says, "never seeking publicity for his own discoveries, or lured by money."

Needed: $750,000

Right now, Dr. Yü with the help of friends and colleagues of Dr. Gutman is spearheading a campaign to raise $750,000 for an Alexander B. Gutman Research Chair in Internal Medicine at the Mount Sinai Medical School. Her hope is that the chair will enable researchers to follow up clues found in gout studies that may help in their wars against other diseases.

"We have found that other diseases are associated with gout," she says. "Nobody dies of gout itself. But about 65 percent of people who have gout die from hypertension, coronary or cardiocerebral vascular diseases. About 15 percent die of kidney disease. These are higher rates than the general population. We are working very hard to see what the common pathway is in such cases, to find out why people who get gout also develop the other diseases."

Dr. Yü also is hopeful that drugs which have been developed to treat gout successfully may also lead to better treatment and prevention of conditions continued

Dr. Yü does blood test on female patient. One curious aspect of gout is that it's male-oriented. Only 5 percent of sufferers are women.

Six patients pose with the doctor outside the Mount Sinai Gout Clinic's waiting room. Smiles on most of them indicate the disease has lost much of its ancient terror.

such as hypertension, coronary artery disease or diabetes. "Thus one of our major approaches," she says, "is to evaluate drugs which not only help gout but help disease involving high fat and high sugar in the blood."

The proposed Alexander Gutman chair could well play a vital role in such research, Dr. Yü believes.

"Thanks to the kind of painstaking research done by Dr. Gutman, we have changed the whole picture of gout," she says. "We've picked up the disabled from chronic disease hospitals and enabled them to lead productive lives. We have licked uncomplicated gout. But we have not cracked the diseases associated with gout. So that's where our next effort lies. It may take another 10 or 20 years, but to solve the problem we need good people to conduct the essential research. Today's research is tomorrow's treatment."

The recent rapid advance in gout treatment shows the speed with which medical progress can be made once researchers get started.

"I remember the first patient I ever saw," Dr. Yü reminisces in her office in the Gout Clinic at Mount Sinai, where she is Research Professor of Medicine. "He was a Presbyterian minister, an old man, who had had several of his fingers and toes amputated because of the disease."

It's the side effects

For years the only palliative for gout was a drug called colchicine, which was used even by the ancient Egyptians. They extracted it from the saffron plant, or autumn crocus. The trouble with colchicine is that while it alleviates acute attacks, it also can produce unpleasant side effects.

Modern treatment for gout consists of getting at the root—the uric acid surplus in the blood. Normal people have a concentration of 6 to 6.5 milligram percent; gout victims have from 9 to 12 milligram percent or more.

Uric acid crystals tend to deposit in various joints and the kidneys if not properly treated. Such deposits are called tophi. Tophi formed at the joints can be very unsightly and crippling. Uric acid deposits in the kidneys sometimes may lead to kidney insufficiency.

In 1950 the Gout Clinic, using a drug called probenecid, which helps gout victims by drawing uric acid out through their kidneys, found that tophi could actually be made to disappear—a major breakthrough in treatment. In 1962 another drug, allopurinol, was developed, which actually prevents the formation of uric acid. Gout Clinic patients today are given whichever drug fits their particular case best, and they're usually permitted to eat and drink pretty much as they please. They do have to undergo periodic checkups of their uric acid levels, so that diet and pill dosage may be properly regulated.

Dr. Yü points out that women seldom get gout—about 95 percent of sufferers are men. She also notes that people with gout are believed by some to have above average intelligence. "How does Women's Lib feel about that?" she asks with a smile.

Gout is a hereditary disease, with offspring of gouty patients far more likely than others to develop a high uric acid concentration. She says that about 100 of her patients bring their children in for preventive checkups. Hopefully research will be able to develop treatments which will prevent such offspring from developing the actual disease.

The generations pass

"Some of these youngsters started at age 12, and they're still coming at age 30," she says. "I have to laugh at myself sometimes. When I was young I saw only old fellows. Now when I get older, I see them young."

Dr. Yü, a graduate of Peking Union Medical College, began studying medicine largely at the instigation of her father.

"In those days in China, boys were preferred to girls," she says. "But I had a good father—he didn't see why boys should be better treated. We were two girls and three boys. The others were all smarter than me, so I worked harder to compensate."

When she first met Dr. Gutman, who then was at Columbia University, Dr. Yü remembers he was "totally unprepared to receive a Chinese girl to work with him."

"He gave me two reprints that he'd written," she says, "and said 'Read these articles—I don't know whether you'll understand them or not.' I felt insulted. I read his articles, which were written in a beautiful literary style. But he was right: I didn't understand them. But I didn't want to admit it. So I spent a whole week looking up references and going over the articles. Finally I went in and told him: 'Everything you wrote I understand.' I stayed three and a half years with him at Columbia, and then when he was appointed medical chief at Mount Sinai he took me with him. It was he who urged me to stay in gout research."

World's largest

Over the years the Gout Clinic launched by Dr. Gutman with the help of Dr. Yü has had 1700 patients, making it by far the largest clinic of its kind in the world. Scientists from other countries come to study and work there and then take back the most modern treatment methods to their own lands. Gout patients who used to hobble in with canes and crutches now arrive briskly and cheerfully for the tests and treatments that enable them to lead active, pain-free lives. Their new-found happiness is reflected in the quiet satisfaction of Dr. Yü, whose "three months of graduate work" has turned into a quarter of a century of service to humanity.

Hail Johnny Appleseed!

by Beth Merriman

PARADE FOOD EDITOR

The fall apple harvest has begun—and what better time to try an old-fashioned recipe for Apple Brown Betty? A delicious treat for the whole family, it contains apples, cornbread crumbs, butter, sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg.

Popularity of the apple today is due in large part to the spirited endeavors of John Chapman, better known as "Johnny Appleseed." He became a legend in the early 1800's, planting apple nurseries from Western Pennsylvania to Indiana and lecturing on apple growing.

This month marks the bicentennial of his birth. His hometown of Leominister, Mass., has planned celebrations, as have Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana. Have your own festivities—and be sure to make enough Apple Brown Betty—it'll be a favorite with your guests.

Apple Brown Betty

⅓ cup melted butter or margarine	¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups soft cornbread crumbs, toasted	1 teaspoon cinnamon
3 cups pared, sliced tart apples	¼ teaspoon nutmeg
⅔ cup brown sugar	2 tablespoons lemon juice
	⅓ cup water

Add melted butter to cornbread crumbs; toss with fork to mix thoroughly; toast in skillet over low heat until golden brown. Combine apples, sugar, salt and spices; mix well. Spread a layer of toasted crumbs in bottom of 1½-quart greased casserole. Add layer of apple mixture. Continue until all ingredients are used, ending with crumbs. Combine lemon juice and water; pour over all. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour. Serve with plain cream. Makes five to six servings.

ANNOUNCING THE FINISH-IT-YOURSELF HOUSE™

THE HOME YOU THOUGHT YOU COULDN'T AFFORD AND THE FINANCING YOU THOUGHT YOU COULDN'T GET.

These days, you're not likely to find a $40,000 house selling for $25,000. But if you're willing to do some work, you can earn yourself a bargain. We'll even finance it for you.

Here's how it works.

CHOOSE YOUR LOCATION

First, decide on the area where you'd like to live. Then find a nice piece of property and buy it.

Suitable building lots can range from a few hundred dollars on up, depending on size and location.

CUSTOMIZE THE HOUSE PLANS

Choose one of our 78 designs. You can modify the plans to suit your family size, your way of living, and your budget.

You also select the roofing, siding, and all the interior appointments such as kitchen and bath accessories, doors, windows, flooring, lighting fixtures and so forth.

This way, you can make your home just what you want it to be.

OLD-FASHIONED CONSTRUCTION

We do the heavy construction and completely enclose your home.

You'll find that we don't compromise on quality. Our materials and building specifications are considered old-fashioned in this day of the jerry-built wonder, but that doesn't bother us. We've been building quality homes for almost 30 years and we're too proud to change now.

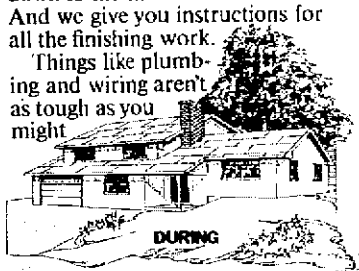

FINISHING YOUR HOME

You can get everything you need to finish your home—right down to the last nail—from us. And we give you instructions for all the finishing work.

Things like plumbing and wiring aren't as tough as you might think, even for people who've never done more than hang a picture.

You can do the work yourselves, get your friends to help out, or even sub-contract some of it.

The more work you do, the more you'll save. But even if you hire people to help, you'll be saving a sizeable amount by eliminating the general contractor's profits.

And when you're finished, you'll not only have a home that's worth a lot more than you paid for it, you'll have a real feeling of accomplishment.

WE'LL PROVIDE FINANCING

Because we believe in our homes and in the people who buy them, we provide the financing.

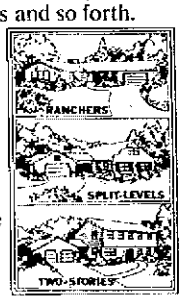

Your down payment won't put a big dent in your savings. (The cost of your building lot can be the only major cash outlay you'll have to make.) You can finance the rest of the cost through us at competitive rates. And if at any time you find a better financing arrangement, you can switch over with no pre-payment penalty.

my favorite jokes

by tony vallo

EDITOR'S NOTE: Tony Vallo feels he has developed a special talent of understanding difficult verbal communications. "If I had gone into the Army," he says, "I probably could have gotten a good job decoding messages, because I've done it all my life with my mother who has a very thick Italian accent. When she first came to the U.S. she picked up words that stayed with her for the rest of her life. She calls every window a 'bewindow', because when my parents were first married the house they lived in had a bay window."

Vallo's appeared at the top clubs and hotels—the Playboy clubs, the Fontainebleau, Miami Beach; Americana, New York; Mangam's, Chicago; Palumbo's, Philadelphia—and he's co-produced a show, Italy-American Style, which premiered at the Concord Hotel in the Catskills, and will play 21 cities throughout the country. Vallo usually starts his act in the middle of a joke. But here, from the beginning, are some of his favorites:

When my wife was just learning how to cook my mother helped her. She showed her how to cook mushrooms the way they did in the old country, and she told her: You put a quarter in the pot with the mushrooms. If the quarter turns black it means you have a bad mushroom." The first time my wife cooked them she didn't have a quarter, so she put in two dimes and a nickel.

I married the same woman twice. Got married, got divorced, didn't pay my alimony—and was repossessed.

A chicken and a pig were walking past a church and there was a sign in front that said: "Let's help feed the needy." So the chicken said to the pig, "Let's donate something. We'll give them some ham and eggs." And the pig said, "For you that's easy. For me that's a total commitment!"

I took a survey on gambling and lotteries, and the question most people asked is: "What do the big winners do with the money?" I found out that 20 percent of these winners take the first plane to Las Vegas and are seen five days later selling ties at the airport.

Two brothers went fishing. The older brother caught a few dozen fish; the younger never got a nibble. He said to his older brother: "How come you catch all the fish and I don't catch any?" "It's hard to explain," said the older brother. "The only thing I can say is, I have the personality." "But what does that have to do with fishing?" asked the younger brother. "I don't know. That's the only way I can explain it. I have the personality." The next morning the younger brother took the boat out by himself, stayed out all day without a nibble. Finally in disgust, he threw all the fishing equipment overboard. A little fish stuck his head up out of the water and said "Pssst." "What, what is it?" he asked. The fish said: "Where's your brother?"

I have a bad memory. I found a note in my pocket with an address. I wrote the man a note saying, "Do I know you? Was there something I was supposed to do for you?" I received a note back saying, "You already did. I'm your wife's first husband."

I have a strange cousin, Eddie. He always wanted to be a pilot. When he was on his first flight approaching New York's Kennedy Airport he called in for instructions.

Voice of control tower: "Would you please give us your altitude and position?"

Voice of pilot: "I'm 5 foot 10 inches and I'm sitting up front."

The people in this country are more diet-conscious than ever. My mother gained weight because of shame. . . . "It's a shame to throw this out, it's a shame to throw that out!"

My uncle came from Italy and got his first job with a construction company. They told him they would supply him with his working gear. As he was waiting in line he turned to the man next to him and said, "I just realized, I don't know my sizes. In Italy we have different sizes. The guy looked at my uncle's feet, neck, arms, and said, "Look you're about one size bigger than me all around, so whatever size I ask for, you just ask for the next size."

Counterman: What size shoes?
Man: I'll take size 9.
My uncle: I'll take size 10.
Counterman: What size pants?
Man: I'll take size 36.
My uncle: I'll take size 37.
Counterman: What size shirt?
Man: I'll take 16.
My uncle: I'll take 17.
Counterman: What size hat?
Man: I'll take 6 and 7/8ths.
My uncle: I'll take 9, 10 and 11.

it's to laugh

"It's finally happened, all the women have gotten jobs and there's no one left to shop!"

"You'll drive women crazy with this stuff. It smells like money."

You can make her smile.

This sad little girl may have problems too big for her. Perhaps she is left alone for hours in a broken home. Or worrying about a sick mother. Or concerned about a father in uniform, far away.

Whatever the cause of her unhappiness, the good people of her community can provide answers through voluntary health and welfare agencies supported through their United Fund or Community Chest.

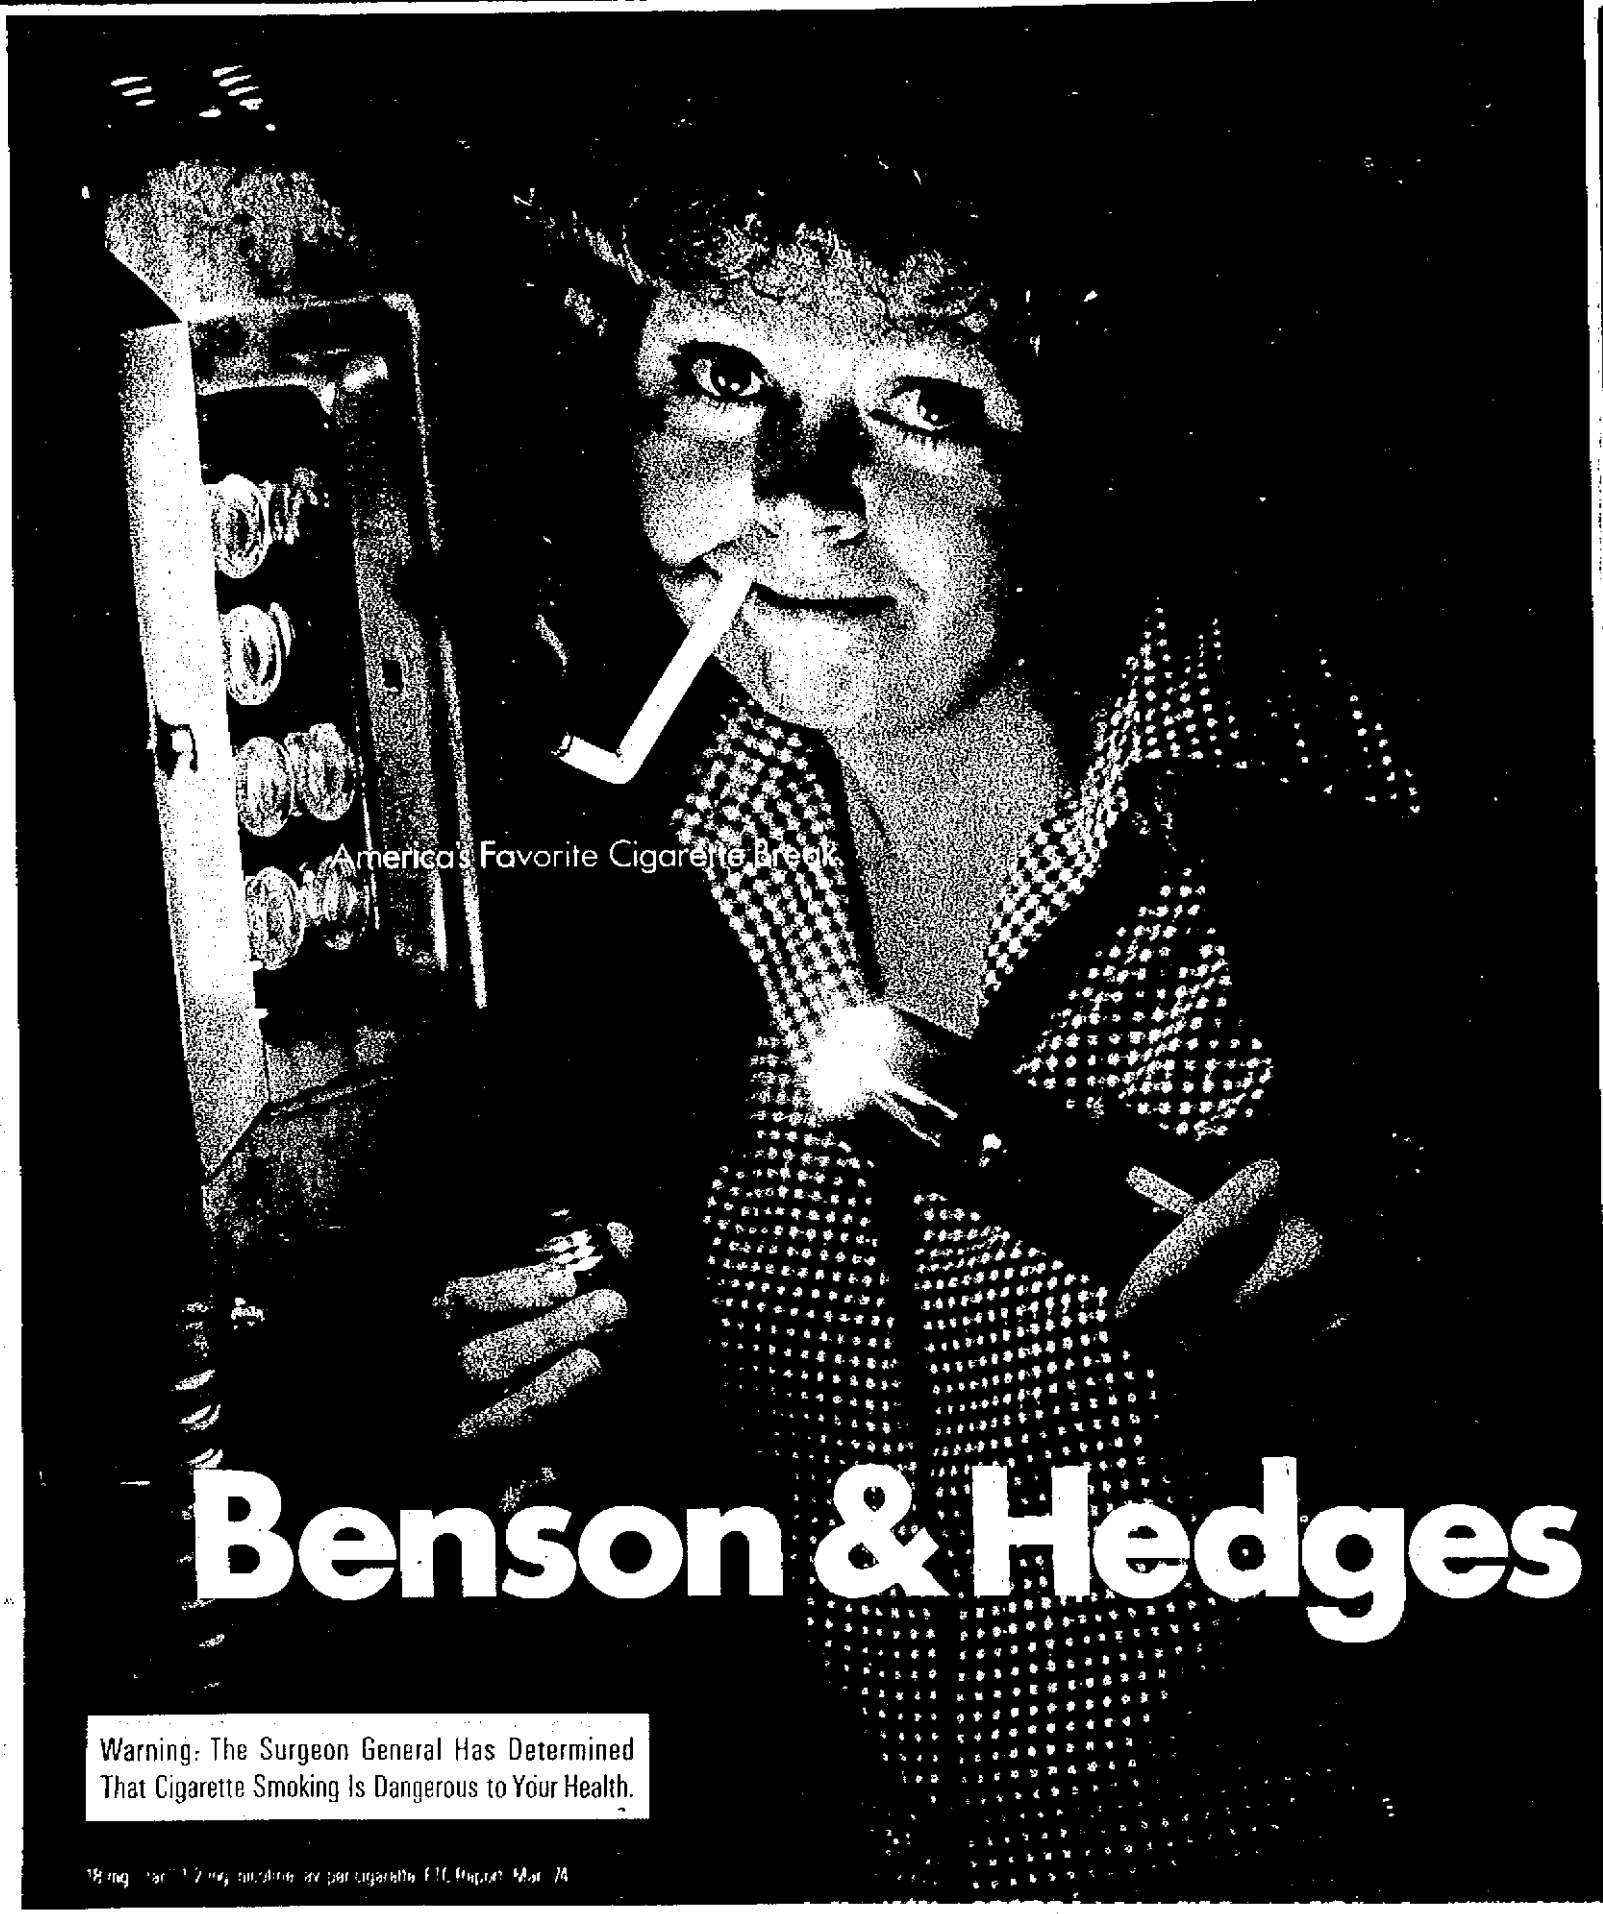

You give hope and reassurance to less fortunate people of all ages when you contribute your fair share to your local United Way campaign. It is a very personal kind of help, because your agencies have the same special feeling for the community as yourself.

Yes, you bring smiles to many faces when you pledge your once-a-year gift the United Way. And make your community better for all families, including your own.

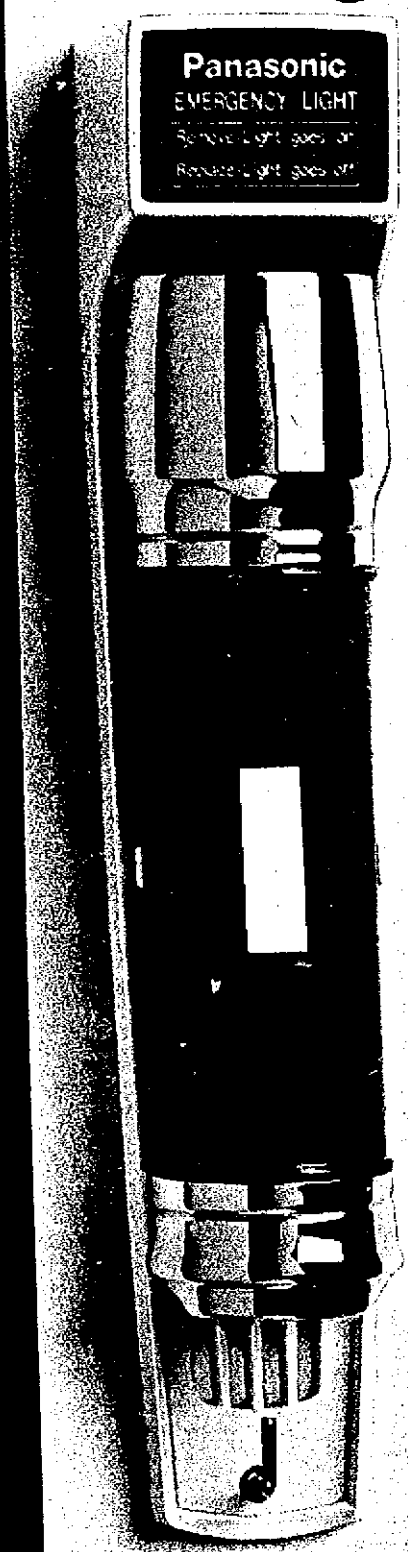

Your fair-share gift works many wonders

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

EDITED by LLOYD SHEARER

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES.

CHECKING THE CHECKERS

Sen. Charles H. Percy (R., Ill.) wants Congress to do something which it never before has done--demand an accounting of all the intelligence, police and investigative agents hidden within the federal government.

"We find ourselves," Percy says, "threatened by the specter of a watchdog government breeding a nation of snoopers. We are threatened because we do not know the facts about our intelligence community. Billions are appropriated each year, but we do not know enough about which agencies spend this money and what they spend it for.

"There is an immediate, urgent need for a comprehensive accounting of the U.S. funds and federal government personnel devoted to police, investigative, and intelligence work.

"Congress is simply not performing the oversight functions our citizens expect of us."

Percy says that a Library of Congress survey reveals more than 60 units within the federal bureaucracy involved in police, intelligence, and investigative work and that the budget for only 14 of these exceeds $1 billion.

"One estimate," he declares, "places the cost of all U.S. police, investigative, and intelligence units at more than $6.2 billion annually. And the exact number of personnel employed remains unknown."

PARADISE IS FLORIDA

For the second consecutive year Florida leads the nation in attracting new families. Who says so? A survey conducted by Allied Van Lines, Inc., reveals that after Florida come Arizona, Vermont, and Washington in that order.

BLACKS OUTPACE WHITES

Black Americans are multiplying at a faster rate than white Americans.

A survey by the Bureau of the Census shows that the black population increased 5 percent -- from 22.8 million to 23.9 million -- between 1970 and 1973.

In that same period the nation's white population increased by 2 percent -- from 179.5 million to 183.5 million.

Both races in recent years have experienced slowing growth rates, especially in contrast to their 1960-1970 records.

In that decade, for example, the American black population increased 20 percent — from 19 million to 22.8 million. The American white population in the same period increased 12 percent -- from 160 million to 179.5 million.

The National Center for Health Statistics reports a sharp drop in birth and fertility rates for both races thus far in this decade. In some black circles the declining growth rate is regarded as a white conspiracy to limit the black population and thereby restrict growing black political power. The fact is, however, that there is no such conspiracy, and blacks are steadily winning more elective offices in major cities throughout the country such as Los Angeles, Detroit, Atlanta, Newark, Dayton, Cincinnati and Raleigh.

The state with the largest number of black officials is Michigan with 194 this year, followed by Mississippi with 191, and New York with 174 and North Carolina with 159.

As of April 1, 1974 there were 2991 blacks in elective office in 45 states and the District of Columbia (including 120 mayors), up from 2621 a year ago, and 1185 five years ago.

PEOPLE DON'T KNOW THEMSELVES

You see a young girl held at knifepoint by a thug in a dark alley. Would you go to her rescue? Most people say, "Yes," but when confronted by the actual situation, most cop out.

"People are bad predictors of their own behavior," declares Dr. Steven Sherman, associate professor of psychology at Indiana University. "When it comes to socially desirable behavior, people overpredict."

Under a grant from the U.S. Public Health Service, Dr. Sherman is studying the relationship between attitudes and behavior. He points out that behavior precedes attitude.

"We used to think," he says, "that attitudes are hidden reasons behind behavior. But in the last 10 years, this has been turned around. Behavior serves as input for attitude. We do something and then go back and see what we did.

"For instance, at noon you sit down and eat and eat and eat. You stuff yourself. Later on you think about it and say, 'Boy, I guess I must have been really hungry.'

"People often don't think about their behaviors. They just do them, then snap back and get information from what they've done."

Dr. Sherman is interested in specific situations in which behavior leads to attitude changes. He maintains that "if people can be encouraged to engage in various types of behavior, the subsequent fears and feelings can be changed."

ADVERTISING DRUGS Until a few months ago it was illegal for any drugstore in Virginia to advertise the price of prescription drugs so that consumers might shop for the lowest buy.

Now a three-judge federal court in Richmond has ruled that a Virginia law barring prescription drug advertising is unconstitutional.

According to the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), barriers against such advertising have been dropped in 11 states. Possibly prescription drugs in those states will be available to consumers at lower prices than in those states where such advertising is still forbidden.

SEX LIVES OF EXECUTIVES An in-depth study of 6000 U.S. executives, 5260 of whom are married, has recently been published by Crowell. It's entitled Executive Life Styles: A Life Extension Institute Report on Alcohol, Sex & Health by Dr. Harry J. Johnson.

The book is based on questionnaires answered by top executives in the New York area who reported to the Life Extension Institute for their annual physical.

On sex, the survey shows a positive correlation between youth and the frequency of sex relations. About 75 percent of the men who engaged in such activity at least once a week were 35 or under. The older a man gets the less frequently he needs intercourse. Divorced and separated men, as a general rule, engage more frequently in sex relations than married men, regardless of age.

Of approximately 5000 married executives questioned, about 20 percent confessed to extracurricular sex activity, and of this 20 percent only one in four was cheating on a regular schedule. Most infidelity, the executives confided, was conducted on a hit-and-run basis; and most of the unfaithful explained that they did so because of some wifely deficiency or their hunger for a new experience.

Contrary to general belief, most executives do not fool around with their secretaries or other female business associates. Fewer than 9 percent confessed to extramarital affairs with office help. Most philandering involves outside female acquaintances.

On drinking, the executives reported that they found alcohol to be a sex stimulant or an inhibition remover. In either case, the more they drank, the more sexually active they became.

Dr. Johnson's book also reveals that approximately 4 percent of the executives questioned admitted that they were sexually active homosexuals, which is also true of the general population.

NEW CHEAP POLAROID This is the week that Polaroid releases its new camera, Zip, the lowest-priced ($13.95) instant-picture camera it has ever marketed.

The Zip, which weighs less than 18 ounces, uses a new Polaroid black-and-white film that prints itself in 30 seconds and requires no coating or other treatment. The film sells for $3 a pack.

The camera is manufactured in Scotland, and more than a million have been sold in Europe during the past two years. It is a successor to the old-fashioned Brownie and primarily for the use of young amateurs.

To make a picture with Zip, the user merely looks into the viewfinder and squeezes the knob on the top of the camera until the word "Yes" appears in the viewfinder. This assures that the exposure is correct. The user then simply presses the knob.

DR. RICHARD GRAYSON: PAY WHAT YOU CAN

SAMARITAN PHYSICIAN

Dr. Richard E. Palmer, chairman of the American Medical Association's board of trustees, said recently that physicians were not trying hard enough to reduce medical costs.

One physician, perhaps the most unusual in the country, whom Palmer was not referring to is Dr. Richard Grayson, an internist who practices medicine in St. Charles, Ill., a town of some 10,000 people, 35 miles west of Chicago.

Dr. Grayson tells all his patients that if they judge the bills he sends them to be out-of-line, they can reduce them as they wish.

The Grayson method is to enclose with each monthly bill a pink note which reads: "My fee schedule is based upon standard medical practice in this area. However, for retired persons on limited pensions, or any others whose financial circumstances are difficult due to extensive illness, unemployment, or for any other reasons, I will reduce my fees.

"Under these circumstances," the note continues, "I suggest a 25 percent reduction, but more or less may be appropriate to your situation. No discussion is necessary --simply write the amount of reduction you choose on the statement with your remittance."

Dr. Grayson, 49, has been using this technique since 1969 when he read an article in Medical Economics. Recently he was publicized in AMA Update, the newsletter published by the American Medical Association, and reports, "I'm taking quite a bit of kidding from my colleagues. They're offering to send me all their poor-paying patients."

According to Grayson, "Money--or the lack of it is the cause of emotional stress in some families these days. Emotional distress often leads to ulcers and other physical ailments. I see plenty of ulcer patients already; and I'd just as soon that my bills did not help create more."

Grayson says that only 2 or 3 percent of his patients reduce the bills he sends out and that only one, a young father who had just lost his job, ever asked him to write off the bill. The doctor did.

Grayson modestly insists that he is neither altruist nor philanthropist. "I feel," he explains, "that arguments with patients about bills can interfere with my emotions for hours. It can stimulate all sorts of stress, and who needs that? Neither I nor the patient."

A rare physician, Dr. Richard Grayson. Are there many more like him?

The Franklin Mint announces ~

Norman Rockwell's Medallic

12 original works of art by Norman Rockwell capturing the spirit of Robert Frost's poetry in the enduring beauty of solid sterling silver.

Issued in a single limited edition
Available only until September 30, 1974

NORMAN ROCKWELL has been portraying America and its people in his art for most of this century. And Robert Frost, during his lifetime, recorded his devotion to America – in poetic words – with the same warmth and love.

Now, for the Centennial of Robert Frost's birth, the beloved artist Norman Rockwell will pay special tribute to this great American poet.

Rockwell has created twelve original works of art inspired by the beautiful poetry of Robert Frost, and these are being issued exclusively in the form of solid sterling silver art medals.

This collection of twelve fine art medals—"Norman Rockwell's Medallic Tribute to Robert Frost"—will be both unique and rare.

Unique because the art for each medal was created by Norman Rockwell exclusively for this series.

Rare because these medals will be issued only once—in a strictly limited edition—never to be offered again.

Captures the spirit of Frost's poetry

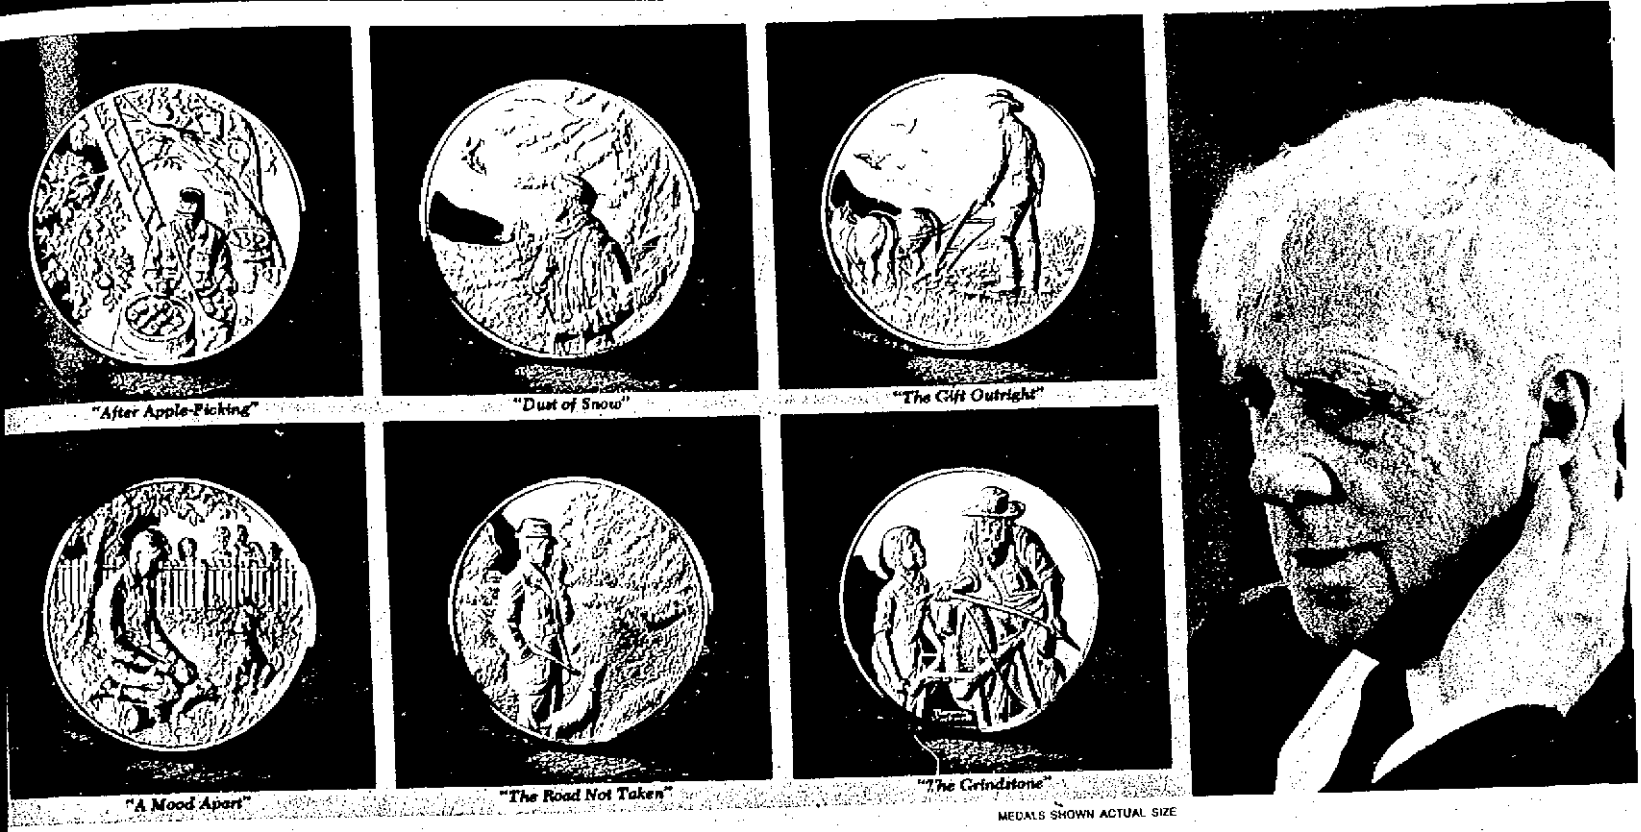

Each sterling silver art medal will interpret one of the most memorable poems of Robert Frost. The Gift Outright, the poem which Frost recited at the inauguration of President John F. Kennedy. Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening, evoking the quiet beauty of a New England winter. Mending Wall. Dust of Snow. Birches. A Time to Talk . . . twelve inspiring poems, each sensitively portrayed by the best-loved artist of our time.

This unique series of art medals is recognized by the estate of Robert Frost as the only official medallic collection honoring the 100th anniversary of the great poet's birth.

Exquisite art medals

Each medal will be struck in solid sterling silver by The Franklin Mint, the world's largest private mint and foremost producer of fine medallic art.

Each medal will measure 44mm (1¾") in diameter and will be minted with the finest proof-quality finish, individually hallmarked, and will bear the famous Norman Rockwell signature. The special dies used to mint each medal will be hand-finished by master engravers, so that the sculptured design area stands out boldly in frosted relief against a brilliant mirror-like background. Truly, the highest achievement of the minter's art.

Tribute to Robert Frost

A strictly limited edition

The total number of sets minted will be exactly equal to the number of valid orders postmarked by September 30, 1974. After the medals have been struck for each subscriber, the dies will be destroyed to guarantee the rarity of the collection.

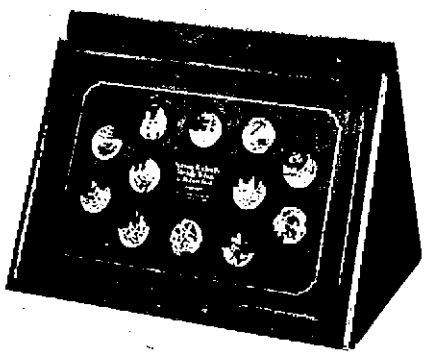

Subscribers may build their collections on a convenient monthly basis. The twelve solid sterling silver proof medals will be issued at the rate of one medal per month at a cost of $25. each. This price will be guaranteed to each subscriber for the entire series, no matter how high the price of silver may rise. In view of recent dramatic increases in the market price of silver, this is an extremely significant guarantee.

To protect and display the complete collection, a deluxe collector's case with hardwood display frame will be provided at no additional charge.

An heirloom collection

Any new work by an artist of the stature of Norman Rockwell is certain to be a prized heirloom. This new collection will be especially treasured. Not only for its beauty, rarity and intrinsic value—but because it is a significant commemoration of a great poet and a great human being.

To acquire this heirloom collection, your subscription must be postmarked by September 30, 1974. Please note that there is a strict limit of one Proof Set per person.

Fast, furious and mean: box lacrosse combines features of field lacrosse, ice hockey and basketball. Here, the Philadelphia Wings (in white) play the Maryland Arrows.

Box Lacrosse— Pro Sports' New Baby

by Charles Peterson

LARGO, MD.

The newest addition to the glut of professional sports inundating the country is box lacrosse, a Canadian export electrifying crowds in Eastern cities.

Mayhem is the major attraction of box lacrosse, a rough-tough sport promoted as "the meanest game in the world" and designed to appeal to fans who like to see the participants hit and floor each other with lacrosse sticks.

Box lacrosse originated in Canada in 1930. Hybrid by nature, it combines basketball's fast play with ice hockey's body contact and lacrosse's field passing.

A team of six men play the game indoors on a wooden hockey rink. Using netted lacrosse sticks, they aim to fling a small, hard, rubber ball into a goal, four feet high and 4½ feet wide. If they fail to shoot within 30 seconds, they lose possession of the ball.

The game lasts for three 20-minute periods, time enough for violence and rule infractions to send plenty of players to the penalty box.

The National Lacrosse League got underway this past February with six teams: the Philadelphia Wings, the Maryland Arrows, the Syracuse Stingers, the Rochester Griffins, the Toronto Tomahawks, and Les Québecois of Montreal.

Six years ago Morley Kells and Jim Bishop, two lacrosse coaches in Canada, formed the National Lacrosse Association with eight teams. It failed because the owners were unable to rent the necessary rinks. This time the present league seems to be adequately-financed by several owners of the National Hockey League who are prepared to advertise and promote until the game catches on.

Big in Philadelphia

To date it seems to have caught on most widely in Philadelphia where the Wings have been averaging 10,000 fans a game.

If the National Lacrosse League can hold out for a season or two, chances are good that it will expand to the West Coast and perhaps even attract some American players.

At the moment most of the stars are Canadians who beat each other up for an average salary of $6500 under the guise of participating in a new pro sport.

Anything for a new buck.

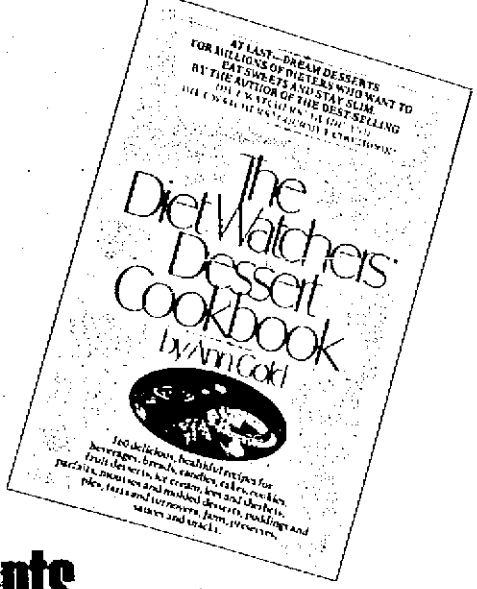

Players fight for a loose ball in a corner of the rink: a team that consistently pries the hard rubber ball free usually comes out a winner.

Taking a spill is part of the fun. In this recent game at Maryland's Capital Center the dark-shirted hometown Arrows won it in double overtime.

A shot on goal: around 7000 fans showed up at this game in Maryland, but games in Philadelphia have drawn the league's biggest crowds.

160 Desserts for Dieters

If you're like most Americans who are trying to lose weight or stay slim, desserts are your undoing.

You manage to skip the bread, push aside the soup, hold down on potatoes, and even reduce your portion of the main course. But when the dessert comes along—you go hog wild. And who can blame you? Often, it's the sweet at the end that makes the whole meal seem worthwhile. Many a dieter stints himself all day only to blow it all on that succulent, calorie-loaded pie or sundae at the end of dinner.

It's the way of all flesh—and also the way to ruin an otherwise successful diet.

But now a book has been written which tells you how to eat your cake—and not worry about your waistline. Entitled The Diet Watchers Dessert Cookbook, it consists of 120 pages filled with recipes for fancy and appetite-satisfying desserts all of which you can make with ease and eat with impunity—knowing that they're designed for dieters who want to eat sweets but stay slender. And it's available to PARADE readers for the slim price of $1 (plus 25¢ for postage and handling).

The Diet Watchers Dessert Cookbook is the work of Mrs. Ann Gold, whose Diet Watchers, Inc., has helped thousands of men and women lick the overweight problem. She's already authored the best-selling Diet Watchers Guide and Diet Watchers Gourmet Cookbook.

But like all dieters, Mrs. Gold has found that desserts constitute a special category.

"Because I was a fat person," she writes, "I know how important desserts are to the fat-thinking individual. When the dessert is excellent the entire meal is right."

By applying modern knowledge of body chemistry and food content, Mrs. Gold and her associates have been able to come up with no fewer than 160 recipes for dishes that satisfy a craving for sweets and round off a meal delectably—yet fit easily into a weight-losing diet pattern.

The Diet Watchers Dessert Cookbook shows that you don't have to be either hungry or unhappy as you trim your way down. For dieters it puts the fun back into eating. At its bargain price, it represents the most satisfying investment you'll ever make in healthful and enjoyable eating.

TO ORDER: Send your name, address, zip code and $1 (plus 25¢ postage and handling) in cash, check or money order for each copy of "The Diet Watchers Dessert Cookbook" to PARADE, P.O. Box 4, Dept. Z, Kensington Station, Brooklyn, N.Y. 11218. Please allow three weeks for delivery.

"A glue so strong, I'm going to bet my life on it!"

...AND HE DOES!

OUR ANNOUNCER WALKED UNDER A CAR THAT WAS HELD IN THE AIR WITH JUST ONE DROP OF SUPER GLUE

ONE DROP HELD THIS 2000 POUND CAR To show the super holding power of this amazing glue, we actually lifted a car off the ground, attached to the crane by just one drop of Super Glue. And, we lifted it high enough for our announcer to walk under the car. Actually, the crane lifted the car up and down nine times, until we got the scene just right. Now, that's real holding power! This amazing demonstration was filmed in front of a live audience. The announcer actually risked his life...there were no tricks or safety devices used...only the super holding power of Super Glue, and the glue was applied only minutes before. Think of all the things around your home that need Super Glue.

ONE DROP HOLDS 2000 POUNDS

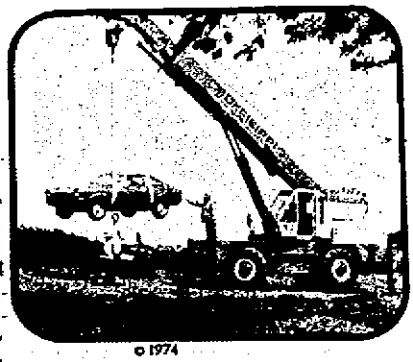

INSTANTLY BONDS
• GLASS • STEEL • PLASTIC • CRYSTAL • RUBBER • CERAMIC • TILE • PORCELAIN PERMANENTLY BONDS

Super Glue dries in seconds to super strength. No more clamping...no mixing...no mess. With Super Glue you can mount fixtures to tile, hang pictures on walls, attach steel to plastic. And, the bond is strong . . . permanent . . . and waterproof. Simply apply Super Glue to one side of the part to be bonded and join the parts. Super Glue dries in seconds, is non-toxic and not affected by chemicals. Super Glue is used industrially by the automotive industry, to hold trim on cars, to attach mirrors to windshields... It's used on trains, airplanes, bicycles, electrical components. Now it is available for use in your own home. Order your easy-to-use tube today...Super Glue...you need it!

TRY THIS SIMPLE TEST
Put one drop of Super Glue on the tip of a pencil eraser. Press it to a table for a few seconds. When you try to get the pencil up the eraser will come out of the pencil or break...the bond becomes stronger than the material.

SEEING IS BELIEVING! TRY IT AT OUR RISK.

Mixed Camping

Last month 33 national delegations of Boy Scouts and Girl Guides got together at an International Jamboree in Chatsworth, England. There, the organizers requested that the girls and boys sleep in separate tents.

The German delegation refused, explaining that in 1971 West Germany had officially adopted a rule which calls for "mixed camping." While 32 other delegations separated the sexes, the West Germans had 40 boys and girls sharing two tents in the male camp. Said one West German scoutmaster: "To us mixed camping means mixed camping, and mixed camping does not mean promiscuity. Boy Scouts and Girl Guides learn much more when they are together."

Bike Banks

A new sight on college campuses this fall is the parking meter for bicycles. The devices are called Bike Banks. A bicycle is fitted into a slot. A chain circles the front wheel. The bike-user inserts a quarter into the lock and retains the key. The bike is insured against theft, also against damage with a $25 deductible. Bike Banks are springing up all over California and in other states where bike paths are popular.

One Course at a Time

This year Colorado College in Colorado Springs received about 2700 applications for 600 places in the freshman class, a surprising number when one considers how difficult it is for so many liberal arts colleges nowadays to attract new students.

One reason for Colorado's desirability is its widely publicized "block plan" of study.

Under this unusual system of intensive study, students study one course intensively instead of taking three or four or five as students do at most schools.

At Colorado the academic year is divided into nine blocks. Each block is 3½ weeks long, during which students take one "principal course." An adjunct course in physical education or music may also be pursued in the same period, but the general rule is "one principal course per block."

There are variations, of course, and some flexibility, but the thrust of the block plan, now in its fourth year, is to have the student concentrate on a single subject instead of diverting his attention to several others.

A recent poll shows that 91 percent of the students and 81 percent of the 130 faculty members approve of the plan.

Forty years ago, Hiram College in Ohio pioneered the single-course approach to education, but abandoned it some 20 years later. At Colorado, however, the block system may be modified in the future but for the time being, it's there to stay, because it works.

Health Food Machines

As our nutrition patterns change, more parents are urging local schools to include health food vending machines on school grounds.

While sugar-laden candy bars, cookies, soda pop and ice cream are where the money is in automatic food machines, more campuses are adding health food to their vending menus. From Berkeley to Cornell, fresh fruit, canned fruit juice, nuts and seeds, granola, and yogurt are being offered to students.

The Center for Science in the Public Interest is encouraging nutrition-minded citizens to "demand local regulations requiring that at least half the selections in vending machines be nutritious."

This year many PTA's are renting vending machines and stocking them with nutritional foods.

ELTON JOHN—HE SELLS A LOT OF RECORDS

From Dwight to John

Several years ago a small, portly, balding, young saloon pianist, Reginald Kenneth Dwight of Pinner, England, changed his name to Elton Hercules John.

The name-change brought him luck, because today at 30, Elton John is one of the world's most successful and wealthy entertainers. His records are best sellers, his concerts are sell-outs, his reputation as a talented rock artist is outstanding. He writes his own songs, plays and sings them, recently completed a new album "Caribou." A few weeks ago he finished a cameo role as a pinball wizard in a film, Tommy, and would now like to star in movies. To date everything Elton John touches turns into money.

Teen Marriage Town

St. George, Utah, 135 miles east of Las Vegas, Nev., has become a mecca for teen-age couples who have marriage on their mind. Youngsters keep coming to this Southern Utah town because Utah law permits girls of 14 and boys of 16 to marry.

"But that's not the whole story," warns county clerk Royden Christian. "They need notarized letters of parental consent on both sides. They need proof of age such as a birth certificate or driver's license, and of course they need to have taken the standard blood test, which must be signed by a physician and a lab technician both.

"The blood test can be taken in St. George," Christian concedes, "but the other documentation, particularly the parental consent—that can't be done here and that can't be done over the telephone. So many times we get kids in here who say, 'Can't we phone our folks and let them talk to you?' Or 'Won't a telegram do?' I tell them that it won't. We either need the parents here or notarized documentation."

Christian points out that his office issues about 60 marriage licenses a month, most of them to young out-of-state couples. "The most frequent age of the bride," he says, "is 15, and for the groom it's 17 or 18. Lots of times a young fellow who's 18 will give us an argument. 'If I'm old enough to vote,' he asks, 'how come I'm not old enough to get married?' I usually tell them that marriage is a much more serious step than voting."

- Stainless steel blades
- Cut paper . . . patterns . . . fabrics with incredible ease

Selling For As Much As $8

NOW YOURS FOR ONLY $3.99

Some time ago these inventive Scandinavians introduced an entirely new concept in scissors. It was a scissors with a special cushioned handle anatomically designed to fit your hand. The comfort was incredible. You could cut through the most intricate curve, cut all kinds of materials, cut free hand into all kinds of designs or slip the scissors along the table for an even straight line cut. People who were used to the old fashioned kind of scissors couldn't imagine a pair of scissors working so efficiently and so effortlessly as this new design. Seamstresses and anyone who needed them knew they had discovered a secret. But originally these scissors cost much, much more. In fact, even today you can find this design selling for $8.00 or more in fine stores. But now we've created this same design at a fantastically low price. "Shear Joy" It's got the familiar orange, cushion soft, plastic handle, the stainless steel blades, weighs only 3 ounces, and they're 8½" long. If you thought there was nothing glamorous about a pair of scissors then wait until you've tried these. At this new low price you can't afford to be without them. Order now. If they are not shear joy, simply return for full money back.

How your Horoscope can bring you wealth, love, success and happiness.

Astrology Today
PRESENTED BY THE INTERNATIONAL ASTROLOGICAL ASSOCIATION
"The World's Largest Astrological Association"

by NORMAN P. KENNEDY

Did you know your horoscope could mean the difference between happiness or sorrow; between success or failure?

Picture a long room with doors at each end. In this room there is money, attractive persons of the opposite sex, books that tell you the secret of happiness and many other valuable articles. But, also in this room are bottomless pits, traps, hostile persons and dangerous beasts chained in various places around the room. You must walk through this room, but you may take out of it anything you can.

Now if you had a choice, would you choose to 1) go through the room blindfolded or 2) go through the room with your eyes open and with written instructions on which places an and people to visit or avoid.

Of course, all of us would pick the second choice in a case such as this. Isn't it ridiculous, then, that we would choose to go thru life, the same situation, blindfolded! Even when there is a means to go thru life with a map and our eyes wide open! The means provided is Astrology. The map is our astrological horoscope.

How does it work? Nature's cosmos imprints each of us at the time of birth - when the umbilical cord is cut. We then become ourselves. Until the cord is cut, we are part of our mother. Why or how we presently do not know. The movement of the large solar bodies then times potentials for events in our lives. Astrology does not cause events but is timing of events. But, it's not fortune telling. It's a prediction of potentials which free will can override.

Here is a common misconception about astrology. Some people say, "how can stars millions of light years away be related to our lives." The error here is the word stars. Astrology deals with the relationship of our lives with the sun, moon, and planets—not stars.

And, anyone who doesn't think that the sun, moon, and planets do not regulate earth and its inhabitants, had better think again. We all know how the moon controls the tides. We have all heard of the famous clam experiments where the clams open and close by the cycle of the moon, sun, and planets. Police departments and insurance companies show exact relations with crime and violence with cycles of the moon, sun and planets. Doctors are finding direct relationships with successful operations and the cycle of the solar bodies. Authenticated research is now proving that astrology can predict natural disasters, wars, diseases a person will suffer, personalities of people and much more.

What does a natal horoscope analysis by a qualified astrologer contain? A natal horoscope analysis contains the best psychological analysis of yourself that you can get today. Because, in a controlled experiment in 1960, astrologers beat psychologists in predicting case histories.

In addition, a natal horoscope analysis includes discussions on the following: financial outlook; taxes and inheritances; early home environment; relationships with family; relatives and parents; lovelife and marriage; children; career and occupation; hopes; wishes and goals; and subconscious attitudes. In a major analysis, a one year forecast is also included.

Many people think that astrology only appeals to "way out" unscientific people. Nothing could be farther from the truth. In fact, studies show that astrology appeals most to intelligent and logical people.

Consider these famous scientists: Galileo-astronomer, Carl Jung-psychologist, Johannes Kepler-astronomer, Roger Bacon-mathemetician, Tycho Bache-astronomer. Want to know what they all had in common? They all were astrologers themselves or used astrology in their work. Even Albert Einstein was impressed by the accuracy of astrology when he studied it in his late years.

Astrology appeals to people in every walk of life. A horoscope has meant the difference between success and disaster for famous people throughout history. Your horoscope can mean the same to you.

Your horoscope can help you be in the right place at the right time.

Did you know that the three wise men who found the Christ Child were astrologers? The "large star" which guided them to the Christ Child was really a cluster of cosmic bodies which were, as predicted by astrological charts, in line at that particular time. This was the reason it was so bright. This alignment of bodies allowed the wise men to know the time and place of the birth of Christ. Also, Christ chose His 12 apostles according to the 12 astrological signs.

Your horoscope can help you avoid disasters while guiding you to your beneficial opportunities.

Did you know that astrology helped the allies win W.W. II? The allies employed astrologers. The axis powers started out employing astrologers. But, this was ceased early when the famous astrologer, Karl Ernst Krafft, predicted the exact time and place of an attempt on Hitler's life in 1939. Hitler thought the astrologers were conspiring against him, so they were imprisoned.

This proved to be a tragic decision for Hitler. A decision that may have altered the course of the war. Because, if Hitler had studied his horoscope, he would have used different strategy. Why? Because two horoscopes, one of Adolf Hitler, drawn by two different astrologers, in two different countries, at two different times exactly predicted the course of W.W. II

Hitler did get to see these horoscopes . . . . too late. He read them in the last hours of the war as Berlin burned around him. The following is an authentic account of the incident.

Here is a direct quote from THE RISE AND FALL OF THE THIRD REICH, by William L. Shirer:

> "They sent for two horoscopes, which were kept in the files of one of Himmler's multitudinous "research" offices. One was the horoscope of the Fuehrer drawn up on January 30, 1933, the day he took office; the other was the horoscope of the Weimer Republic, composed by some unknown astrologer on November 9, 1918, the day of the Republic's birth. Goebbles communicated the results of the re-examination of these two remarkable documents to Krosigk.
> An amazing fact has become evident, both horoscopes predicted the outbreak of the war in 1939, the victories until 1941, and the subsequent series of reversals, with the hardest blows during the first months of 1945, particularly during the first half of April.* In the second half of April, we were to experience a temporary success. Then there would be stagnation until August and peace that same month. For the following three years, Germany would have a hard time, but starting in 1948, she would rise again."
> *Hitler committed suicide in April, 1945.

On the other hand, astrologers aided the allies in forecasting the axies moves. The most famous astrologer, Louis de Wohl, employed by British government, predicted the exact events leading to the downfall of Mussolini. He gained the faith of the American military when he predicted Pearl Harbor a year before it happened.

It is estimated that over 90% of rich and famous people use astrologers. This includes political leaders, film stars, businessmen and scientists. Natal horoscopes of Grace Kelly and Prince Rainier (pictured above) predicted their famous marriage. They both came to America recently to have their current horoscopes done by astrologer Keith Clayton.

More on avoiding disaster, came these stories from a recent article in the Miami Herald newspaper. The article tells the story of Mary Kelly, a Miami computer programmer, who heeded the advice of her horoscope which warned her of a wrong medical diagnosis. She avoided an unnecessary operation that would have left her a cripple.

Your horoscope can help you understand yourself.

Dr. Ralph Matzner, a psychologist attached to Stanford University's counseling and testing center frequently uses astrology as an adjunct to psychology and psychiatry, not because it's truer, but because "it is much more complex and sophisticated than many present psychological maps or systems."

Your horoscope can bring you wealth. Famous business tycoon J. P. Morgan, used astrology to acquire his fortune. Morgan did not make a financial move without checking his natal horoscope forecast.

From the article in the Miami Herald come these stories:

> —Stockbrokers on Wall Street are as likely to call an astrologer in this decade as Hollywood film stars would call a psychiatrist in the last. David Williams, a 75-year-old retired financial expert who lives in Clearwater, has made $150,000 from the stock market in 13 years by using astrology as an investment guide.

Your horoscope can show you the way to success and happiness in love and marriage. Horoscopes of Grace Kelly and Jackie Kennedy predicted their current successful marriages. Grace Kelly to Prince Rainier of Monaco and Jackie Kennedy to Aristotle Onassis, Greek multi-millionaire.

Is a natal horoscope analysis a good investment?

By knowing how to advance your career or making a correct financial decision, you would get back your investment thousands of times. Success in the areas of lovelife, marriage, children relationship and peer relationship is of infinite value. Knowing what future potentials to take advantage of and which ones to avoid can offer a priceless feeling of security.

Now and through the ages a good natal horoscope analysis has meant success for many people. In other cases many men have missed their opportunity; some with tragic consequences, such as Adolf Hitler.

Will you miss your success opportunities? Will you stumble into pitfalls you could have avoided?

Today, right this moment, you can have your natal horoscope cast and analyzed. You can get it for only the cost to make your duplicate copy. You get the expensive casting and analyzing process—FREE. The article below will tell you how. The means are available, but the choice is yours.

HOW TO GET YOUR PERSONAL NATAL HOROSCOPE, FOR WHICH ASTROLOGERS CHARGE $300.00, FOR ONLY A DUPLICATING COST TO MAKE YOUR COPY

by John F. Ford.

Send me your exact time and place of birth. I'll cast and analyze your natal horoscope for research purposes. You may have duplicate copies of your horoscope for only $3.00—the cost to make your copies plus postage and handling costs. You get the expensive casting and analyzing process—FREE, because of the fact that we must produce your horoscope for research anyhow.

Your natal horoscope will consist of nine pages and over 3,000 words. Your natal horoscope will contain your psychological analysis plus a discussion of the following: your lovelife; financial outlook; marriage, family and children relationships; career and occupations; hopes, wishes and goals; and subconscious attitudes. A horoscope of this type would cost up to $300 if done by an astrologer.

I will cast your horoscope with the help of our 360 - 65 I.B.M. computer, which contains over 24 million bits of information. Your horoscope will not be the general kind found in paperbacks. Your natal horoscope will be cast from your exact time and place of birth for you and you alone.

THERE'S ABSOLUTELY NO CATCH. I need this information for my astrological research. I am looking for certain planet configurations. If you are chosen as a research subject, I will mail to you a research questionnaire. If you fill out and return this questionnaire, you will be entitled to extra bonuses.

There is no need to worry about finding out about an unavoidable coming disaster thru your chart. As mentioned, astrology deals in potentials. Your free will can override potentials if you know about them. In any case, the policy of qualified astrologers is positive astrology. If there is something negative in your chart, you are told what you can do to make it positive.

To get your horoscope thru this special opportunity, simply fill out the research computer form to the right and mail to the address given on the form. Include the $3.00 copy cost for each horoscope or charge your credit card. There is a limit of two per family. If you don't know your exact time of birth, fill in 12:00 PM.

This research ad has run in just about every newspaper in the country. It has also run in the leading newspaper Sunday supplement magazines—PARADE, FAMILY WEEKLY, SUNDAY,—with total circulation of over 50 million. In addition it has also run in leading magazines such as LADIES HOME JOURNAL, McCALLS, etc. The response has been tremendous. Therefore, we have been able to acquire a great amount of new research knowledge that will someday help mankind.

If you have any questions, call me, John F. Ford, president, The International Astrological Association, at (216) 494-4282. Thank you!

COMPUTER DATA ENTRY FORM - PLEASE PRINT

I submit my birth data for research. I am now eligible to promptly receive my 3,000 word natal horoscope for only a $3.00 cost to make my duplicate copy. One or two names from my household may be submitted. (Limit of 2 - no exceptions)
